The Challenge of Change

From Europe to America, from east to west, from earth into space — Americans have responded to the challenge of change. The spirit of adventure has driven us onward to explore the unknown and often, to conquer it.

Constant reference has been made to America’s past during the Bicentennial year — we can’t help but notice the progress that has been made in technology, transportation, communication and the status of persons.

Often we are forced to face the counterparts of progress — pollution, emotional instability, the depletion of natural resources and the inhumanity of man. Much has been accomplished in America’s short history. Challenges and changes ahead will continue to test the American spirit.

“Gen. Sheridan says that he lately saw a herd of buffalo in the vicinity of Fort Hays, covering a territory ninety miles in length, and twenty-five miles in width, and estimates the number at three hundred thousand . . .” — Junction City Union, Nov. 21, 1866
The Struggle for Survival

Less than 200 years ago, the West was unexplored territory. Buffalo herds and other wild creatures roamed freely. As the white population increased, the great buffalo herds grew smaller, slaughtered by hide hunters and sportsmen. Public concern for this endangered species preserved small herds, such as the one near Hays.

For Kansans, who are accustomed to living under a bright, blue sky, the environment is becoming a major concern. Just 100 years ago, Big Creek, which sluggishly moves through the FHS campus, was described as "a stream of pure, sweet, crystal-like water." Little is presently being done to counteract this problem. However, signs posted near bare patches of ground on the FHS lawn, indicated that several students were interested in preserving the appearance of the campus.

If man does not heed nature's warning signals, he too may soon be on the endangered species list.
Striving for Equality

International Women’s Year 1975 was a year to honor women in all areas who made major contributions to world peace, equality and development.

At Fort Hays State, IWY was recognized by a two-day conference highlighted by Feminist Party founder, Florynce Kennedy. Women were encouraged to boycott places of business and wore armbands stressing the theme “Alice Doesn’t . . .” on IWY Strike Day, to prove the effect of women on the economy. Nationwide, there was too little response to be effective.

The struggle for equality included men too. FHS had its first male Homecoming queen candidate, but the queen title remained in sole possession of the females. Both males and females broke sex barrier in areas such as nursing, home economics, agriculture and industrial arts, that at one time were basically one-sex areas.

Title IX, a portion of the Education Amendments of 1972, made an impact on campus organizations and activities. According to the amendment, sexual discrimination is forbidden. Several campus honoraries were forced to go coed under Title IX.
"In the new Code of Laws . . ." wrote Abigail to John Adams in 1776, "Remember the Ladies, and be more generous to them than your ancestors. Do not put such unlimited power into the hands of the Husbands. Remember all Men would be tyrants if they could. If particular care is not paid to the Ladies we are determined to foment a Rebellion."
On June 23, 1902, the college opened with 34 students, two faculty members and 19 courses. For two years sessions were held in two old buildings on the fort grounds. In 1904 the first stone building was completed on the "flats" adjacent to Hays, and the young institution was moved to its present location.
FHS Changes, Grows

Changes — physical, environmental and academic — occurred on the Fort Hays State campus with varying degrees of importance.

The removal of the old power plant smokestack and the Merci Train, and additions to Albertson Hall gave the campus a changing face. Alumni were asked to contribute money for a campanile.

If a proposal before the Kansas legislature is passed, FHS may experience its fifth name change in 75 years. The administration, headed by new college president, Dr. Gerald Tomanek, feels this change will reflect the fact that the college has grown to "university" status. Divisions within the college, previously designated as faculties, are now the School of Arts and Sciences, the School of Education and the School of Nursing.
"In colonial days, it was quicker to send a letter from Baltimore to Boston by way of England than overland using the colonial postal system."
Words, wires, woes

"Break One Nine for a Smokey Report" was one of many new phrases which became common communication as the CB explosion climaxed in 1976. The Federal Communications Commission became so backlogged with license applications, it contemplated issuing "temporary" operator's permits in an effort to catch demand.

The telephone as a communications instrument celebrated its 100th anniversary in 1976 and Southwestern Bell asked for its largest rate hike in Kansas' history. The phone company continued to remind its customers that their friends "were only a phone call away."

Neither rain nor snow, etc., could keep the mail away — but financial problems at least slowed it down. Even raising postal rates 30 per cent did not end problems.
"The plains offer a sparse, rugged and enticing beauty of their own, a loveliness demanding a sensitive readjustment of a backpacker's perceptions to the high plains' ecology." — John Knight
The Spirit of Adventure

To fly like a bird, to race against time, to go where no man has ever gone — this is the spirit of adventure. Man has traveled by sailing ship to come to America, by covered wagon to reach the untamed West, to the moon by rocketship. Even though the vehicles for the adventurous spirits have changed, the desire of man to do the daring continues to be the norm.

There has been a trend toward a return to the adventurous life. Fort Hays State students show growing interests in activities such as backpacking in Kansas, hang gliding, ballooning, skiing, rodeo and motorcycling, just to name a few.

The change in society has brought some differences in what is considered adventurous — there are very few regions in the U.S. that man has not explored, but they are still being rediscovered by people who wish to commune with nature and live in harmony with it.
Change Recalls the Past

Remnants of the past — no society could exist without them. Authors write about them, collectors hoard them and photographers picture them as silent subjects. And from them, we learn, we change. They are reminders of the past that hold lessons which are irreplaceable. They speak of changes that come the hard ways, changes that were fought for or were slow in coming. They speak of changes that come with the inevitability of time, of life.

It is from the past that new ideas are formulated by generations who strive to learn, and create new things that will eventually become remnants of the past.
A Search for Meaning

To the men and women who faced the hardships and suffering of making a home for themselves on the plains, faith was a celebration of life. It gave them something to lean on in the hard years, a reason to be thankful in good years.

One hundred years ago, the Volga-Germans migrated from Russia and settled near Hays. They built monuments of magnificent beauty — the Cathedral of the Plains at Victoria and the Holy Cross Shrine at Pfeifer are two outstanding examples — and these monuments still rise above the western Kansas plains.

Faith is as important to Americans today as it was to our ancestors. Churches are still being built to house growing congregations, and missionary work, such as aiding Vietnamese refugees, plays a large part in the lives of many.
“To the rugged Volga-Germans nothing was more important than their Catholic faith. Upon settling, they erected a tall wooden cross in the heart of their village, where they gathered on Sundays. But life was incomplete without a church or a priest.”
1. Cheers add to the lively Oktoberfest atmosphere.
2. "Mom, We're Home" was the theme of the V.F.W. Post 39 boat.
3. Third Place: Minnie and George struggle as they head into the Creek.
4. Beer, a popular drink of the Volga Germans and college students, was sold at two beer gardens.
5. The contestant shows her style at the southerner seed-spitting contest, a new event.
6. Hays High school members sell apple strudel to raise money for an upcoming trip.
DAS OKTOBERFEST!

Oktoberfest, originally celebrated in Munich, Germany, was observed Oct. 17, in conjunction with Homecoming. Area organizations celebrated the festival by selling foods and demonstrating crafts relating to their Volga-German heritage. There were 42 booths which illustrated the arts of quilling, ceramics, rug-hooking, woodcarving and other crafts. Also included were the frontier arts of goose-plucking, harnessing and shoeing horses. Those interested took informal lessons in three German dances, the shottische, the waltz and the polka.

The National Guard Armory was the site of the Battle-of-the-Bands dance held that night. Six bands provided music for waltzers and polka dancers.
Students make 'Fantastic Voyage' through Homecoming celebration

Just as Americans took an incredible journey to the present, Fort Hays State students took a “Fantastic Voyage” through Homecoming 1975.

After weeks of preparation for the festivities, the voyage began Friday at Custer Bridge with the Tug-of-War. Participants and spectators could relax afterwards at the Back Door which received permission to reopen that day after being closed for selling beer on campus.

Students followed the snake dance to Oktoberfest where Linda Wylie, Quinter junior, was robed queen. One candidate who failed to be selected as a finalist was Irv Emig, Abilene senior. Emig, who represented Wiest Hall, was the first male to enter the contest.

Six of 23 floats in Saturday’s parade displayed the theme, “Our Nation’s Fantastic Voyage.” McMinds Hall’s entry, won the Alumni Award for the best theme portrayal.

For the first time in eight years the Tigers won their Homecoming game by defeating Pittsburg State 19-13. Comedian David Brenner appeared at halftime to crown queen Linda Wylie.

Homecoming 1975 ended with the David Brenner-Barry Manilow concert Saturday night. Both performers were well-received by the largest crowd ever at a Homecoming concert.

1. Irv Emig, Abilene senior, made FHS history by being the first male in the Homecoming queen contest. 2. Snake dancers follow FHS cheerleaders to the pep rally at Oktoberfest. 3. Linda Wylie, Quinter junior, reigned as queen over Homecoming festivities. 4. “Fantastic Voyage to a Homecoming Victory” was the theme of the Agnew Hall float, which received the Mayor’s Award. 5. Student nurses operated “The Sting,” winner of the Sweepstakes and Animation Awards. 6. “Bite-em, Tigers,” the Men’s Physical Education Club float, won the PHKSC and Merit Awards.

Madrigal Dinner guests celebrate Christmas with medieval festival

Handmade candles, tapestries and a "Book of Curtasye" set the stage for the Eleventh Annual Madrigal Dinner. Guests of the Lord and Lady of the Manor, played by Mr. and Mrs. Kent Atkins, were greeted by a traditional toast of wassail.

Entertainment was provided by the Madrigal Singers, under the direction of Dr. Donald Stout, professor of music. The Manor Musicians, a string ensemble of students, added to the medieval atmosphere. Special guests who were honored for their contributions to Fort Hays State were Dr. and Mrs. Gerald Tomanek, Dr. and Mrs. William L. Halling, and Dr. and Mrs. John D. Garwood.

The seating arrangement varied from past years with the stage and main performances located in the center of the FHS ballroom rather than at the far end.
1. Clay Alexander, Hays senior of the Memorial Union Food Service, serves wassail to Brett Musser, Phillipsburg junior. 2. Fort Hays Singers Sue Martin, Hays sophomore and Brad Printz, Junction City junior, present themselves before the Lord and Lady. 3. Lord and Lady of the Manor are Alison Atkins, professor of voice, and her husband Kent. 4. The "Book of Courtsey," being read by Rory Reed, Kiowa junior, and Kristi Lewis, Healy junior, contains nine "rules of etiquette." 5. Announcing the arrival of the Lord and Lady are trumpeters Steve Humolac, Belleville junior, Lois Vesecky, Timken senior, and Linda Richter, Great Bend sophomore. 6. The Galliard, an Old English dance, is performed by Fort Hays Singers Karol Wells, St. John junior, Dr. Donald Stout, professor of music, Keith Higgins, McCracken senior, and Paula Rothe, Bison senior.
Host families receptive to international students

Arriving in a new nation to attend college requires many adjustments. For international students coming to Fort Hays State, adjustments are eased by the 70 families participating in the host family program. These families provide a home giving students a better insight to American life.

Six units are formed by the families to plan such activities as a recent outing to Pioneer Village in Minden, Nebraska. Each spring, all of the families gather for a picnic at the Experiment Station. Recognition is given to students who are graduating and leaving the area.

Assigning students to families takes much consideration. Interests, professions and religion are a few factors considered before the chairman of the host family committee makes the assignments. As student and family better understand each other, one of the main goals of the host family program is continually being met. All are getting an education that cannot be acquired in an institution of learning.
1. Many events are shared by international students and their host families. Making snickerdoodles are Doug McDuff, Thomas Gomez, of India, Michele McDuff, Ajoy Misra, of India, and Sue, Mike and James McDuff. 2. Abba Kebbeh, a Gambian agriculture major, demonstrates the use of a milking machine. 3. Feeding cattle is another part of Abba Kebbeh’s job at the college farm. 4. International students and their host families pull together at the annual picnic, sponsored by the host family committee. 5. Mr. and Mrs. Leon Staab of Hays stand on either side of Taiwan students James and Pally Lee after their American wedding. Patty’s host family (not pictured) are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chlumsky.
Two FHS cowboys place in Intercollegiate Rodeo

Bells clanged and chips flew as the 11th annual Fort Hays State Intercollegiate Rodeo began April 30. The first go 'round in each event was held April 30 and May 1. The final go 'round was May 2.

Riders from 23 Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri colleges competed for championship belt buckles awarded for each of the seven events, and for trophies awarded for best overall man and woman in the rodeo. Fort Hays Staters Steve Hodge and Wayne Eatinger received third in the average in bronc riding and bull dogging.

People who attended Sunday's performance had the opportunity to see the truck from the TV show "Movin' On," in addition to new trucks from dealers in the area. The rodeo, usually plagued with April showers on opening night, remained dry, but unusually cold weather kept the crowd attendance low.
1. Coaxing a "wild" cow into the winner's circle is the Brain Damage Crew: Lou LeFevre, Hays graduate, Greg Schartz, Cimarron senior, and Lou Vogt, College Point, N.Y. sophomore.

2. Fort Hays Staters Kelly Wilson, Lemoyne, Neb. junior, and Bob Miller, Hays junior, compete in the team-roping event.

3. Saddle bronc riding, as demonstrated by this unknown rider, is a classic rodeo event.

5. A stubborn horse challenges the reputation of "the world's foremost animal trainer" and rodeo clown Joe Hedrick, FHS alumnus.

6. Rodeo clown Richard Osborn, Dodge City freshman, prepares to distract the bull after Alan Phipps, Matfield senior, completes his ride.
Derby Days donation surpasses previous year

Capturing derbies, dancing for 40 hours and collecting aluminum beer cans earned five participating women's teams and Sigma Chi fraternity points in the annual Derby Days April 27 through May 1. Money from the service project was donated to Wallace Village in Broomfield, Colo., for retarded children.

A 58-hour dance-a-thon held during the week saw four participants dance more than 40 hours. Local businesses donated merchandise which was auctioned. Earnings from these projects and others surpassed the fraternity's previous $500 record by $200.

Team points were accumulated by catching derbies, games held in May and a beer can collecting contest. Delta Zeta sorority received trophies for the most team points and the most points for the games.
1. McMinides and Delta Zeta participants attempt to scramble their opponents' eggs.
2. Tom Harmon, Hutchinson freshman, loses his derby to Jody Spadi, Littleton, Colo. freshman.
3. Efficient toilet paper wrapping is demonstrated by Jenell Huet, Hays freshman, and Stephanie Foster, Salina freshman, with Brad Rigor, Weskan junior, as their model.
4. Snake skinners are the Tri Sigma team which won the event.
5. Tri Sigma women add the finishing touches to Mike Heyka, Belleville freshman, in the make-up contest.
6. Cathy Tomelleri, Kansas City, Kan. freshman, and Dave Janner, Hutchinson freshman, demonstrate the style which took them through 40 hours of the dance-a-thon.
1. Residence hall women concentrate during the egg toss.
2. The taste of victory is sweet to Emily Young, Salina senior, following McMindes team's victory in the pie-eating contest.
3. Steve Curtis, Dodge City freshman, and Jeff Gimar, Hutchinson sophomore, kick off in the blindman football game.
4. Getting off to a fast start in the sprint race are Gilbert Egle, Wichita senior, Greg Issinghoff, Burlington, Iowa freshman, and Robert Douglas, Amarillo, Texas freshman.
5. Joyce Greif, Osborne freshman, and Becky Kipp, Phillipsburg junior, aid Karen Shultz, LaCrosse junior, and Robynn Ridenour, Arnold senior, in a speedy exchange for the WRA team, winners of the women's event.
6. The start of the egg rolling contest creates mixed emotions for participants.
7. Sandy Rader, Mullinville junior, was crowned 1976 Furlough Queen.
Winds chill Spring Swing; Furlough raises loan fund

Brisk April winds didn't keep nine residence hall teams from the annual Spring Swing April 24. The Residence Hall Association sponsored the event which included a tug-of-war, pie-eating contest, egg toss, egg roll, blindman football and four-legged races. New games were a spoon relay and a baby bottle beer drinking contest. A dance at Rock Haven featuring "CJSC" and a beer party at the Back Door rounded out the weekend.

