Acknowledgments

In my original work I extended my thankful appreciation to Dr. Ralph Coder for suggesting the project and for his guidance in the completion of it. Helpful suggestions, criticisms, and encouragement also came from the other members of my committee: Librarian Marc Campbell, Professors Marion Coulson and Roberta Stout. I have appreciated the cooperation of them all as well as Mrs. Ruth Leek and her fine staff at the Great Bend Public Library.

In the revision of this work I am indebted to several others as well. Dr. Samuel J. Sackett furnished many additional items in Chapter III. Marc Campbell gave freely of his time, advice, and cooperation in numerous ways. Mr. Joseph Roche and Miss Kathleen Hirsch helped with a number of details and thereby saved me much time. Miss Virginia Flakus assisted in countless functions, including the typing of both the original thesis and the revision. Finally, my wife, Mary, endured many trials and performed sundry chores so that I might complete both efforts on schedule. To all those above and others, unnamed, I express my sincere gratitude.

Introduction

This bibliography, an attempt to accumulate most scholarly contributions about Thoreau in a single compilation, originally covered twenty-five years from 1940-1965. For purposes of this publication it has been expanded and revised to include everything to mid-1967. The F. H. Allen Bibliography of Henry David Thoreau is practically complete to 1908. William White assembled a nearly complete listing in his A Henry David Thoreau Bibliography, 1908-1937. I arbitrarily chose 1940 as a beginning point so that this contribution might span twenty-five years. At the time of my decision I was not aware that I would double the number of periodical entries (for 1940-1945) in the Philip E. Burnham and Carvel Collins "Contribution to a Bibliography of Thoreau, 1938-1945" (see Appendix C).

This bibliographical compilation has been restricted to three categories. The first chapter includes periodical articles, a few newspapers, and several newspaper supplements, primarily the New York Times Book Review, New York Times Magazine, and This Week. These seem to fill a gap from the news publications and trade magazines to the more scholarly journals. The second chapter concerns books wholly about Thoreau or books that compare him directly to other writers such as Emerson. I have omitted Thoreau's works, with or without introductions and notes by scholars, books that deal with Thoreau in passing, as well as anthologies. The final chapter includes a listing of the dissertations and theses done by scholars since 1940. Instances where periodicals have published various poems by Thoreau, or where others have written poems in tribute to him not been listed here.

After accumulating, setting forth, and numbering these items, I have tried to group them according to their general subject matter. I have not handled or read most of these entries, but the classification of them has been made on the basis of what their titles purport the articles to be about and from brief annotations and comments made concerning them in various bibliographies and periodical indices. Appendix A should enable the student to follow a particular area of interest in the bibliography without resorting to a perusal of every item.

In Appendix B, I have catalogued the entries according to most frequently mentioned periodicals. This should help expedite matters for the inquiring student since few libraries contain all the periodicals mentioned herein.

In my efforts to accumulate these entries I have consulted forty-two bibliographical sources. The continuing bibliography by Walter Harding in the first ninety-nine numbers of The Thoreau Society Bulletin was by far the most comprehensive listing I handled. It also proved valuable for its annotations, as did his Handbook of Thoreau, in the indexing of Appendix A. Since I did not include newspaper accounts, poetry, drama, or fiction, I did not attempt to determine what entries I found missing in it. I am certain it was minimal.

In revising this work the periodical items increased from 871 to 1049. The number of books went from 56 to 86 and the dissertations and theses items jumped from 53 to 87.

APPENDIX C

In "Contribution to a Bibliography of Thoreau 1938-1945"<sup>1</sup> compiled by Philip E. Burnham and Carvel Collins, I have used fifty-six entries (from 1940-1945) and have added sixty-one more items for the same period which were not a part of that periodical list. In fairness to both men, they indicated at the outset of their compilation that it was not complete and would likely be revised later. This bibliography is, in part, an attempt at that revision. Without doubt, I, too, have overlooked some items. Those entries not included in the Burnham-Collins bibliography are listed below:

17, 33, 38, 56, 64, 73, 196, 210, 211, 213, 237, 238, 268, 303, 340, 341, 342, 343, 351, 372, 410, 422, 430, 443, 448, 451, 459, 463, 465, 466, 477, 539, 585, 586, 625, 626, 644, 655, 676, 720, 743, 753, 800, 846, 872, 899, 910, 915, 916, 924, 932, 933, 940, 947, 955, 967, 969, 977, 980, 1016, 1019, 1023.

APPENDIX C

In "Contribution to a Bibliography of Thoreau 1938-1945"<sup>1</sup> compiled by Philip E. Burnham and Carvel Collins, I have used fifty-six entries (from 1940-1945) and have added sixty-one more items for the same period which were not a part of that periodical list. In fairness to both men, they indicated at the outset of their compilation that it was not complete and would likely be revised later. This bibliography is, in part, an attempt at that revision. Without doubt, I, too, have overlooked some items. Those entries not included in the Burnham-Collins bibliography are listed below:

17, 33, 38, 56, 64, 73, 196, 210, 211, 213, 237, 238, 268, 303, 340, 341, 342, 343, 351, 372, 410, 422, 430, 443, 448, 451, 459, 463, 465, 466, 477, 539, 585, 586, 625, 626, 644, 655, 676, 720, 743, 753, 800, 846, 872, 899, 910, 915, 916, 924, 932, 933, 940, 947, 955, 967, 969, 977, 980, 1016, 1019, 1023.