Vets Club and eight McMindes Hall Council members sponsored the 13th annual Furlough May 15. The size, location and distance of the bicycle races were changed to increase funds for student loans and scholarships from the Endowment Association. Sandy Rader, representing Delta Zeta sorority, was crowned Furlough Queen.
Campus musical shows feature jazz, gymnastics

A gymnastics demonstration by James Bobo, Wichita sophomore, brought a new dimension to the Varsity Show Nov. 22 at Sheridan Coliseum. Featured in the program were the Marching Band, Tiger Debs, Collegian Chorale, Jazz Ensemble and Wind Ensemble. Groups providing lighter music were the Fort Hays Singers, Alumni Dixieland Band and the Snake Pit Seven Polka Band. The Faculty Four Barbershop Quartet was well received for its version of "My Old Fraternity Pin."

Jamey Aebersold of New Albany, Ind., was guest soloist when the Jazz Ensemble presented Home Town Cookin' VI Feb. 24. Aebersold, nationally known jazz improvisationist was featured with the Jazz Ensemble and the Johnny Chambers Trio. Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia served soft drinks to spectators at what was advertised as the "largest nightclub in the world."

1. Excerpts from the musical "Porgy and Bess" are sung by Jill Galloway, WaKeeney senior, and Gary Wilhelm, graduate assistant. 2. Freshman Lucy Ginther of Hays concentrates on her violin solo which received a standing ovation. 3. The Snake Pit Seven featuring Pete Johnson, Doyle Miller, Darrel Cox, Mike Hester, Johannah Powell, Cathy Conley, John Karlin, and Steve Leuth provide polka music for the audience at the Varsity Show. 4. Doyle Miller, Russell senior, performs "La Taccherina" with the band. 5. Trumpets blare as James Olcott, assistant professor of music and Brad Dawson, Russell junior, are featured with the Jazz Ensemble at Home Town Cookin'. 6. "Corie" was performed by Jamey Aebersold guest soloist from New Albany, Ind. 7. Rhythm is provided by James Chamberlain, Hays sophomore.

"With God's help we accept the challenge."

—President Gerald Tomanek
April 11, 1976
“You are but elevating an old friend well known to all of us, who has had a great deal to do with the development of this institution.”

— Governor Robert Bennett

“Because the faculty is the segment of the college which possesses the greatest continuity, we pledge our support, our expertise and our commitment.”

— Dan Rupp, Faculty Senate president

“The student body sees that the largest of your responsibilities is to make Fort Hays State known. It will be your responsibility to fight for Fort Hays State.”

— Lyle Shlab, Student Body president

“The torch of leadership has been passed to you. May you carry it ever forward, secure in the knowledge that you are not alone.”

— Darrell Scoble, Alumni Assn. president

“By education and by training, Dr. Tomanek brings to Fort Hays State a talent for administration and a sense of the adventure to be found in research and instruction. Thus, he assumes the presidency as a leader in the quest for knowledge, as one unafraid to break new paths and to explore the unknown.”

— M. Prudence Hutton, Board of Regents chairperson
FHS is familiar territory to 7th college president

Accepting the post as Fort Hays State's seventh president, Dr. Gerald Tomanek was officially installed at a ceremony in his honor April 11.

As president, Dr. Tomanek plans to emphasize expansion and improvement of college facilities and programs. Continuing adult education, new classroom facilities for humanities and nursing education and college farm additions will be areas of concentration in the near future.

Tomanek also recognized the fact that FHS faculty salaries are $2,000 below peer institutions and pledged to work with the Board of Regents and legislature in eliminating this inequity.

Beginning his career at FHS in 1946 as an instructor, Tomanek later held positions as chairman of the Department of Biological Sciences, chairman of the Department of Natural Sciences and Mathematics and Vice-president of Academic Affairs. He was named acting president in October 1975 after illness forced Dr. John Gustad to resign.
1. The new president has been associated with PHS from the time he was a student to the present. 2. President Tomanek presents the 1976 Fort Hays State budget to the Board of Regents. 3. Doing what comes naturally, Tomanek discusses grassland management to summer school students. 4. Dr. Gerald W. Tomanek assumes the office of college president.
Ron Pflughof, executive assistant to the president: "Today is not the time for pessimistic withdrawal, nor, for that matter, even well guarded optimism. Today, we need aggressive optimism in higher education."

Walter Keating, vice-president for administration and finance: "Fort Hays State is challenged to make changes in its patterns for offering training and education. Changes are required in method as well as course content to serve a greater segment of our community."

James Kellerman, registrar: "I was glad to see the employment of an assistant director of admissions enabling our office to have total responsibility for the admission of students. Formerly, this was a cooperative effort between the registrar and director of field service."
Administrative assistants face presidential change

Lois Lee Myerly, administrative assistant to the president: “The immediate past year has been a challenging one for personnel in the office of the president, with constant change the dominant theme.”

Dr. John Garwood, acting vice president for academic affairs: “The degree of excellence a college or university achieves depends, for the most part, upon faculty. Institutional facilities and the quality of the incoming student population play a part in determining levels of excellence. Quality of faculty also is all important and the degree of excellence of faculty, in turn, influences the quality of students attracted to the institution.”
Deans express positive views toward activities

Dr. Bill Jellison, dean of students: “My observation of the students over the years causes me to believe that students are more involved with all aspects of the college. They are researching to create new programs and increase education offerings; this shows they are really a part in education decision making at FHS.”

Earl Hobbs, associate dean of students: “Never have our students had more opportunity for involvement in the myriad of facets of campus life at FHKSC. It is through such experiences in and outside the classroom that total exposure is possible. Historically, only a small cross-section of our student body has assumed the positions of leadership. These opportunities are available to all students as an integral part of the total educational program at the college. When change is successful, we can look back and call it growth.”
Ralph Huffman, dean of continuing education: “I was named dean of continuing education last July and since then, the office has had its main thrust in academic outreach. The office serves as a continuing education program for professional groups in the area as well as a liaison office for correspondence study courses.”

Dr. Jimmy Rice, dean of the graduate faculty: “During the past year, our unit designation has been changed from that of Graduate Faculty to Graduate School. This is appropriate and is consistent with other name changes across the campus. This has been a year of notable increase in two significant areas of our program. Our graduate enrollment was 1,039 last fall, compared to 576 two years ago. Also, our graduate faculty continues to grow and now numbers 125 — having doubled in size the last eight years.”

Jean Stouffer, associate dean of students: “An area of change which I have noticed especially concerns the attitude and outlook of women students. In general, they are more aware of the need for equal treatment whether in athletics, residence hall policies or job interviews. They are concerned about supporting such legislation as the Equal Rights Amendment. There is more interest in the varied roles for women with the need for fair and equal treatment in the role of her choice.”
Special services operate to assist campus activities

The Alumni Assn. maintained contact with FHS graduates through the Alumni News, provided activities at Homecoming and held regional meetings.

A fund drive to build five buildings at the college farm took place early in the fall semester. The 4,000 acre ranch provided practical agriculture experience and laboratory facilities.

Student Health Service provided 24-hour counseling, dispensary treatment and emergency care. Hays physician, Dr. Ralph E. Bula, kept office hours during mornings to diagnose and treat student illnesses.

Financial affairs were managed by Walter Manteuffel, comptroller. Responsibilities included heading the accounting department, handling classified staff records, preparing the payroll and maintaining retirement records.
1. Sally Ward, executive secretary of the Alumni Assn., maintains communication with college graduates. 2. Student Health Service nurses Kathy Douglas, Ruth Joy and Karen Allen, and Dr. Ralph E. Bula provide medical care for student illnesses and injuries. 3. Walter Manteuffel, comptroller, keeps careful check on college business records. 4. Don Van Campe, beef herdsman and Dr. John McGaugh, farm superintendent spring semester, inspects the Charolais bull donated to FHS by Curt Rodgers, Platte City, Mo. 5. Dr. Duane Sharp, farm superintendent fall semester, supervises Don Van Campe with cattle vaccination and treatment.
Various academic offices make life easier at FHS

The various academic special services aided students in entering college, staying here, and leaving to become members of an increasingly educated society. Among these services is the Student Financial Aids Office. Students were able to receive financial aid in a number of ways, including National Direct Student Loans, Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants, and the Work-Study Program. These three programs aid nearly 1,500 students, distributing over $760,000.

With an operating budget of $1.6 million, the Housing Office provided on-campus housing for over 30 per cent of the student body, or nearly 1,500 people. James Nugent, housing director, said that students living in residence halls and Wooster Place will see a 10 per cent inflationary increase in fees for 1976-77.

The Placement Office brought 100 different businesses to FHS and the same number of school district representatives to conduct interviews. These numbers represent a substantial increase from years past. At the end of the school year the office had 1,400 people registered, including the same number of recent graduates as alumni. The office noted a difficulty in getting students to apply for jobs listed in the office.

1. Secretary Zelma Farr, explains general education requirements to Donald Hart, Victoria high school senior. 2. Mary Jo Braun, Walker sophomore, looks at a pamphlet about a regional community college, in regard to job opportunities. The bulletin board, which lists current jobs available, is a service the Placement Office offers. 3. A residence hall room is only as dull as you make it. Jeff Temple, Hill City freshman’s make-shift bunk bed in West Hall, is a good example of what an active imagination can create. 4. The Student Financial Aid Office provides a variety of jobs for students in need of the extra income. Work-study job holder Randy Faust, Topeka freshman, answers a question asked by Craig Winter, Hays graduate student, at the reserve desk in Forsyth Library. 5. Karla Gottschalk, Hays senior, takes advantage of the student health service. Ruth Joy, registered nurse, routinely checks blood pressure.

Endowment Assn. funds benefit college, students

In an inflationary period in history, the Endowment Association plays an essential role in the life of many FHS students. The Fort Hays Kansas State College Endowment Association is a non-profit corporation organized in 1945 to receive and administer grants, contracts, gifts and bequests for the benefit of the college. In the past thirteen years, total income of new private monies was $1,639,141. Nearly $1.3 million was used for student scholarships and awards, short- and long-term loans and campus jobs. By using much of its capital in matching loan programs, more than 14,000 student assists have been made possible.

An Emergency Loan Fund was established this year allowing students to obtain $25, $50 or $100 short-term loans at a low rate of interest. The association is in charge of collecting funds for the construction of the carillon and campanile to be dedicated during the college’s 75th anniversary in 1977. The college farm building project comes under the association’s direction also.

All gifts can be earmarked by the donor for specific uses. Many donors do not restrict their gift in order that financial assistance can be used where the need is the greatest.

1. The grounds department is responsible for the upkeep of the entire campus. Homer Groff, an employe of the department manicures the lawn near the Memorial Union. 2. Kim Curtis, St. John senior, and Steve Sprague, Memorial Union banquet coordinator, serve lunch to a student in the Union cafeteria line. 3. Hubert Dinkel, an employe of the campus physical plant, makes a routine meter check. 4. The Promenade Gallery in the Memorial Union provides a service for the artists who wish to display their work. Connie Jobe, Jetmore senior, observes a student art show in the gallery. 5. Visitors of all ages enjoy Sternberg Museum’s many attractions. A sixth grade class from St. Mary’s grade school in Ellis, are awed by the preserved Kodiac bear. 6. The Data Processing Center offers services to the school ranging from test grading to tallying election results. A member of the data processing crew operates a key punch machine.
Retiring faculty members compile 111 years at FHS

The Faculty Association recognized the retirement of four FHS faculty members at a dinner in their honor. Dr. Harold Choguill, professor of chemistry, joined the faculty in 1946, served 25 years as department chairman and 13 years as physical sciences chairman. He was the recipient of the Outstanding Educator of America Award, the FHS Torch Award, and is a member of many professional and honorary societies.

Dr. Paul Graber, professor of German, was a 1932 graduate of St. Olaf College in Minnesota. Before he came to FHS in 1955, he was a Fulbright teacher in Innsbruck, Austria, and taught in junior and senior high schools.

Harold "Hal" Palmer, professor of music, made an outstanding contribution to the instrumental heritage of western Kansas and FHS during his 29 years of service. He founded the High Plains Band Camp and served as its director until 1974. Palmer's most recent honor was his election to the Kansas Music Educators Hall of Fame.

Dr. Verna Parish, professor of English, came to Fort Hays State in 1946. She served as English Department chairman for 14 years. Dr. Parish was named Outstanding Educator of America and was selected FHS outstanding faculty woman of the year in 1973.

School of Education

Dr. LaVier Staven, dean of education: "I feel that the recent change in college organization from 'faculties' to 'schools' provides the School of Education with a clearer identity as to its purpose and role. That is, providing students an opportunity to prepare themselves for a life-long career."
FHS special ed. program records 10th anniversary

Expanded course offerings seemed to occupy a large amount of attention in the Education Department, noted Dr. LaVier Staven, department chairman.

The special education program received over $30,000 in federal and state grants and marked its 10-year anniversary by hosting a two-day conference during the spring semester. Other conferences were held in October and January. The conferences brought over 200 educators and many nationally known speakers to campus.

A comprehensive staff development project for Head Start personnel in southwestern Kansas was jointly developed by FHS and the Bureau of Child Research at the University of Kansas.

The reading service encouraged college students to improve classroom work through developing better reading skills. The service also provided tutoring. Education majors with an interest in analysis and correction of reading disabilities, worked with young students and diagnosed problems under supervision.

Three international tours were offered through the elementary education section. During the summer, classes in outdoor education provided a relaxed atmosphere conducive to meaningful learning. Another service included the Learning Center, a co-op education program which was designed to assist pre-school and migrant children during summer sessions.

Graduate students had an opportunity for the first time to start the first year of a doctorate degree while at FHS through a cooperative program with Kansas State University. Education graduate students had opportunities for further education through renewal of a teaching certificate, staff development to improve teaching and study in a specialist or master's degree program.

2. Dr. LaVier Staven, department chairman, teaches classes in addition to his responsibilities as acting dean of education.

3. Video taping allows secondary school students to study their ability to present lectures.

4. Individualized study for elementary students is one of the newest teaching experiences. Marcia Leon, as most student teachers, finds it ideal for elementary students, but time doesn’t always allow for individual study.

5. Dr. William Powers, associate professor of education, demonstrates how to use teaching machines.
1. Nancy Zink learns in the Food Experimentation Laboratory that accurate measurement is important for a tasty product. 2. Glenn Ginther, associate professor of industrial arts, explains a practical method to Dusty Booth in Woodworking Materials and Processes. 3. Dr. Richard Cain, industrial arts department chairman, shows Chris Bailey and Roger Oswald how to clean the letter press during Teaching Construction of Industrial Arts. 4. Maxine Hoffman, home economics department chairman, helps Carol Donnell and Marcia Yost prepare a clothing assignment. 5. Typically one-sex depts. draw opposites to areas

Signs of changing times were apparent in the Home Economics Department as three males majored in the field. Other men were enrolled in home economic courses which related to other majors.

Chief student career line interests included the department's clothing retail option and the vocational teaching certificate option. The American Dietetics Assn. approved the department's dietetics program. The state workshop for home economics organizations was sponsored by the department.

Powder Puff Mechanics attracted about 60 women to the Industrial Arts Department during the fall semester. Because of the interest shown by female students, the course will be offered again.

Emphasis was placed on consumer knowledge and vocational skills in this year's industrial arts program.
HPER Department starts new recreation program

Because of the increasing interest expressed by a number of students, the Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, laid the groundwork for a new program to begin the fall of 1976. The new emphasis will prepare students for careers related to recreation, and will require course work in a number of areas including speech, literature, journalism, natural sciences, social sciences, art and theater.

The department saw a healthy increase in its enrollment, including many junior college transfers. More than 46,000 people used the Gross Memorial Coliseum-Cunningham Hall facilities, not including normal class usage. It is anticipated that this figure will continue to increase.

Library Science stresses continuing ed. program

Emphasis in the Library Science Department was placed on continuing education with the addition of night and Saturday classes for commuters.

Martha Dirks was the lone teacher in the department which had an enrollment of nearly 50. The curriculum prepares students for certification as school librarians.

The completion of the library basement, which includes office space, Library Science classrooms and the audiovisual center, and the acquisition of a machine which photo copies microfilm, offered students a more complete service. The library staff conducted tours for different high school and college classes on request.

Art Department expands to include BFA degree

The Art Department broadened its program by adding a bachelor of fine arts degree. The BFA, a professional 70-hour major of art, is offered in conjunction with the normal 45-hour bachelor of arts degree.

In November, Fort Hays State hosted the First National Small Painting, Drawing and Print Exhibition. "The geographical location of Fort Hays State does not always permit students to be aware of the mainstream of creativity today. For this reason the Department of Art has felt for some time the need of a major exhibition such as the Kansas First National," said John C. Thorns, Art Department chairman.

Besides the courses normally associated with art — ceramics, crafts, painting, watercolor and sculpture — the department offered more unique courses such as bronze metal casting, printmaking and lithography.

Dept. co-hosts musicians, makes change in faculty

Permanent and temporary faculty changes took place in the Music Department. John Huber was acting department chairman while Dr. Leland Bartholomew took a sabbatical leave to research Renaissance music. Cecil Lotief replaced Dr. Richard Collins in piano and Timothy Fensler, Gary Wilhelm, Mary Lee Warner and Ray Foster filled in part-time or temporary teaching positions.

Performing groups presented concerts each semester and majors and non-majors were encouraged to participate in Concert Choir, Fort Hays State Singers, Collegiate Chorale, Band, Civic Symphony, String Ensemble, Clarinet Choir, Brass Choir, Jazz Ensemble and Recorder Ensemble.

The Symphonic Band was selected to perform the opening concert for the State Convention of the Kansas Music Educators Assn. held in February at Wichita. The group received a standing ovation for its performance.

The department co-hosted concerts which brought major chamber music ensembles to campus.
Two new degrees favor English-journalism area

The English Department created a two-year master's program to benefit in-service teachers. The program assumes certain activities only need to be performed by English graduate students during summer session. Reading assignments and writing can be done at home during fall and spring semesters. The original master's program was retained, however.

Noticeable growth took place as there was an 11.7 per cent increase at the lower division level, 35 per cent at the upper division level and 126.4 per cent at the graduate level and a growth of 24.5 per cent in students majoring in English.

Dr. Verna Parish retired after completing 30 years teaching at FHS. She served as department chairman for 14 years.

Journalism developed the Bachelor of General Studies degree guidelines for interested students. The program promotes journalism classes and encourages a broad liberal arts background.

Journalism brought more than 250 high school students to campus for both the annual Journalism Day in October and the Kansas Scholastic Press Association regional writing contest in February.

Faculty members in journalism also managed the college News Bureau which relayed events to local and student hometown media. Advisers for student publications were Dave Adams, Reveille, and Mike Walker, State College Leader.

Speech pathology clinic adds two therapy rooms

The Speech Department toured western Kansas in the form of "Golliwhoppers," a children's theatre production consisting of old American folk fables. "Golliwhoppers" was offered as a Problems in Speech course and was co-sponsored by the Northwestern Kansas library system. The class was directed by Dr. Suzanne Trauth, who was new to the faculty in the fall.

Two new therapy rooms and a work room were added to the speech pathology clinic enabling the staff to work with more clients. A soundproof audiology booth was also installed allowing more accurate audiological testing. The speech pathology division was headed by Dr. Charles Wilhelm, professor of speech.

The radio and television division continued to provide both audio and audio-visual programming through CCTV Channel 12 and KFHS radio. Jack Heather, professor of speech, is CCTV director.

Fund raising for the college farm was the major project in the Agriculture Department. The five proposed buildings needed at the farm will cost $90,000 but the state only provided $24,000. About 16,000 alumni were urged to contribute to this fund.

The department's judging teams in animal science posted an improved record over several past years.

The Foreign Language Department installed a new language laboratory to improve the present facilities. The $24,000 unit provided the latest equipment which aided students learning foreign languages.

Dr. Roman Kuchar became acting department chairman during the absence of Dr. Paul Graber who became ill early in the fall semester. Dr. Kuchar later assumed the position of department chairman when Dr. Graber resigned his title.

In addition to their teaching load, the faculty kept active in the department by participating in conferences, judging contests, Language Club activities and speaking to other classes about specific countries and authors.

The department expanded offerings to the community through mini-courses. Programs were set up for people who could not attend regular classes due to jobs or travel.

Biologists obtain grants; FHS adds chemistry labs

Scientists from throughout the nation were invited to Fort Hays State to present lectures for the Biology Department. Topics ranged from "Heritable Wildness in Pheasants," to "Musical Bestiality (or Animals in Music)."

The department was one of 183 recipients of research grants awarded by the National Science Foundation. In April, FHS was the site of the 23rd annual meeting of the Southwestern Assn. of Naturalists, a convention of biologists from the Southeastern United States.

The Chemistry Department was forced to "double up" on lab space during Albertson Hall's remodeling which, when completed, provided two newly furnished laboratories.

There was a trend of students specializing in the health facet of chemistry. Consequently, the department planned to add a bio-chemist to the faculty to replace Dr. Harold Choguill who retired after serving nearly 30 years at FHS. Dr. Choguill was department chairman from 1951 through 1972 when Dr. Max Rumpel, current department chairman, assumed the position.
Petroleum companies and several alumni responded to the Geology Department's request for scholarship money by donating $2,500.

The department completed plans to participate in a summer field camp program with Kansas State University and Wichita State University. This is the only program serving three regional institutions which have common purposes.

The number of geology majors increased by 10 per cent and there was a 10 per cent overall increase in students taking geology classes. Mini-courses had 275 students enrolled and advanced geology classes took extensive trips to Colorado, Utah, eastern Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, Texas and Missouri.

The Math Department hosted several conferences during the year. High school seniors were invited to FHS for Mathematics Day to compete for scholarships and to quiz out of basic courses. The Everett Marshall Scholarship was given for the first time to the winner of Mathematics Day.

The Mathematics Assn. of America (Kansas conference) was also held here. Dr. Elton Beougher, department chairman, served as president and Ellen Veed, assoc. professor of math, was secretary of the organization. Community college math instructors met on campus for a spring conference.

Tony Powers and Fred Haas review the flow chart used for programming computers. 5. Dr. Michael Nelson, geology department chairman, locates fossils found in Albertson Hall’s native limestone rock, for Ted Fritz, Ed Hersher and Janice Thielen. 6. Out-of-state field trips enable geology majors to examine noted geological areas.

Philosophy Dept. begins two-year degree program

The Physics Department gave students the opportunity to leave their earthly troubles temporarily, through a modular course in star gazing. The observatory was also open to organizations interested in astronomy. Department Chairman Maurice Witten taught continuing education classes at Lyons and Larned in elementary source programs.

Barbara Broeckelman, Grinnell senior majoring in economics, received a graduate fellowship amounting to approximately $4,000 annually from the Department of Economics at Oklahoma State University. The fellowship is renewable for three years. The Economics Department co-sponsored Business Week in March.

The Philosophy Department offered a two-year Associate of Arts degree program for the first time and hosted a summer seminar which discussed Kierkegaard, one of the earliest existentialist philosophers. The course was taught by Dana Radcliffe, a visiting instructor.
Class blends art, travel; business degrees change

A history class entitled “Art and Artists of the Old West” combined art, history and travel. Class members toured the Gilcrease Institute of Western Art and History, Tulsa, Okla.; Cowboy Hall of Fame, Oklahoma City; and Joslyn Art Museum, Omaha, Neb., to view collections of early American art. Each student then prepared a slide presentation featuring the work of either one artist or a collection of artists of the Old West.

After FHS was named a Bicentennial College, a committee was formed to plan activities commemorating the nation’s history. Dr. James Forsythe, History Department chairman, headed the committee.

With the Board of Regent’s approval, the Business Department changed the graduate program from the master’s of science degree to master’s of business administration degree. This change, plus the upgrading of admission requirements, places FHS’ graduate business program in line with most business schools in the nation.

For the first time, the department offered the associate of science degree in secretarial science and awaits the Board of Regents’ approval of an A.S. in data processing. A 10 per cent enrollment increase in the Business Department accounted for a large proportion of the college’s total enrollment.

Dept. hosts Model U.N.; internships give training

Women showed an increasing interest in political science this year, as they comprised more than a fourth of the department's total enrollment. Fourteen FHS political science students took part in the Model United Nations at St. Louis in March. The conference familiarized students with diplomatic procedures by letting them play the roles of delegations of nations represented in the actual United Nations.

The Political Science Department, also sponsored a Model U.N. for area high schools in the fall.

The Sociology Department offered an internship program for which students received credit hours for working in social work agencies, hospitals, adoption agencies, transitional living programs, probation or parole offices. The credit requirement was fulfilled by working during the semester, intersession or in the summer.

Professor’s chair gets international showing

Citing increased enrollment, Psychology Department Chairman Roy Connally termed the year a success. Funds were appropriated to remodel the old wing of Wiest Hall to include the “first adequate psychology center since 1934,” Connally added.

The Ryabik-Farrall chair, an invention of James Ryabik, associate professor of psychology, will be shown during the summer in Paris, France, and Chicago. The chair is an objective monitoring device used to measure the activity in normal and hyperactive children and is designed with a “beeper” which provides auditory feedback to the child.

In April, the department sponsored its third annual research awards program. Dr. Thomas Budzynski, assistant clinical professor of psychology at the University of Colorado Medical Center, gave a presentation on biofeedback programs for tension-related ailments.

School of Nursing

Elinor Lounsberry, dean of nursing: “The past year has brought the School of Nursing closer to its goals of offering more options to students in the program, providing more services to clients in the community and extending the baccalaureate opportunity to more registered nurses. We are proud of the accomplishments of our graduates toward meeting the health care needs of today's society. Guided by the past, we are shaping the future.”
Purchase of van initiates Outreach for area nurses

The School of Nursing admitted more students to the nursing major than ever before, raising the number in the first level from 60 to 72.

A major addition to the school was a van which allowed the beginning of Outreach into surrounding counties. This program established health screening clinics. It also provided a traveling classroom which aided registered nurses in obtaining a baccalaureate degree while staying in their home areas.

The school had contracts with 22 health care agencies in which students gained experience as they developed the intellectual and technical knowledge of nursing. Hospitals, nursing homes, community clinics, day care centers, area schools and private homes were sites of clinical laboratories.

This year marked the completion of the transition into the new curriculum. Individualization of the nursing program encouraged the student to take responsibilities and leadership demanded by the health-care needs of the public. The self-pacing curriculum allows students to finish their degree early if they so desire.

Living off campus brings many new experiences

For those FHS students who prefer to find housing off campus, there are several available options. After the freshman year of school when all out-of-town students are required to live in a residence hall, many opt for more personal and private surroundings. Students choosing this option, whether single or married, may rent or buy houses, apartments or mobile homes. The Housing Office keeps a listing of available facilities, and interested students may obtain this list and follow it up for their personal needs.

There are both pros and cons to living off campus. In a dormitory, meals are fixed and served, and laundry facilities are close by. Off campus, many students cook their own meals and use laundromats in town. But off campus, there is more privacy, less noise, and those students can eat whatever they want whenever they want. Many students feel these things outweigh the inconveniences.
1. Kent Fuller, Smith Center sophomore, adjusts his stereo headphones for better listening pleasure.
2. "They just seem to pile up!" is the excuse of many off campus students who would rather do other things than dishes.
3. With finals week fast approaching, Pam Hammond, Larned sophomore, settles down to serious studying.
4. Julie Sanders, Hutchinson junior, and Dave Shields, Salina sophomore get together for some "pickin' and strummin'."
5. Ralph Stepp, Smith Center senior, prepares to attack a stack of dirty dishes.
1. The ten Miss McMinides contestants line up for the judges before the final choice is made.
2. Beth Beougher, Grinnell freshman, prepares to assist as Anita Miller, Elkhart freshman, returns a volley in an intramural volleyball game.
3. Paper products are used by students eating in McMinides Hall cafeteria during the dishwasher shutdown.
4. Sally Streck, Great Bend junior, is all smiles after being crowned the new Miss McMinides.
5. Kathy Clarke, Medicine Lodge freshman, performs a piano solo during the McMinides United Fund telethon.
6. Jill Reitz, Medicine Lodge sophomore, fills in the $200 mark at the telethon.
FHS recognition follows McMindes Hall UF drive

"Oh no, not another fire drill! It's 4 a.m.!", "Keep it down! It's quiet hours!", "Free popcorn, come and get it!", "Last one to my room gets thrown in the shower!", Cries like these and many others filled the McMindes Hall corridors throughout the year. Popcorn parties, panty raids, candlelightings and fire drills were all a part of the lighter side of residence hall living.

But residence hall living was not all fun and games. Often the serious side prevailed. In order to raise money for the United Fund campaign, the women held a "telethon" for one day. The slogan "Buddy Can You Spare a Dollar?" was used, and each McMindes resident was asked to contribute that amount. As a result of the $440.42 collected, FHS was named "School of the Month" in December.

A major problem developed in the cafeteria in October when spotted plates and glasses received the attention of several students. Tests were run on the glasses, and several forms of infectious bacteria were found on them. The problem was remedied when the dishwasher was fixed, and the dishes underwent a sterilization process. In the meantime, food was served on paper plates.
Women celebrate spring at parties, dances, games

McMines Hall women played an active role in most of the spring activities held on campus.

During the Sigma Chi Derby Days, the women placed third in the overall competition. McMines Hall Council sponsored two teams for Furlough, and a group of women participated in Spring Swing activities.

The Spring Informal was held late in April, with the band "Blue Earth" performing. Over 100 couples turned out for the event.

An end of the year party, on Monday of finals week, was sponsored by McMines Hall Council. Skits introduced the 1976-77 officers. Ingredients for do-it-yourself ice cream sundaes were provided by the Dairy Queen.
1. Make-it-yourself ice cream sundaes were the highlight at the McMinides Hall finals party. Noella Johnson, Johnstown, Pa. sophomore, anticipates the next strawberry lover.

3. De Zadel, Athol sophomore, escorts "Raving" Reva Benien, Norton sophomore, who is preparing herself mentally for a musical number at the McMinides Hall finals party talent show.

Dances, dinners involve many Wiest Hall males

Wiest Hall residents were on the move, providing many opportunities for entertainment throughout the year. As the largest residence hall on campus, its close to 600 residents were able to put some new ideas into action.

A chili feed and a Rocky Mountain oyster feed were held on two Sundays when regular contract meals were not served.

Bridge lessons were given to anyone interested for seven Monday nights during second semester.

The annual Polka Party was held early first semester with students from every resident hall attending.
1. Oluseye Yerokun, Chicago, Ill., graduate student, has time between classes to read about current events in the Wiest Hall lobby.

2. Blond Farmer, Russell sophomore, sets up a Saturday night date.

4. Dean Speaks, Beloit freshman uses his spare time to convert his room into more personal surroundings.

5. Ron Dinkel, Grainfield freshman, takes time to relax and read a newspaper.

6. Studying is a part of Ellinwood freshman Henry Koelsch's schedule.
Gambling games intrigue Wiest Hall participants

Wiest Hall men continued with spring traditions and introduced some new events.

The annual Casino Night in May had more than 200 men participating. Players bet in common Casino games such as roulette and blackjack, and were able to use their winnings at an auction for records, T-shirts and other prizes.

A Road Rally was held for the first time in May, with fifteen teams participating. The purpose of the Rally was to test the team's driving abilities with a driver and a navigator trying to find the quickest and safest way to get through the course. David Baker, Haddam, Neb. freshman, and Lance LeWallan, Winona freshman, were the first place winners, and received $20 each for their efforts. Women's teams were also allowed to compete, and two Agnew women claimed third place.
Crapshooters Gary Hardman, Salina junior, and Rita Williams, Wallace junior, await the roll of the dice.

Neighbors Tim Feldkamp, Bremen junior, and John Olinger, Hugoton senior, find a desk a good perch for discussing a homework assignment.

Afternoon naps are revived at the college level when late night parties and early classes are the norm.

Scott Westrup, Wilmore freshman, contemplates a bid, while Richard Booher, Salina freshman, rakes in the cards.

Larry Koster, Cawker City junior, avoids studying to make a list of things to take home.

At the blackjack table, Rory Reed, Kiowa sophomore, has many tricks up his sleeves.
McGrath Hall men seize football, basketball titles

McGrath Hall made newspaper headlines when several McGrath men harbored a fugitive in their room overnight. The 15-year-old boy claimed to have been left behind after Senior Day. The McGrath men discovered the boy had eluded police and was wanted in two states. They persuaded him to turn himself into the Hays Police Department later that day.

Sports events played a major part in McGrath activities. Intramural participants capture the first place trophy in the Residence Hall League basketball and football competition. Funds were appropriated for new sports equipment.

McGrath residents approved 24-hour visitation on a trial basis.

Agnew Hall’s residents greet new houseparents

Agnew Hall residents began the school year by bringing in new houseparents, Barb and Frank Leo, and their daughter Lindsey.

When the question of 24-hour visitation came up, several residents were in favor of it, and started a petition. More than half the residents signed it, but the issue never came to a vote.

A large controversy occurred when the Agnew Hall staff adopted a policy, without the consent of the residents, to enforce the 10 p.m. curfew presently in effect. Women caught with males in their rooms, or escorting them out the side doors after hours were given the option of paying a $10 fine, or giving up their privilege key. This policy was later rescinded, and a judicial board was set up to determine a punishment for rule breakers.

One Agnew resident commented that “the girls are growing less conservative, and are demanding more representation in deciding dorm policies.”

Holiday parties were popular. At Thanksgiving, a large dinner was sponsored, complete with guitar entertainment by Angie Reuber, a resident in Agnew. Christmas and Valentine’s Day parties were also held.

Big Back Door beer ban brings bahs from boozers —

Astro-Turf, a fire, and the sale of beer held the interest of Custer Hall residents.

Residents took steps to enhance the appearance of FHS's only co-ed hall, which led to the appropriation of funds for new Astro-Turf to cover the sun deck. The men and women gave their time for the scraping, painting and installation of the turf.

Custer Hall's private enterprise, the Back Door was the main factor in encouraging the passing of the sale of beer on campus. When the Board of Regents passed the bill, the Back Door, as well as the Union, began selling beer.

Determined residents worked all day to clean up the Back Door after an early morning fire so they could open it that night.

A problem that confronted Custer Hall was the faulty sewer system. If new facilities had not been installed, residents would have been forced to go to neighboring residence halls for showers and bathroom needs.

One of the big events at Custer Hall this year was a Thanksgiving dinner that was prepared by the residents. The cooking was done in Wiest Hall and carried to the Back Door. Both men and women combined their cooking talents to make homemade rolls and pies to go along with the traditional turkey dinner.
Low income apartments aid 84 student families

Family housing facilities, the Wooster Place Apartments adjacent to the FHS campus, house the bulk of young married students. Wooster Place is designed to provide convenient housing at the lowest possible cost for year-around occupancy by 84 families. Besides the close location to campus, residents are provided with playground equipment, a laundromat and reserved parking areas.

Prospective residents have to apply eight to twelve months ahead of time, but still may be put on a waiting list. Married students who can’t get in to Wooster Place seek housing such as trailer courts, Epworth Village and other off-campus apartments.

Organizations schedule living area activities

Panhellenic Council and Interfraternity Council act as unifying groups to coordinate Greek activities among the four sororities and seven fraternities at FHS. Composed of representatives from each fraternity and sorority, the major objectives of these groups include developing a working relationship between the Greeks through rush, exchange suppers, parties and other combined activities.

Residence Hall Assn., formerly Interhall Council, was established so that students from each resident hall would become better acquainted. Representatives from each resident hall were chosen and an office was set up in McNindes Hall so that residents could make suggestions for improvements within the halls. RHA sponsored a formal dance in November and Spring Swing weekend in April.
Alpha Gam housemother arrives as Christmas gift

The Alpha Gamma Delta's welcomed a new housemother, Virginia Saunders at Christmas. Approximately 40 girls were active members during the 1975-76 academic year.

Several members helped lead the Alpha Gam's in various activities during the year. President Fern Tittle, Vice-Presidents Jane Ann Rogers and Pam Hyde, Recording Secretary Lynn Strickler, and Treasurer Meleesa Graff were involved in organizing a skating party and International Reunion Day dinner for alumni and the undergraduates.

Derby Day contests, Christmas and spring formals, intramural programs, and informal Halloween Bewitching Ball, and the March of Dimes walk-a-thon were among the group's other activities.
AKΛ breakfast includes eggs, bacon, beer menu

“Spring Splash,” an all-night event, involved Alpha Kappa Lambda alumni and collegiate members attending the Holiday Inn dinner, a pre-party, a dance and a post-party at the Ramada Inn. Eggs, bacon and beer were on the menu at the Beer Breakfast held at the Red Coat Restaurant. Alpha Gamma Delta women were guests at the early morning pajama party.

In March, a new housemother, June White, moved into the house. Trick or treating for UNICEF was an AKL service project. Other activities included a “Go to Hell” party and a Christmas party. The fraternity participated in all intramural action and tied for second in the all-Greek softball competition.

‘Shoot the Moon’ entry captures humor award

The “humor award” was given to the Delta Sigma Phi Homecoming float entry entitled “Shoot the Moon, Tigers.” A Delta Sigma Phi member wore a gorilla suit while a tiger was in position for kicking a football on the winning float.

In addition to having a Homecoming dance, a “Sailor’s Ball” was held in the fall and “The Sphinx” was a spring informal theme. Char Doyle was voted Sweetheart of Delta Sigma Phi. Officers of the fraternity included Bill Ashmore, Syracuse senior, president; Dale Young, Salina senior, vice-president; Ray Shaheen, Osborne senior, secretary; Randy Kelly, Greensburg junior, treasurer; and Steve Thompson, Geneseo senior, sergeant-at-arms.
Sorority highlights year by acquiring new house

Delta Zeta sorority highlighted its year with the purchase of a new house at 410 W. 6th Street. It will be ready for DZ occupants in the fall of 1976.

The sorority's philanthropies included collecting for the United Fund, the bike-a-thon for H. B. Reed Center, the canned food drive with the Sigma Chi men, and the bowl-a-thon with Phi Sigma Epsilon, for the Day Care Center for Exceptional Children.

Individual honors included Sandy Stenzel, Student Body vice-president; Ginni Hammer, junior class vice-president; Linda Wylie, 1975 Homecoming Queen; Lorri Grabbe, Delta Zeta scholarship winner; Chris Gaiter, Senior Assistantship for Special Education recipient; Chris Gaiter, Lorri Grabbe, Linda Mans and Denise York, Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities; and Pam Williams, Tiger Deb Leader.

Phi Sigs remodel house; ΣΤΓ wins basketball title

The members of Phi Sigma Epsilon had a busy and industrious year remodeling their house. Each individual, both actives and pledges were assigned individual painting and repair work for the completion of the house.

In the intramural action, Ron Johnson and Jim Fry captured the all-school championship in horseshoe pitching competition. In bowling, the Phi Sig's captured the all-school championship. Ron Johnson also took the all-school title in bowling singles.

This year the Phi Sig's sponsored the second annual Phi Sigma Epsilon Bowling Marathon with the women of Delta Zeta. Over $800 was made and donated to the Hays Day Care Center for the building of a new housing facility for exceptional children.

Sigma Tau Gamma is a fraternity with members who are interested in all kinds of athletics. Sig Tau's participated in intramural volleyball, badminton, tennis, horseshoes, golf, softball and football. A first place win in all-school basketball intramurals highlighted the year.

2. Dave Burton, Nickerson senior, and Steve Homolac, Belleville junior, perform a duet at the Greek Talent Show.

Active members of the Zeta Tau Chapter of the Sigma Chi fraternity returning for the fall 1975 semester numbered 43, making it the largest social fraternity on campus. Academically, the men sported a 3.0 overall grade point average during the fall semester.

Capitalizing on involvement in all intramural activities, the Sigma Chi’s fared significantly with Jeff Cooper and Jeff Curtis placing first in both men’s doubles all-Greek and all-school golf tournaments. Randy McCants was champion 170-180-pound class wrestler in the all-school wrestling tournament.

Service projects included the ninth annual canned food drive for needy Ellis County families, and the Derby Days competition, with proceeds going to Wallace Village for children.

Socially, the fraternity participated in such events as the Homecoming Formal, Blue Bunny Party and White Rose Formal. An open house and barbecue initiated a new Sigma Chi parents’ organization.

Major changes occurred internally and externally to the house this year, as the men donated time and effort to remodeling. A new fence and a lighted sign were added external features.
Sorority swings 36 hours for Hays Senior Citizens

The annual "Pearl and Triangle" formal held March 27 at the Holiday Inn, was the main event of the year for the Sigma Kappa women. Other activities included a "That's the Way I Like It" informal, working with elderly people and collecting money for the Hays Cancer drive. A 36-hour Swing-a-thon in April raised $280 for the Senior Citizens Center in Hays.

Sigma Kappa officers for the 1975-76 academic year were President Darla McMullen, Norton senior; First Vice-President Marie Desilet, Concordia junior; Second Vice-President Cindy Blackwill, Quinter sophomore; Recording Secretary Novia Horyna, Bison sophomore; and Treasurer Nyla Lippert, Bison senior. Jan Williams served as the Sigma Kappa housemother.

2. Ken McCarter, Greg Anderson, Bill Comfort and Bruce Feikert start off Octoberfest 1975 by firing the Sig Ep cannon at the Hays park.

Sigma Phi Epsilon men rank in top 5% nationally

Sigma Phi Epsilon received honors as a top ranking chapter in the nation. The FHS chapter was the youngest chapter to qualify in the top five per cent of the organization four years consecutively. In addition, Sigma Phi Epsilon was awarded the honor of hosting a regional five-state convention.

High academic achievement and excellence in athletics were two important goals for the men. An affiliated group, the Golden Hearts, shared these goals and spent much time supporting the men in intramural sports. The Golden Hearts also cleaned the house, served dinners, and sometimes cooked dinners for Sigma Phi Epsilon members. Activities including both the men and women were a Christmas party and gift exchange, a Valentine’s party, a picnic and a softball game. Each Golden Heart member received a pledge “pop” and pledge “son” after the men awarded her membership.

Sig Ep men, who won the Intramural Sweepstakes again this year, also earned the IFC Scholarship Trophy.
Social sorority observes 50th anniversary at FHS

Celebrating its 50th year at Fort Hays State, Sigma Sigma Sigma completed several projects and various activities. Two informals were held early in the year followed by a 50th anniversary Christmas dance and a March formal. A Christmas party was given for the children at the Day Care Center Dec. 10.

Shoeshining, an annual Sigma Sigma Sigma project, was held in the Memorial Union to raise money for the Robbie Page Memorial Fund. The money was contributed to children's hospitals at Chapel Hill, N. C. and St. Louis, Mo. Founder's Day wrapped up the year with parents and alumni attending activities April 25 at the Memorial Union.

The sorority received the Panhellenic scholarship reward for having the highest grade point average among competing campus sororities.
TKE Homecoming float takes President’s Award

Remodeling the Red Coat took much time and effort from Tau Kappa Epsilon members. The group put in new booths, paneling and carpeting during Christmas vacation. Another building project, a Homecoming float, the "Voyager II" won the President’s award in October. During Homecoming, Byron O. Blair, TKE alumnus and charter member, received awards for outstanding service from both FHS and the chapter.

Tekes were socially busy with several informals and the Red Carnation Ball. Intramurals were popular and many members of the group participated in the programs. Officers included President Jim Dobson, Plainville freshman; Vice-President Dan Frick, Kinsley junior; Secretary Dennis Waldo, Oberlin junior; Treasurer Joel Robinson, Hays senior; Historian Chris Wesely, Abilene senior; Sergeant-at-arms Dave Fabricius, Hill City senior; and Educator Carey Sasek, Western, Neb., sophomore.

Other legislation the organization considered and passed concerned Fort Hays State's participation in the National Student Exchange Program; a resolution permitting student and faculty representatives on all committees to improve communication between the student body and the faculty; the declaration of "Dead Week"; and the sale of 3.2 beer on campus.

Still under consideration at the close of the 1975-76 academic year were the possibility of employing a full-time medical doctor for the campus Health Service and legislation that would give "university" status to FHS.

Senate reprimands Staab for misuse of ASK funds

The Student Privacy Act, the Kansas Student Loan Program, faculty salary increases and voter registration by mail, were some of the topics that concerned the Associated Students of Kansas (ASK), a student lobbying organization. A legislative forum was held at Fort Hays State in December to discuss issues pertinent to student interests in the 1976 legislative session. Several FHS members attended the annual Lobby Day in Topeka.

The FHS Associated Students of Kansas made the news second semester when president Michael Staab had allegations brought against him by a Student Senate committee, concerning misuse of ASK funds during his campaign for Student Body president. The allegations led to the circulation of recall petitions after Staab was elected to the SGA presidential post. In the final Student-Faculty Court session involving the case, the petitions were found invalid because "no evidence of malfeasance, nonfeasance or misfeasance of (Student Body) office" was cited in the petitions. However, the court censured Staab for gross misjudgment in his personal use of ASK funds.

Pressures continued to build and Michael Staab resigned his presidential post effective Tuesday, June 29, after only three months in office. Sandy Stenzel, WaKeeney junior, who was Staab's vice-presidential running mate, assumed the presidential office, after the resignation.

Activities Board gathers entertainment for FHS

Memorial Union Activities Board (MUAB) reinstated and renovated the coffeehouse, featuring entertainment and refreshments in the Memorial Union Cafeteria. Several coffeehouses were sponsored, and entertainers included classical music-comedy team Blegan and Sayer; folk guitarist Frank Hall; guitarist Phil Neal; and folk guitar group Jon Paul and Thomas. For the first time, MUAB sponsored an art show and sale, held on Parent's Day.

Other MUAB-planned activities included an open house each semester, weekly films, the Miss Fort Hays State Pageant, lecturers, the Halloween Ball, free coffee day, a children's Christmas party, art shows in the Promanade Gallery and pop concerts.

Tiger Paws, an MUAB committee composed of 20 to 22 women, ushered at Parents' Day, Homecoming ceremonies and concerts; sold tickets, promoted and ushered for the Fall Fashion Extravaganza; and decorated the ballroom and ushered for the Miss Fort Hays State Pageant. New members were interviewed and selected in the spring.
BSU begins scholarships; CRB supports consumers

Many countries were represented at an International Fair sponsored by the International Student Union in the fall. Booths displayed various foods, handicrafts and customs. During spring break, the club took a series of short trips to the oil refinery in Phillipsburg, several feed lots and sale barns. In addition to monthly programs and discussions, ISU members had a Christmas party and a spring picnic with their host families.

The Black Student Union co-sponsored speaker Florynce Kennedy, helped establish scholarships for minority students and hosted a sickle cell anemia fund drive. They raised money for social functions by washing cars and having a booth at Oktoberfest. The year was dedicated to the Buffalo Soldiers, Black troops that defended Hays City in the 1800's.

The Consumer Relations Board provided students with information and advice about consumer-related problems involving money. Life insurance policies, sales contracts and landlord-tenant relations were a few issues the CRB faced. Students from the business and economics departments staffed the board.

Players practice, pound, paint, persist, perform

Silence. Blackness. The curtain goes up. And another production by the Fort Hays State Players begins. But there's a lot more to each production than raising that curtain. Hours of planning, discussing, choosing, sawing, hammering, painting, drawing, cutting, sewing, reading, memorizing and rehearsing are behind each production. Headaches, sore throats, aching muscles, skipped classes and little sleep — all must be endured as rehearsals go on — and on and on. Make-up must be put on — and taken off. Costumes must be fitted, changed, repaired, perfected. Props must be gotten used to, scenery, secured. And the Fort Hays Players persevere. They pound. They paint. They practice. And they perform.

Ironing costume material for "The Contrast" is Maria Herron, Garden City senior. 3. Bill Brewer, instructor of speech, builds a flat for the "Crucible" by weaving cloth through chicken wire. This provides color coordination on the set. 4. Brewer applies latex, used to indicate aging, on Kim Curtis, St. John senior, for her role in "Long Day's Journey into Night." 5. Arnhold and Martin Massaglia, Hays sophomores, begin developing characterization in the early stages of rehearsal for "The Contrast."
Drama season premieres as Players stage Indians

Opening the All-American season, the Drama Department presented "Indians," a play that explored white men's involvement with the Indians in the mid-1800's.

The play followed the life and thoughts of Buffalo Bill Cody, a famous buffalo hunter and the first sheriff of Hays City. As a showman, Buffalo Bill used Indians as curiosities to make a profit. Later, however, he was portrayed as a sincere caring man who pleaded with the Indians and white men to try to understand each other's culture.

Unusual lighting effects and flashbacks gave "Indians" a pseudo-realistic atmosphere and made the audience aware of Cody's thoughts during each event.

1. "I am Geronimo! No one lives who has killed more white men than I!" 2. Grand Duke Alexis places a medal around Buffalo Bill's neck. 3. Sitting Bull claims that if the Great Spirits have chosen anyone to be a leader, it is not the Great White Father, but himself. 4. Cody proudly receives the adulation of the audience at a Wild West show.

Social viewpoints clash in 18th century comedy

American colonists with affected, artificial European views clashed with colonists who adopted altruistic, patriotic American values in the drama department’s rendition of the 18th century comedy, “The Contrast.”

Various shades of red, white and blue prevailed in costumes designed by Wm. “Bear” Henderson, Girard graduate student. Henderson designed the costumes as part of his master’s thesis project.

The music for the show, consisting mainly of variations of Yankee Doodle, provided a patriotic background theme. It was composed and arranged by Brett Musser, Phillipsburg junior.

The play was the first FHS production directed by Dr. Suzanne Trauth, director of theater.

1. “If you don’t make young Van Dumpling the man of your choice, you shall marry him as the man of my choice.” Maria is forced to accede to her father’s wishes.
2. The brilliance of European exhibitions forces Dimple to despise American amusements.
3. “The places where you must smile, look grave or laugh outright are marked below the line,” explains Tessamy as he instructs Jonathan on the art of laughter.
4. “A woman rarely discards one lover until she is sure of another,” says Charlotte when airing her views of Maria’s engagement to Letitia.
5. Colonel Manley lectures Dimple on honor in relationships between the sexes.

Audience arrangements unique in productions

A cabaret atmosphere was the setting for “A Musical Review,” a medley of songs from Broadway musicals dating from the 1920’s to the present. The on-stage audience was served popcorn and soft drinks as members of the “Staging the Musical” class performed the musical routines.

Staging “in-the-round” was a new type of design for the Fort Hays State Players, as they produced Eugene O’Neill’s “Long Days Journey into Night.” Although the set design added to the mood of the play, it also restricted seating to 100 a night, resulting in seven consecutive sell-out performances for the longest-playing production of the season.

1. Peggy Kincaid sings “I Got Love,” a song of the ’70s, in a scene staged by Todd Knudson for “A Musical Review.” 2. Mary Tyrone comforts her husband, John, after an angry discussion about her drug addiction in “Long Days Journey into Night.” 3. “Oklahoma — Okay” is sung by Brad Zimmerman and Kevin Cline in “A Musical Review.” The piece from “Oklahoma” was staged by Kimberly Curtis. 4. Reflecting on the past, the Tyrone family expresses bitterness toward the incidents that made their lives miserable in “Long Days Journey into Night.”

‘Dames at Sea’ concludes Bicentennial play season

Concluding the Bicentennial season of American plays, the Department of Drama produced “Dames at Sea,” a parody of the movies musicals of the 1930’s. “Dames at Sea” is a piece of American nostalgia typifying cinematic moments that made Ruby Keeler and Dick Powell a vivid part of American stage heritage.

“Dames” is a light musical and dance comedy. Dr. Suzanne Trauth, assisted by William “Bear” Henderson, choreographed the dance and tap routines — a new experience for many in the cast.

Set design, by William Pryor Brewer II, was unique. The first act set was the scene “backstage of any 42nd Street theater.” A battleship, with turrets, flags, and portholes, later to be renamed by Captain Courageous as the USS Mona, was the set for Act II. “Dames at Sea,” directed by Dr. Trauth and Gary Wilhelm, musical director, was the only production of the year to receive standing ovations.

Opera production recalls witchcraft, McCarthyism

Reaching back into early American history to the Salem witchcraft trials of 1692, the Departments of Music and Theatre presented the opera, "The Crucible," based on the play by Arthur Miller.

The play, written during the era of the McCarthy hearings, draws a parallel from the witchcraft trials and the McCarthy hearings — that of innocent persons being unjustly accused and perhaps convicted. Pride, injustice and hunger for power oppose justice and compassion, and show that although the ideals and beliefs of man might change, his nature remains the same.

Clinic draws jazz artists of national reputation

Some of the top musicians in the United States were clinicians at the second annual Jazz Combo Improvisation Clinic held in Malloy Hall during intersession. The five-day clinic involved almost eighty students from across the country in jazz theory and the listening, arrangement, performance and discussion of jazz.

Several small ensembles were dropped from the schedule because of a lack of student interest and participation, but other ensembles held students' interest. The Jazz Ensemble attended a jazz contest in Wichita, and the Clarinet Choir, Brass Choir and Percussion Ensemble performed at several concerts and recitals.

Choir gives performance in Holy Cross Cathedral

The FHS Music Department gives those interested a choice of several vocal groups. Collegian Chorale is an organization for those who wish to participate in music, but are not majors. The Chorale performed Dec. 14 in the Sheridan Coliseum. Another large vocal group, Concert Choir, is basically for music majors. The choir held a concert Nov. 16 at the Holy Cross Shrine in Pfeifer, and two concerts in Sheridan Coliseum, March 7 and May 9.
Civic Symphony offers outlet for area musicians

The Civic Symphony Orchestra, conducted by director of bands Lyle Dilley, is composed of interested area musicians and students. The orchestra gave several concerts, including the oratorio April 25 in Sheridan Coliseum.

Tiger Debs, the FHS drill team, performed routines at home football games and the Varsity Show.

Band receives ovation at KMEA convention

When the Symphonic Band travelled to the Kansas Music Educators Assn. Convention in Wichita, they received a standing ovation for their performance under guest conductor, Dr. William Revelli. The band was composed of all eligible students and performed in several concerts during the year.
'Reveille' theme depicts the challenge of change

Working with the theme, "The Challenge of Change," the Reveille staff showed the changes that have occurred in campus activities and departments in the last year.

Members of the staff traveled to several yearbook conferences, bringing back the latest ideas in copy, layout and design.

Under new Reveille adviser Dave Adams, the staff brought out parallels between past and present, particularly in the opening section of the book. These parallels, extensive use of graphics and special "features," were new to the Reveille.

Seven days a week and close to 24 hours a day, Photographic Services photographers were on call to record on film the events of each day.

Photographic Services provided pictures for the Reveille, the State College Leader, News Service, Information Services, Sports Information and other campus departments. The photo lab facilities expanded to include new color developing equipment, enabling the photographers to print color photos directly from color slides. The Reveille was the first publication to use this process at FHS.

Leader goes bi-weekly, includes UPI, city news

Changing from a weekly to a bi-weekly paper, the State College Leader expanded its coverage of campus activities to include a city news beat and copy from the UPI newswire.

Following Woodward and Berstein's example, the Leader stressed more investigative reporting. Stories that delved into issues such as McGrath Hall residents harboring a young fugitive and McMIndes Hall cafeteria's ineffective dishwashing facilities were picked up by the wire services and sent throughout the state.

A second managing editor was added to the Leader staff to handle the responsibility of the bi-weekly newspaper.

KFHS ‘airs’ on Sundays; CCTV broadcasts to Ellis

Radio and television students gained practical experience by working in campus broadcast situations at KFHS radio station and CCTV closed-circuit television.

KFHS expanded its broadcast hours to six days a week, including Sunday operation for the first time.

CCTV enlarged its broadcast area to include Ellis. Programming changes for CCTV included broadcasting more women’s sports and adding the “Nostalgia Movie Theatre,” a selection of old comedy, western and war movies.
1. Opening the broadcast day on KFHS, Bob Cramer, Kinsley freshman, starts a 4-track cartridge before taking time to cue some records. 2. Switcher Dave Brull, Hays junior, decides which camera should go on the air as he watches the monitors. 6. Radio stations need many recordings. Here, Vicki Bobimeyer, McCook, Neb., sophomore, finds albums selected by KFHS announcers to be played over the air.
Debate and Forensics team members had an unsuccessful season. The team competed against nearly 700 junior college, college and university teams, traveling to 14 different states. The team's topic was, "The Federal Government's Control of Land Use in the United States." In individual events, members were more successful, winning three trophies and placing a number of times.

Orchesis, a modern dance club, performed with the Fort Hays State Singers at a pop concert in the spring. Earlier in the year, the group presented a dance recital by themselves. Members of the club were drawn from various departments on campus, and the only requirement for membership was the desire to perform.

Reaching out to others is Campus Ministry’s aim

The Baptist Campus Center had two work days on which members of the community could call to the center to get almost any type of work done. Money raised during the fall work day was used to help pay the tuition of Viet Nam freshman Benny Dang. Funds earned from the spring work day were donated to an American Baptist Program. A fall retreat to Sweetwater Ranch gave members an opportunity for relaxation and for exploration of interpersonal and intergroup communication. A drama group from the center, the Karygma (“Proclamation”) Team, performed a series of short playlettes that explored an evangelistic life style. The group toured central Kansas churches during spring break.

The Catholic Campus Center sought to encourage students to participate in apostolic activities and programs
both on and off campus. Catholic information classes, marriage information and enrichment programs, scripture study, and counseling were available to FHS students, fac-culty and staff. Service projects in which students participated were Big Brother/Big Sister program, R.E.A.C.H. and Adopt a Grandparent. Several guitar masses were held during the year.
Ind. Arts, Rodeo groups engage in several events

Each week, Rodeo Club members picked a different team of six men and three women to travel to rodeos throughout Kansas and Oklahoma. The club sponsored the annual Fort Hays State Rodeo. Vicki Bobinmeyer, McCook, Neb., sophomore, was voted Rodeo Queen.

Members of Epsilon Pi Tau, a professional industrial arts honorary, published a newsletter each month. The group went on several fishing trips and picnics. Ten men were initiated during two ceremonies.

Men of the Industrial Arts Club organized trips to Sunflower Manufacturing in Beloit and to Hesston Manufacturing in Hesston during the fall and spring. Speakers at meetings included an industrial safety inspector and members of the highway patrol who took apart a radar speed indicator to show how it worked.
1. Semi-annually, the Industrial Arts Club gives a get-to-know-the-department hamburger feed.

Groups' concerns include agriculture, conservation

Eighteen junior colleges attended a junior college judging contest sponsored by Block and Bridle Club, an organization for agriculture majors. A livestock judging team composed mainly of Block and Bridle members attended contests in San Francisco, Calif.; Ogden, Utah; Louisville, Ky.; and Kansas City, Mo. At Ogden, the team was the overall champion out of eleven teams.

Members of the Student Chapter of Soil Conservation brought in speakers who talked about different phases of soil conservation. The group is composed mainly of botany and agriculture majors.

Students involved in Delta Tau Alpha, an honorary society for agriculture majors, corresponded with engineers in Topeka to get plans for new buildings for the college farm. An outstanding freshman award was given Rad Roehl, of Dighton, in May.
Science, mathematics form clubs' foundations

To create interest in and give information about the Chemistry Department, members of the Chemistry Club traveled to more than thirty area schools to perform magic shows. Club members compiled brochures and information sheets on the department and sent them to area high schools in an attempt to increase the number of students enrolled in FHS chemistry courses.

Members of the Society of Physics Students sponsored films on the lives of great physicists and hosted several speakers. Social functions included a banquet in the spring.

Searching for the new and unusual aspects of mathematics, members of Kappa Mu Epsilon brought in speakers from the University of Kansas and Kansas State University. Club members helped with High School Math Day, which is sponsored by the Mathematics Department.

Alpha Kappa Psi hosts leadership, conference

Alpha Kappa Psi, professional business fraternity, started an Investment Club, by investing a block of stock donated by William E. Lusk. The money earned from this investment goes toward business scholarships. Scholarship recipient this year was Pat Giersch, Dodge City junior.

The fraternity sponsored the Bloodmobile each semester and surpassed both estimated goals, by drawing 228 units of blood first semester and 175 second semester.

This was the first year Alpha Kappa Psi hosted a leadership conference for other chapters. The group also co-sponsored Business-Economics Week.

Taking tickets at FHS functions was the money-making project for the fraternity. Social events included an Alumni Banquet in April and a chapter picnic at Cedar Bluff in May.

Several activities mark three groups’ calendars

Members of Pi Omega Pi, honorary business education society, assisted with the Bloodmobile, tutored undergraduate students and hosted Business Week. Jana Jako received the Pi Omega Pi Book Award in March at the society’s annual honors banquet.

Three members of the local chapter of Phi Beta Lambda business fraternity, Michele Leiker, Sue Morgan and Ruth Ann Fry, were elected to offices during the State Convention at Emporia. The group sponsored the fall Phi Beta Lambda Leadership Conference.

Speakers, films, and outings along the Smokey Hill River were all part of the experiences of the Foreign Language Club. The group includes Russian, French, Spanish and German language students.

2. Fun, falls and friends were all a part of the skating party sponsored by the SCEC. Ila Patton, Gaylord senior, helps steady one participant.

4. The award-winning tiger float, constructed by the Men's P.E. Club, gets “fired up” for the Homecoming game against the Pittsburg State gorillas.

5. Aural rehabilitation is one area which the Student Speech and Hearing Association concentrates on. Bruce Van Petten and Connie Cortez demonstrate techniques for correction of speech disorders.

Departmental clubs plan activities for children

Homecoming-Oktoberfest kept the Men's P.E. Club busy. They assisted with crowning the queen and organized the tug-of-war. During Oktoberfest, they sold beer mugs and had the only booth exclusively for children — a haystack with fifty dollars worth of coins to search for. Their Homecoming float won the design and FHKSC awards.

Political Science Club members sponsored a non-partisan forum between student body presidential candidates Irv Emig and Michael Staab during their campaigns. The club encouraged party involvement in political activities.

Members of the Student Council for Exceptional Children (SCEC) gained experience in working with exceptional children through skating parties and other activities. SCEC members provided a baby-sitting service at the Hays Exceptional Child Day Care Center, and served as hostesses at several special education conferences held on campus.

The local chapter of the National Student Speech and Hearing Association engaged in numerous clinical activities as part of its professional training. Under the supervision of staff speech pathologists, the group evaluated and treated speech, language and hearing problems of children and adults.
Home ec., journalism areas bind organizations

Gamma Chapter of Kappa Omicron Phi, national home economics honorary, sold Christmas greenery to raise money for its national project, "Aid to Crossnore." Crossnore is a children's boarding school in North Carolina. The chapter observed Founder's Day and the chapter's "birthday" with a candlelighting ceremony. Dr. Ann Liston spoke on needlework in American history, and Dr. Ray Youmans gave a slide presentation on his year as a college president in Africa.

The Home Economics Chapter sponsored the annual Kansas Home Economics Association state meeting in the fall. Fourteen Kansas student chapters attended the meeting, and Debbie Holopirek, Timken junior, presided as state student member section president. Chapter members made book bags for the Community Day Care Center and the Hays Day Care Center for Exceptional Children, visited the Mammography Department of St. Anthony's Hospital, and had a spring fondue party.

After experiencing a national name change from Pi Delta Epsilon to the Society for Collegiate Journalists, members of the mass communications honorary, compiled and sold FHS student directories. This money financed a media tour to Wichita. Lance Ross, KAYS news director, and Kate Pierson, of the Hays Daily News, were guest speakers at two dinner meetings.
1. HOME ECONOMICS CHAPTER — Front row: Marlene Moxter, Marian Cooper, Vickie Galvan, Susan James. Second row: Angelia Frankenfeld, Janet Erickson, Cindy Wetheran. Third row: Judy Zerr, Carol Donnell, Elaine Prine. Top row: Colleen Morain, Marcia Yost, Sandria Godwin, Frank Gorman. 2. Mike Stanton, Hays senior, Pat Linville, Goodland junior, Jeri Buffington, Marquette sophomore, and Delores Eberle, Hays junior, anticipate initiation ceremonies at the SCJ banquet. 3. Sherie Christensen, Marion junior, collects ingredients for a cooking demonstration. 4. KAPPA OMEICRON PHI — Front row: Jana Hawley, Patsy Wilken, Debbie Holopirek, Marta Walls. Second row: Gay Edwards, Marlene Moxter, Linda Roberts. Third row: Maylene Harder, Colleen Morain, Marian Cooper. Fourth row: Sharon Little, Carol Donnell, Kim Rapstine. Fifth row: Natasha Otte, Susan Marvin, Janice Koster. Top row: June Krebs, Maxine Hoffman. 5. SOCIETY FOR COLLEGIATE JOURNALISTS — Front row: Jeri Buffington, Pam Niermeier, June Rose, Ronda Haskins, Delores Eberle, Pat Linville, Connie Nelson, Dave Adams, adviser; Eleanor Wherry. Top row: Mike Stanton, Bob Keating, Ron Randolph, Mark DeWald, Willie Mannebach. 6. Pam Niermeier, Ludell junior, Barbara Glover, Great Bend sophomore, and Dave Adams, SCJ adviser, watch as a Wichita Eagle-Beacon employee demonstrates the use of a machine which presses the news on a piece of plastic.
1. Phi Mu Alpha Symphonia pledge Bill Schick cleans a record from the music library as part of his initiation.

2. Strolling singers Jill Galloway, Frankie Wiedeman, Karla Walz, Sonya Steffan, Paula Rothe, Ronnie Smith, and Janice Burch (on piano) provide entertainment during State Day.

3. Joyce Grief and Becky Kipp help Robin Ridenour mount her bicycle during Furlough races.

Musicians host clinics; WRA sponsors Play Day

With both money and man-hours, Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia music fraternity members helped underwrite the Mid-Winter Jazz Combo/Improvisation Clinic, held during intersession. Fraternity members provided stage arrangements for all recitals and concerts and taped many of the performances. A Solo Day was held in December so that Kansas music educators could become familiar with new solo literature at the junior and senior high school level.

Lack of time and money kept Sigma Alpha Iota (SAI) members from holding the Wedding Workshop, an annual event given to familiarize interested persons with the variety of music appropriate for weddings. Members of the all-woman music honorary sponsored State Day, a day of music workshops for college chapters. The group also sold stationery as a money-making project.

Members of the Women's Recreation Association (WRA) were involved in intramural sports, pizza parties, camp-outs and Furlough. A system awarding a number of points for being active in each function was used to get members involved. Other activities included several banquets and a Play Day for Hays junior high school students.
SNAK float wins awards; ΦΑΘ offers survival kits

The FHS chapter of the Student Nurses Association of Kansas (SNAK) highlighted the year by attending a State Convention in Wichita and a National Convention in Kansas City. SNAK sponsored several guest speakers and programs about nursing. Members helped with the local Bloodmobile and March of Dimes drive. Their Homecoming float won both the sweepstakes and the animation awards.

Offering finals week survival kits to students was one of several ways members of Phi Alpha Theta, a national history honor society, raised money this year. The society organized two book sales to raise money toward the purchase of new books for Forsyth Library. Several delegates from the club went to the Biennial International Convention in Atlanta, Ga.
1. "Germs" Terri Casey, Leila Lange and Sherrie Smith walk in front of the SNAK float, as Linda Santee finds a lofty perch on the handmade "hypodermic syringe." 2. Student nurse Dave Hrabe, Stockton senior, uses nursing laboratory audio-visual material to learn about obstetrics before he does field work at the hospital. 3. PHI ALPHA THETA — Dr. Ann Liston, faculty advisor; Esta Lou Riley, Karin Sporleder, Bruce Carter, historian; Jan Patrick, James Switzer, Diana Redger, Philip Giebler, Gary Grippin, president; James Beyer, Cynthia Dierks, secretary-treasurer; Robert Keese, Tim Zwink, Tom Railsback, Debra Dumbler, Dr. John Klier, Al Stabb, vice-president; Tom Jensen, Carlene Pattie. 4. STUDENT NURSES' ASSOCIATION OF KANSAS — Janet Messamore, junior class faculty representative; Marsha Brickley, corresponding secretary; Sue Moody, recording secretary; Joann Norland, president; Dave Hrabe, first vice-president; Mary Beth Koehn, senior class faculty representative; Deanne Bayless, senior class faculty representative; Sue Briggs, faculty sponsor. 5. Students look over a wide selection of books being sold at reduced prices at the Phi Alpha Theta book sale. 6. Phi Alpha Theta member Tom Railshack, Oberlin graduate student, gives a slide presentation about artists of the Old West.
Psi Chi presents awards; FHS hosts square dances

The Fort Hays Star Promenaders attended the Snowball Dance first semester, and took part in the Kansas State Square Dance Convention in the Gross Memorial Coliseum. A caller’s clinic and workshops about club organization and round and square dances, were held at the convention. Club members traveled to a variety of other dances in Kansas, including the 19th Annual Northeast Kansas Square Dance Festival at Topeka, and the Spring Square Dance Festival at Wichita. A new banner was made for the club, and a P.A. system converter was purchased for the Homecoming float.

Psi Chi, psychology honorary, sponsored its third annual Research Awards Program in April. Fifteen students and faculty presented their research papers. Guest speaker was Dr. Thomas Budzynski, assistant clinical professor of psychology at the University of Colorado Medical Center. He talked on the past, present and the future of biofeedback as an area of research and applied therapy.
1. Sharla Summers, Hutchinson junior, and David Haneke, Ellis freshman, promenade during a regular meeting of the Star Promenaders.

2. Rick Lucas and fellow geologist Ted Fritz take samples of rock during a geology field trip.

Women of the FHS Dames Club, an organization for wives of students, discussed a variety of topics at their monthly meetings. Plants, breast cancer and needlework in American history were among topics of interest.

Fort Hays State Players instituted a season ticket program, entitling ticket holder to admission to six drama productions, a free baby-sitting service during the performances and free coffee during intermissions. A children's program, "Golliwhoppers," toured area libraries.

Members of the Sternburg Geology Club sponsored seminars and held several parties. Many members participated in intramurals. Several western Kansas areas were sites of Geology Club field trips.
Honor societies strive to lift student potential

Alpha Lambda Delta, freshman honor society, initiated sixty-two men and women this academic year. Twenty-two senior women were cited for the outstanding achievement of maintaining at least a 3.5 grade average for seven consecutive semesters. Activities included a tutoring service, a party at the Day Care Center, a bake sale, a picnic, assisting with the Bloodmobile and donating funds to various worthwhile organizations. Camelia Tuttle, a mathematics and English major, received a book award for maintaining an average of 4.0 on a 4.0 scale.

In keeping with tradition, SPURS, the sophomore women's honor society, ushered at theater productions and assisted at Student Senate elections. During this year's convention, SPURS voted to comply with the Title IX ruling which will allow men to join SPURS from now on. Other projects included painting the campus trash cans black and gold, helping with Parent's Day and the Bloodmobile, distributing literature for International Women's Year and cleaning up an area of Hays during Beautification Week. The purpose of SPURS is to serve the college and community and to develop leadership qualities.

2. Cooling weather makes the SPURS carwash a test of endurance.

3. Due to the cold and damp weather, members of SPURS unite to get campus trash cans painted in a hurry.

4. Featuring ghosts and goblins on the cookies and cups, Alpha Lambda Delta's Halloween Party at the Day Care Center is supervised by Velma Anderson.

6. By sharing a moment of laughter, Dean Jean Stouffer and Jan Dugan lighten the Alpha Lambda Delta initiation ceremony.
Title IX asks honoraries to end sex discrimination

Seventh Cavalry is an honorary organization that helps to promote leadership on the campus of Fort Hays State. Membership is based on scholarship, leadership, service and character. Club activities included assisting on Parent's Day, helping at Dr. Gerald Tomanek's installation, participating in the March of Dimes Walk-a-thon and involvement in Hays Beautification Week.

Mortar Board was responsible for changing the graduation tassels to various colors, indicating the student's major. Other activities included ushering at Parent's Day, Tomanek's installation and graduation. They also co-sponsored the International Women's Year Weekend Conference. Mortar Board, a national senior honor society, provides cooperation among local chapters, advances the status of women, supports the ideals of the university and promotes a spirit of scholarship and leadership among individuals and groups on campus.
Students win recognition in national honoraries

Fort Hays State nominated 49 seniors for inclusion in Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities. Criteria for selection include a cumulative grade-point average of 3.0 or better, contribution to campus activities and faculty evaluation. Nominees are then submitted to FHS seniors for voting. Who's Who has been in existence since 1934 to recognize individual collegiate academic excellence on a national level.

Phi Eta Sigma, freshman honorary, was established to promote a high standard of learning and to encourage high scholastic achievement among incoming freshmen. A 3.5 grade-point average is required for initiation. A party was given for all members in May. One woman was initiated into the group which was formerly all-male.

Phi Kappa Phi is an interdisciplinary honor society which elects members on the basis of scholarship and good character. The top three per cent of the junior class, the top ten per cent of the senior class and the top ten per cent of the graduate class, are eligible for election. Three faculty members and a minimal number of outstanding alumni may also be elected each year. As a national honor society, Phi Kappa Phi is one of the most prestigious of all campus groups. Sixty-four new initiates were inducted in April.

Tigers end cross country season with third place at national meet

Experience paid off for the veteran cross country squad as the Tigers improved their standing in the major meets and made a better showing as the season progressed. FHS won both of its dual encounters during 1975 and was consistently near the top of the team standings in the season’s early meets.

At Emporia the FHS runners claimed second place in the Great Plains Athletic Conference behind KSC-Pittsburg, which edged the Tigers in nearly every meet. Senior Scott Tichenor led the Tiger scoring in the conference outing with his fifth place finish, and sophomore Garry Sigle was next in the sixth place. It was the same story at the NAIA District 10 Meet the next week where FHS was nipped by Pittsburg for the title. Tichenor again led the Tigers, finishing third.

Climaxing the season were the NAIA National Championships at Salina, and Coach Alex Francis had the Tigers ready for the final race. FHS pulled a mild surprise by finishing third in the national meet and finally defeating Pittsburg. Sigle led the Tigers to their high standing by placing 12th. Senior Dave Copp was the second Tiger across the line in 36th place, followed closely by Tichenor in 37th place.
1. Bob Lowen Jr. eyes the finish to the five-mile cross country race. 2. All-American Garry Sigle finds being alone is great as long as he's in the lead. 3. 1975 CROSS COUNTRY TEAM — Front row: Bob Lowen Jr., Bill Filener, Dave Copp, Scott Tichenor, Bill Lowry, Garry Sigle. Top row: Dan Olinger, Dan Smithhisler, Tim Lang, Steve Herrman, Tom Beaton, Dave Stout, Dan Trippel, Terry Spear, Terry Newfer. 4. Staying with the pack until it's time for their moves are Tigers Garry Sigle and Scott Tichenor. 5. A shoulder-to-shoulder race across the hilly course makes cross country an enjoyable spectator sport, and Scott Tichenor gives FHS fans a chance to cheer. 6. The end is near as senior Bill Filener leads his opponent past the gallery and into the finish chute. 7. It's a long way to the finish line, but FHS runners, Dan Trippel, Steve Herrman, Bill Lowry, Scott Tichenor and Garry Sigle, get off to a good start.
Football team battles injury jinx, tough schedule during 3-7 season

It was the year of knee injuries for the Tiger football team as eight players became victims of the disabling jinx. There was a brighter aspect, however, as several young players received their college initiation early and performed well under pressure throughout the year. The first win in the 3-7 season came at Missouri Southern as the Tigers stormed back from a 21-point halftime deficit to capture a 32-24 victory with a superb effort from the defensive unit.

With the offense rolling up yardage, FHS continued to play tough football against Eastern New Mexico and Northern Colorado, but couldn’t stop the two national powers. Midway through the season it was evident that the Tigers were on their way to a record-breaking year as they moved the ball steadily on the ground and through the air. Greg Custer led the comeback bid against Northern Colorado by smashing three school and conference passing records.
1. A time-out brings a strategy session between Defensive Coordinator Jerry Cullen and his brother Chris, the Tiger's defensive co-captain. Some catches take more skill than others as split end Ron Hawley battles a defender for his football. 2. Quarterback Greg Custer and slotback Gary Campas make connections on an option play in dangerous territory. 3. Effective blocking up front gives Brian Shriwise time to get his kick away. Ron Matteson, 71, and Jim Homolka, 77, apply their blocking techniques as Greg Custer watches the clear- ance. 4. The race is on, but the Northern Colorado defenders appear to have the angle on hard-running fullback Craig Horchem. 5. The 1975 FOOTBALL TEAM — Front row: Steve Pol- ley, manager; Danny Boyce, Don Jenkins, Kent Griffin, Bruce Van Petten, Carlos Amaro, Steve Thompson, Scott Soukup, Robb Ross, Greg Dutt, Robert Douglas, Assistant Coach Jerry Cullen. Second row: Graduate Assistant Joe Ross, Jim Thompson, Dave Shumaker, Tom Doll, Blond Farmer, Joe Gallegos, Ron Matteson, Craig Horchem, Ron Hawley, Jerry Ista, Steve Curtis, Head Coach Bill Giles. Third row: Van Hampton, Keith Hall, Bill Haar, Scott Christ, Louis Pfortmiller, Gary Campas, Mike Carlson, Jim Homolka, Brian Shriwise, Loren Wiens, Assistant Coach Lynn Lashbrook. Fourth row: Undergraduate Assistant Bob Gonzales, Dave Maier, Doug Klein, Spence Hummel, Duane Reynolds, Miles Peterson, Mark Etzel, Mark Cather, Lynn Koch, Kyle Cederburg, Bob Gulllickson. Fifth row: Assistant Coach Ed McNeil, Robert Paschall, Greg Custer, Dave Meter, Rich Dondlinger, Jim Benn, John Hicks, Tom Bird, Carl Link, Tom Mertens. Graduate Assistant Doug Dallman. Top row: Assistant Coach Barry Allen, Chris Cullen, Fred Gillig, Bill Turner, Dave Thom, Jim Wilson, Kirk Lieurance, John East, Scott Warner. 7. Shagging punts is a hazardous job, but Kirk Lieurance keeps his eye and his mind on the ball.
1. With the backfielders clearing the way, Tom Doll heads for an opening in the line. 2. Linebackers Danny Boyce, 43, and Fred Gillig, 50, nab the quarterback, as Robert Douglas prepares to assist. 3. Confronting opposition, Scott Ohrist, 34, enters enemy territory. 4. Chris Cullen anticipates the play and greets the ball carrier in the backfield. 5. Attempting a fake, Ron Hawley looks to see if the defender has been fooled. 6. Quarterback Greg Custer calls the play at the line of scrimmage. 7. Much abuse faces the man with the ball as Craig Horchem learns.
Tigers cherish Homecoming win; Doll breaks school rushing records

Despite the team's 1-4 record by Homecoming Day, excitement was high, and an enthusiastic crowd gathered to watch the Tigers tangle with long-time rival Kansas State College of Pittsburg on a beautiful fall afternoon. It proved to be a good battle, and FHS held on for a 19-13 win and the first Homecoming victory since 1967.

That was one of the few highlights of the once-promising campaign as the lack of experience began to show in several areas. Coach Bill Giles and his staff shifted players on offense and defense with the hope of finding solutions to the lingering problems after a poor performance in a loss to Washburn. Injuries continued to mount, and many of the veteran players watched the conclusion of the season from the sideline, but the patched-up defense held off Emporia State as the Tigers pulled out a 20-8 triumph before the home fans.

While the Tigers struggled to avoid a losing season, a bright spot was the performance of freshman tailback Tom Doll, who made headlines across the state. He shattered several FHS and Great Plains Athletic Conference rushing records and finished the season as the number three rusher in the NAIA with an impressive 1,310 yards.
1. Arriving a bit too late for the block are Tiger defensive standouts Danny Boyce, 43, Jim Wilson, 84, and Blond Farmer, 3. 2. Fellow Nebraskan Mark Etzelmiller leads Scott Christ into the action. 3. A crunching tackle by Blond Farmer, 3, and Robert Douglas, 1, jars the football loose from the runner's secure grasp. 4. The way is clear for Tom Doll if Roger McGaughy can keep the pursuer out of the play. 5. A Tiger sign displays school spirit and artistic skill during a home contest. 6. All eyes are on the movement of the ball as Mark Etzelmiller sends Scott Christ straight ahead and Gary Campas down the line. 7. Ducking low and stepping outside are just two of the moves Tom Doll has planned for this opponent. 8. The Tigers upset the runner as he challenges the strength of the defense.
Frustrating fourth-quarter losses mar record-setting performances

Narrow losses to Panhandle State and Southern Colorado brought the season to an abrupt end, and FHS players and fans could only hope that the experience gained in 1975 was an indication of better things to come. Many key positions were manned by freshmen, and they headed the most potent offense in the GPAC. The Tigers won the conference total offense title and ranked second in rushing and passing.

Doll ran away with the conference rushing title and became the first FHS freshman to gain more than 1,000 yards rushing, while split end Ron Hawley led the conference in pass receptions and receiving yardage for the third straight year. Doll, Hawley and linebacker Chris Cullen topped the team in post-season honors as they were named honorable mention NAIA All-America and voted to the NAIA All-District 10 team. The trio also received All-GPAC recognition as did offensive guard Steve Thompson, center Craig Broadbent, defensive tackle Dave Thom and linebacker Jim Wilson.

The season did not produce the winning record that was anticipated, but it was a year of exciting, action-packed football in the grand Tiger tradition.
Gymnasts keep winning tradition despite tough NCAA scheduling

New opponents on the schedule and the progress of several new members on the team added interest to the 1976 men's gymnastics season. Although it was a year of transition, the Tigers maintained their fine reputation in gymnastics against a tough schedule of NCAA teams.

Highlighting the regular season for the local fans were a dual against the Air Force Academy team and the first FHS Invitational. The Tigers also performed well away from home and broke the school scoring record on three straight weekends. FHS took top honors in the South Dakota Quadrangular and closed the season by placing fifth at the NAIA Championships. Senior Paul Bowerman led the team in national honors by placing sixth in the still rings.
1. All-around performer James Bobo pauses during his routine to catch his breath and think about his remaining moves. 2. The Tiger bench is a place of meditation as the gymnasts watch the action and await their turn to compete. 3. GYMNASTICS TEAM — Front row: Dave Moore, Paul Bowerman, Chuck Kissee, Dave Buchheim, James Bobo, Bill Shultz, Courtney Eslick. Top row: Tim Herrera, Dave Bowers, Tom Hynes, John Gray, Carl Thompson, Chuck Lundblad, Mike Rush, Dale Bollig. 4. Freshman Chuck Lundblad checks his grip on the still rings and gets ready to pull himself skyward. 5. Concentration helps Courtney Eslick through his side horse performance, because a moment’s lapse may mean a costly fall. 6. The strain of the routine is evident on Paul Bowerman’s face as he tries to hold his position for the mandatory instant. 7. It’s Chuck Kissee against the parallel bars, and he is thinking about what he must do to beat the bars and the competition.
1. Tiger defense keeps Panhandle State away from the basket as Ed Schumacher, Dave Stoppel and Rick Albrecht apply the pressure to their men. It's a tough job under the boards, but Ed Schumacher claims the rebound. Any move from the opponent will find determined resistance from Barton Snow. Dave Royse's attempt comes too late, but teammates Dave Stoppel and Ben Gray are positioned for a rebound.

Tigers combine individual talents for eventful 19-9 basketball season

Indications were not pointing to an outstanding basketball season, but when it was over, the Tigers had compiled a 19-9 record, one of the best in FHS history. Head Coach Chuck Brehm had three talented seniors, but they had not played a full season together. He had some promising recruits, but they had never been tested under college pressure. He didn't have proven depth, so the team would have to avoid injuries. But the Tigers came out fighting and swept to the championship of the Emporia Jaycee Tourney on the opening weekend. They soon proved they could compete with any team on the schedule. During the non-conference season the Tigers showed their tenacity with a narrow loss to Drake, an upset of nationally ranked Marymount and a win over Hastings.
First place tie possibility slips away as Tigers lose finale to Pittsburg

When the Tigers started into the GPAC schedule they proved they were serious contenders for the title by claiming a pair of road wins against Northern and Southern Colorado for the first time ever. Barton Snow and Ed Schumacher emerged as the most feared scoring and rebounding duo in the GPAC, and Dave Royse and Ben Gray teamed up for a well-balanced guard combination. Freshman Mike Pauls won the other forward spot and added the consistency and defensive play FHS needed for a competitive quintet.

With its youthful enthusiasm and its winning momentum the team conquered a problem that had plagued FHS teams in the past — winning on the road. The Tigers claimed some exciting road victories while putting together a 10-game winning streak at home. A loss to Pittsburg State on the final night knocked the Tigers out of a tie for the GPAC championship.
1. A Benedictine player is coming through, and Mike Pauls tries to make the quick defensive adjustment. 2. Gary Hess finds the path to the basket blocked by an unmoving defender, but if he needs help, Mark Etzel Miller is on the way. 3. Ben Gray looks for a favorable decision from the official after a move has left him sprawling on the floor. 4. The luxury of an open layup is rare, and Barton Snow takes a moment to watch the ball fall through the net. Mark Watts and Ed Schumacher keep the lane clear of traffic. 5. The defense moves out to challenge Dave Royse, who looks for an opening to pass through. 6. Sure evidence of a collision brings glances from Mike Pauls, Dave Stoppel and Ed Schumacher, who hope for a foul call against Kearney State. 7. Things are going against the Tigers, and a concerned Chuck Brehm signals for a time out to talk matters over.
1. Security tightens around the lane as Mike Pauls, Barton Snow and Ed Schumacher plan on making the offense work for the points. 2. Intimidating the opponent high and low, all-conference players Barton Snow and Ed Schumacher try to force the mistake. 3. Dave Stoppel has a plan to beat his defender, but first he needs the ball. 4. Nobody will stop this one as 6'7" Ed Schumacher gently lays in a two-hander. 5. A slick move has gotten Dave Royse close under the basket, and he needs to get past a pair of outstretched hands for the open layup. 6. Space is hard to find in the lane when the ball comes off the rim, so forwards Mike Pauls and Barton Snow try to get there early.
FHS wins 2nd in NAIA playoffs; seniors take part in All-Star game

For the second straight season the basketball team won a berth in the NAIA District 10 Playoffs, and for the second straight season the Tigers finished second in the state behind Marymount. FHS played Kansas Wesleyan in the opening round of the playoffs and won 97-85 in overtime. Then it was on to Wichita for the title game, but Marymount pulled out an 83-73 win over the inspired Tigers for the championship.

Along with the season's trophies and accomplishments came a long list of records and individual honors. Barton Snow set new FHS season and career records for scoring, rebounding and field goals. He led the GPAC in scoring and rebounding, while Ed Schumacher followed close behind. They were voted to the All-GPAC and All-District 10 teams, and Snow received honorable mention NAIA All-American honors. Dave Royse was named to the All-GPAC Academic team, and all three seniors played in the Kansas-Missouri All-Star Game.
Wrestling team travels many miles as only Kansas college competitor

Traveling was a common occurrence for the FHS wrestlers during the 1975-76 season as they spent many hours on the highways throughout the Midwest. As the only college wrestling team in Kansas, the Tigers had to venture into neighboring states to find competition.

The season began in December with a swing through Colorado, and the next month the team traveled into Nebraska to compete in the Kearney State Quadrangular and the Dana Invitational. FHS captured first place at Dana, and 134-pounder Rich Settle was voted the top wrestler in the meet.

After a trip into Missouri and another journey to Nebraska the Tigers returned home to round out the regular season with a pair of dual meets. Appearances by seven wrestlers at the NAIA National Championships closed the campaign. The team’s dual meet record was a respectable 6-4.
1. Durand Dickerson checks the referee’s signal before trying to turn his opponent over and end the match. 2. With last-second instructions, Coach Barry Allen sends freshman heavyweight Dave Shumaker into battle. 3. The match is won, and Rich Settle returns to the bench for a rest and congratulations from teammates Scott Warner and Dave Shumaker. 4. FHS WRESTLING TEAM — Front row: Gary Delmez, Mike Hynek, Rich Settle, Durand Dickerson, Bill Havice, Stan Hagley, Randy Hill, John Ganser, Scott Warner, Dave Shumaker. Top row: Steve Minor, Richard Kunc, Ron Mueller, Dean Lippold, Danny Binder, Kirk Tangeman, Doug Moore, Dave Rochholz, Mike Baker, Jim Sherraden, Jeff Gimar. 5. Bill Havice has the takedown, and now he must carry out his planned strategy. 6. Giving a free ride isn’t what Randy Hill has in mind as he struggles to break free of the tight hold. 7. It looks bad for 190-pounder Scott Warner as he is in danger of a quick pin.
1. The Tigers have the lead in the mile relay as Cyrel Foote makes an easy hand-off to Brad Palmer.
2. Sherman Herold, the GPAC long jump champion, comes in for a landing.
3. Rounding the curve and heading into the home stretch, Brad Palmer tries to keep his lead.
4. Shane Cordell ponders his shot put and begins to make his move.
5. Two All-Americans battle it out as Garry Sigle stays on the heels of Marymount's Tony Brien in the two-mile run.
6. Bill Lowry sets out on his leg of the two-mile relay as Tom Honer slows to a stop.
7. Up and over the bar goes Mark Mathews with his backward flop.
Track squad keeps winning streak; Tigers take ninth at national meet

Four home meets highlighted the 1976 indoor track and field season, and the Tigers performed well before the cheering home fans. FHS kept its record of never losing a meet in Gross Memorial Coliseum intact. With strong showings from the field performers, the hurdlers and the distance men, the Tigers ran away from Emporia State 91-17 and crushed a good Adams State team 72-46. FHS also took to the road and edged Kearney State 66-61.

Garry Sigle and Dwight Stoppel led the squad to a ninth place finish at the NAIA Indoor Championships. Sigle placed second in the two-mile run, and Stoppel tied for second in the high jump. It was the second All-American performance for both athletes. Steve Herrman was the other Tiger scorer with his sixth place in the 1,000-yard run.

The first FHS Invitational was also held in 1976, and the host team won several first places against the broad field of competitors. The Tigers hosted the NAIA District 10 Meet and dominated the results with 13 wins in 17 events. Three District 10 records were broken by FHS competitors — Stoppel in the high jump, Herrman in the 880 and Rick Bauer in the 176-yard intermediate hurdles. Bauer also broke the coliseum and school records with his 19.8 clocking.
FHS anticipates conference outing after completing state relay circuit

The Tiger track and field team moved outdoors in the spring and opened the season at the Emporia Invitational. Rick Bauer again hit the record books with a 14.3 timing in the 120-yard high hurdles. Other champions were Cyrel Foote in the 440, Bill Filener in the 880, Steve Herrman in the mile, Garry Sigle in the three-mile and Stan Wagler in the high jump.

At the Emporia State Relays the next week, Bauer took second in the hurdles, Dwight Stoppel finished second in the high jump and the mile relay team settled for runner-up. The distance medley relay squad of Filener, Bill Lowry, Brad Palmer and Herrman finished fifth at the Kansas Relays. In dual competition, FHS blasted Kearney State 106-39 and Emporia State 115-36.
1. Bill McWhirter picks up speed and sets his aim for the pole vault.
2. Distance runners Dave Copp and Garry Sigle set the pace in the early laps of a race.
4. Steve Herrman leans into the tape inches ahead of Bill Filener and the Kearney State entry in the 880.
5. A grimace and a shout help GPAC shot put champion Bob Stewart heave a winning throw.
6. The stage is set for a close race, and Bill Lowry and Garry Sigle stay with the pack, waiting for the right chance to make their moves.
1. Battling the competition and the hurdles, Rick Bauer and Reagan Smith show their high stepping. 2. Gary Glendening takes his final step and puts all of his energy into the javelin throw. 3. It's a close finish as Mike Bowles, Cyril Foote and Brad Palmer strain for the tape. 4. Dwight Stoppel clears the bar for one of his many wins in the high jump during the 1976 season. 5. Triple threat Stan Wagler propels himself through the air for a good mark in the long jump. 6. The long race is over as Bill Lowry glances over his shoulder to watch teammate Garry Sigle cross the line. 7. After he has stopped, Bill Lowry gasps for the air that has escaped him during the stretch run. Trainer Linda Arnold helps steady him.
Tigers show strength and balance for 6th straight conference crown

Balanced scoring boosted FHS to its sixth straight conference crown as Coach Alex Francis had his team at its peak for the annual GPAC Championships in May. The field performers scored 43 points, and the runners added 100 as FHS outdistanced the seven-team field. The Tigers retained their hold on the GPAC track and field crown that no other school had ever won. Five FHS competitors — shot putter Bob Stewart, long jumper Sherman Herold, distance runner Garry Sigle, quarter-miler Cyrel Foote and hurdler Rick Bauer — won individual championships, and the mile relay team captured first place.

Besides the winners, FHS placed most of its other performers in top positions and displayed a balance no other team could match.
A busy travel schedule faced the men’s tennis team during the spring of 1976. The Tigers met many of the top small college and junior college teams in the state in dual and triangular meets and made a weekend trip into Colorado, losing to three strong teams. Three losses to Kearney State also hurt the season record, but FHS scored some convincing wins over Kansas squads to salvage a 5-12 campaign. The Tigers finished fifth in the GPAC Tourney, and freshman Mike Pauls led the scoring by placing third in the number three doubles competition.

The Tiger golfers became familiar with several courses and teams as they hosted three invitationals and hit the road for a busy round of tourneys. FHS finished third out of 14 teams at the Southwestern Invitational, second of 10 teams at the Marymount Invitational and 13th of 26 teams at Joplin’s Crossroads Tournament. Brad Printz was the medalist at Southwestern and led the Tigers to second place in the NAIA District 10 Tourney with his runner-up showing. FHS captured third in the GPAC Tourney at Hays with John Windscheffel tying for fifth.
1. The play is close at the plate as Lance Wise prepares to slide by the catcher's tag. The collision jars the ball loose from the catcher's grasp, and Mike Schippers scores a run the hard way.

Baseball team finished year strong by compiling 21-21 season record

Rainy weather juggled the schedule and tough competition challenged the FHS baseball team in 1976, but the Tigers came on strong toward the end of the season to even their record at 21-21. After returning from a swing through Texas with a 1-9 record, FHS entered its GPAC and NAIA District 10 schedules against its familiar opponents. The Tigers won eight of their first 10 games upon their return, and their early performances were led by Mike Schippers’ no-hitter against Kearney State. A marathon tripleheader against the Antelopes two weeks later sent FHS into the GPAC Tournament. The Tigers won three of their five games with Kearney State to claim the central division title.
1. The brush-back pitch is a nifty device for the pitcher, but Lance Wise doesn't enjoy the strategy.

2. It's a test of skill and accuracy as Ray Dolenzal challenges the bunting opponent. Jude Stecklein makes a solid connection with the strike. Steve Rohr takes a mighty swing and watches the ball soar toward the outfield. A double play try is coming as Lance Wise forces the runner at second base and begins his throw to first. There are plenty of teammates nearby to help Mike Schippers field the shallow fly ball.
FHS settles for runner-up places in GPAC and District 10 playoffs

FHS hosted Emporia State and Northern Colorado in the conference tourney and lost a 13-6 decision to UNC in the opening round. A grand slam home run by Bob Schmidt in the ninth inning carried the Tigers to a 7-6 win over Emporia State, but a slugfest in the championship game ended with UNC ahead of the Tigers 15-13.

The Tigers resumed their District 10 schedule with doubleheader sweeps over Bethany, Friends and Kansas Wesleyan to finish on top of the division with a 10-0 record. Pitching dominated the first day of the District 10 Playoffs at Larks Park, and FHS shut out Benedictine 2-0 and lost to Emporia State 3-0. The Tigers found their hitting range the next day as they eliminated Benedictine with an 18-2 romp. That set up a confrontation between FHS and Emporia State in the title game, but the Hornets held off a late Tiger rally to win 7-3 and claim the crown.

Three players — Schmidt, Lance Wise and Ray Dolezal — were voted to the All-District 10 team, while Ken Ubelaker, Jude Stecklein and Mike Schippers received honorable mention. Wise also won All-GPAC honors and led the Tigers in hitting with a .341 average. Schmidt led in runs batted in, runs scored and home runs. Ubelaker was the top pitcher with an 8-3 record, while Dolezal and Schippers finished at 5-5.
Team faces 'Big League' colleges, accumulates 18-13 season record

The women's volleyball team advanced into the "Big League" this season, which consisted of competition with the University of Kansas, Kansas State University and Wichita State University. Although the FHS coeds had previously experienced the quality form of these opponents in state and non-league play, this year they were included in the same league action. Drake University, the University of Nebraska at Lincoln and Hastings University were also unique to the 1975 schedule.

Losing the fourth place regional title to Augsburg College and Iowa State College at the University of Missouri at Columbia, the team completed with an 18-13 overall record.

Although the team lost two senior players, Diane Workman and Marilyn Wyman, two or three freshmen started each game. The returning talent brings hopes for an even better season next year against the more demanding opposition.
1. Coach Orvene Johnson projects instructions to the team from the sidelines. 2. Spirit is the building block to victory.
3. An unretrievable spike is forced upon the K-State opponents by Dorothy Neff as Marilyn Wyman prepares to assist. 4. Junior Kim Giles and teammate Melinda Dorowitsch execute a successful block against their opponents from Bethany. 5. Quick reflexes enable Brenda Adams to bump the ball over the net, while Janita Zerr is poised for action. 6. VOLLEYBALL TEAM — Front row: Dorothy Neff, Melinda Dorowitsch, Janita Zerr, Brenda Adams, Diane Workman. Second row: Assistant coach Ranell Ruder, Marilyn Wyman, Kim Giles, Ronda Meeker, Sandi Bryan. Top row: Coach Orvene Johnson, Martha Martin, Cindy Riedel, Bonnie Brown, Luanne Major.
Inexperience plagues tennis team; gymnasts endure frustrating year

The women's varsity tennis squad wound up the season with a disappointing 3-10 overall record.

In her first year of coaching tennis, Cindy Bross worked with a primarily inexperienced group of athletes consisting of three freshmen, three sophomores and one junior.

According to Coach Bross, "We lost to many colleges whose women have access to tennis clubs and a more enthusiastic tennis program." The team finished the season by placing second at the Emporia Tri-Meet.

Women's varsity gymnastics suffered a no-win season as a team. However, Micki Armstrong, Mulvane sophomore, qualified for the Regional meet in Brookings, S.D., by scoring an average of 6.5 in three meets during the season.

"The pressure of competition and the hours it takes to be good make gymnastics a very demanding sport. It's not that we don't have the talent, we just need girls to fill in the weak spots. As individuals the girls perform well but the team score doesn't show it. For example, at Northwestern Missouri State every girl placed but we still lost by several points," commented Head Coach Marilyn Zimmer.
Tigerettes to meet GPAC schools, compile disappointing 2-24 record

The women's varsity basketball team, consisting of two returning lettermen and eleven new players, experienced a disappointing 2-24 overall season record.

A new schedule included nationally ranked teams, consequently the women faced action against some of the best competition in the Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma area.

Head Coach Helen Miles commented, "The team showed improvement throughout the year and I feel that playing against that type of competition is a source of pride for the college. The outlook for the coming season is good since so much experience was gained by the young players."

The Tigerettes have recently joined the GPAC, which is the conference used by the men's varsity sports. The change will result in action with colleges that are near the size of Fort Hays State, yet six open games will allow competition with larger colleges.

The lack of funding for women's athletic scholarships continued to be a problem.
1. Wichita State University attempts to break through the guarding stance of Kathy Cannon. 2. Searching for an open teammate, Joyce Pfeifer is surrounded by Kearney State defenders. 3. Kathy Franz watches closely for an opportunity to steal the ball from her Alva, Okla. opponent. 4. 1. Returning letterwoman, Kim Lohman lifts the ball above K-State’s, Marsha Poppe for two points. Lohman led the squad with 42 assists. 2. Concentration and anticipation of her opponent’s next move keeps Kim Lohman on the alert. 3. Bea Gotschall is aided by Joyce Pfeifer, in pulling down a rebound through Kearney State’s defense. 4. Perfect position gives Emily Smith, Sharon Springs freshman, an advantage over Kearney State women. 5. Hays freshman Joyce Pfeifer maintains her balance as she controls the rebound. 6. Tigerette action follows the toss by Denny Douglas, officiating.
Unpredicted rains stop 12 games; team garners 8-11 softball record

After unpredicted rains caused the cancellation of 12 games, the women’s varsity softball team ended with a 8-11 record. Head Coach Cindy Bross felt the women played well against their top competition but feels that next season when the schedule includes colleges more comparable to the size of Hays, the record will improve.

“What hurts us the most is that the bigger teams in Kansas have money to recruit and have picked up good pitchers from all over the state,” said Bross.

Kathy Cannon led the team with 24 hits, four of which were home runs and 12 runs batted in.
1. Lou Major, Lyons freshman, jumps across the home plate to tally one of her seven runs of the season.

2. Sandy Beckman, Grinnell sophomore, awaits the throw although her opponent has already safely arrived.

3. Racing against the ball, Marla Melia, Goodland freshman, prepares to slide underneath the catcher to reach home plate.

5. K-State opponent wonders if she should stop or go as Cindy George, Larned sophomore, reaches for the ball.

6. Joyce Greif, Norton freshman, struggles to tag the runner.
Fourteen team members qualify for women's varsity track regional

"Interest in the FHS women's varsity track program increased a great deal because more stress is being put on high school track programs," said Head Coach Nancy Popp. She added that there is better coaching and closer attention being paid to technique and style.

"We consistently placed fourth or fifth in the big meets, which is better than average," commented Popp.

Fourteen of the eighteen team members qualified for regionals at the University of Minneapolis, Minn. Against competition from North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota and Kansas, Martha Martin placed well in the 1500-meter run to take sixth place and Carol Fowler placed seventh in the discus throw.

Popp felt that one of the problems the team encountered was in the change in several women's techniques. It held them back this season she added, but next year they hope to improve. "You can muscle it all you want but the only way to get better is to improve on techniques," stated Popp.
1. Martha Martin, Healy sophomore, inches ahead of her WSU rival. 2. Determination is displayed by Kim Giles, Hays junior. 3. Carol Fowler, Centralia sophomore, heaves the discus against Kearney State. 4. Kim Dennis, Abilene freshman, stretches for distance in the long jump. 5. WOMEN'S VARSITY TRACK TEAM — Front row: Sally Reamer, Emily Smith, Arlene Daniels, Darlene Irwin, Martha Martin, Kim Dennis, Tammi DeBusk, Tammi Zeigler. Top row: Carol Fowler, Ann Molz, Beth Cupp, Kim Giles, Ronda Meeker, Jo Zerr, Lisa Hake, Sharolyn Boyer, Lynn Hoover, Cecelia Winter. 6. Ronda Meeker, hurdles between two Kearney competitors.
A pom pon squad will replace the cheerleaders next year. With the same basic function as the cheerleaders, the squad will perform routines during breaks in the action at men's varsity basketball games.

The Fort Hays State cheerleaders led cheers for varsity wrestling events for the first time and also won the right to participate in women's varsity sports. Cheerleaders had not been allowed to participate in women's varsity sports because of a decision of the coaches in 1974-75. The women's athletic board had never made a ruling concerning the participation of cheerleaders in varsity sports.

Some of the longest-working weeks at FHS involved the athletic training staff. The athletic trainers were responsible for the prevention and treatment of injuries for all nine men's and six women's varsity sports. They administered treatment and advice to athletes and coaches at the teams' daily practices, and were on the scene whenever the Tigers and Tigerettes took on their many opponents.

Head trainer Steve Antonopulos was in charge of the staff of men and women for most of the athletic year, and he worked with his students, instructing them in the proper training methods and preparing them for emergencies. Antonopulos left his post in early March to accept the job of assistant trainer for the Denver Broncos, and his duties were picked up by several of the graduate and undergraduate assistants.

Enthusiasm in intramurals grows; coed archery new to activity slate

Increased school spirit was reflected in men's intramural action and resulted in the addition of another competitive sport. Coed archery was added to the slate of numerous activities already offered. Although the turnout was disappointing, the college's archery record was broken by Bea Gotschall. The interest in horseshoes and badminton doubled from last year and between 500 and 600 men participated in the basketball program.

Men's and women's intramural action was kept flowing smoothly by the Intramural Council. Students represented each of the housing departments, clubs and organizations so that every competing team had the opportunity to have their views expressed and defended. The council dealt with squabbles over officiating which occurred occasionally, and tried to settle these conflicts before they were magnified. They were also responsible for getting information about events to the participants and for determining schedules.
1. Delta Sig Rex Oberheim concentrates on a ringer. Dale Burge, Independent, defeated Rick Linton, Sig Tau, for the all school horseshoes title. 2. Rigid form is demonstrated as Scott Sigle places fifth in diving competition. Russ Ingold obtained the first place standing with 186 points. 3. Careful aim enables Gary Lettner to keep the ball in play. The doubles championship was cinched by the independent team of Gary Hess and Terry Cordes. 4. Only students with previous swimming experience are qualified as diving judges. 5. Big Creek Swim Club accumulated 56 points for their first place honor. 6. 1. Doug Durr, Smith Center senior (Animal Crackers), anticipates the pitch while Gary Howard, Hays freshman (King O'Hearts), catches. King O'Hearts took first in the softball playoffs. 2. Rex Staven, Hays freshman, and teammate Bob Reed, Hays junior (Sig Chi's), placed fifth in men's intramural badminton competition. 3. Keeping his form, Don Babcock, Utica sophomore (Bab's Boons), slides over the high jump bar. 4. Students representing McGrath Hall, Custer Hall, Fudpuckers, Independents and Weist Hall are set for the starting signal. 5. Ben Gray, Williams, Ariz. senior, is inches away from claiming the first place position in the relay race. 6. Sig Ep Jeff Luce, Collyer freshman (second from left) wins the 100-yard dash with a time of 10.5 seconds.
Involvement in intramurals excels; women’s participation nears 50%

Considering its size, FHS offered one of the most successful programs in the state. Of 2,000 women attending the college, approximately one-half of them participated. Along with this enthusiasm came a variety of competition; therefore, every woman had the chance to compete against others of the same ability.

Seldom were any problems encountered with the scheduling of activities, since there were no problems in obtaining equipment. Fort Hays State also had the advantage in the area of officiating. Unlike many other schools, the officials came from a class required for physical education majors. They gained practical experience and no additional funds were needed for payment.

Helen Miles, women’s intramural director, structured the activities as ‘recreational outlets,’ rather than strictly competitive ones. “Although no awards were offered, outstanding participation and sportsmanship were displayed in nearly every event,” Miles said.
1. Marsha Hamilton, Oberlin freshman, returns her opponent's serve in singles intramural action.

2. Agony of defeat is reflected on the Sigma’s faces after losing the playoffs battle; however, they finished with the third place title.

3. The gentle jocks of McMinds II East displayed athletic talent by accumulating the top notch position in women's intramural football and second place in volleyball. First row: Dana York, Jill Reitz, Nancy Diehl, Jo Ronen. Middle row: Teresa Aitken, Jo Jean Schulte, Cheryl Thielen. Top row: Kathleen Franz, Kim Lohman.

4. Individual skill as well as teamwork is essential for doubles table tennis competition. Placing first, Starr Wagner and partner Chuck Gentry evidently had what it takes.

5. Robin Shelite of the second place Independent II team slithers through the grasps of her opponents.

6. Sue Stafford and Karen Shultz compete in the 200-yard freestyle. Stafford was victorious with a time of 3:31.3.

Geology Excursion

Ted Fritz, geology graduate assistant, participated in a cross country ski excursion in Yellowstone National Park Dec. 23 to Jan. 4. The expedition was "to provide interested people with the opportunity to study wildlife, with emphasis on geyser formation, proper winter camping and avalanche survival techniques . . . ." Facing extremely cold temperatures, the group soon learned that one mistake may cost a life, and that "the potential for injury is always there." Fritz was the only Kansan in the group of 14 students from colleges and universities throughout the U.S.

Woman Geologist

Vicki Niermeier, Ludell graduate student, made FHS history by becoming the first woman to receive her master's degree in geology here.

Since her sophomore year when she decided to major in geology, Niermeier has been eyeing a goal of working professionally for the federal or state government.

The work would involve mapping quadrangle areas, measuring sections and studying rock formations.

Here, she works on her thesis project, a map of a quadrangle area in northeast Utah.

Children and Mothers

In presenting her thesis on “Attachment and Separation Anxiety,” Mary Cramm, Hays graduate student, attempted to prove that “it’s dangerous to separate young children from their mothers for an extended period of time.”

By putting children — ages nine months, 12 months and 15 months — through episodes involving their mother, a familiar person, and a total stranger, Mrs. Cramm tested the theory that a child’s attachment behavior varies according to the child’s age.

Participating in one of the experimental activities are Mrs. Margaret Smith and her son, Gregory.

Tomanek presides over Bicentennial graduation

Graduation 1976 — a Bicentennial event. More than 5,000 friends, parents, faculty and students filled Gross Memorial Coliseum to watch as nearly 900 individuals received degrees. As the result of the efforts of Mortar Board, graduates wore tassels of varying colors to depict their areas of study. Rachel Kraus, Hays senior, spoke of the Bicentennial graduating class as "the cornerstone of the third century of Americans." In his first graduation ceremony as college president, Dr. Gerald Tomanek bade the graduates "to remember Ford Hays State with kindness... we are always with you."

At the graduation banquet, prior to the formal exercises, Pilot and Torch Awards were presented to the outstanding seniors and faculty members. The Pilot Awards were given to Maxine Hoffman, Home Economics Department chairman, and Dr. Robert Dressler, associate professor of chemistry. Barbara Broeckelman, Grinnell senior, and John Dorsch, Bird City senior, were recipients of the 1976 Torch Awards.
1. Years of hard work reach an end for agriculture major J. C. Barr, as he receives his diploma from Registrar Jim Kellerman. 2. Battling to overcome a language barrier makes the struggle to graduation tougher for many foreign students at FHS. Patty Lee, James Lee and Monticha Vudhiyangkura gather to capture the memorable moment. 3. Pilot and Torch Award recipients, Dr. Robert Dressler and Barbara Broeckelman, receive congratulations from friends after the senior banquet. 4. Pre-medical student John Dorsch received the Torch Award as outstanding male student. 5. Dr. Gerald Tomanek presides over his first graduation ceremony as president of FHS. 6. On behalf of the Board of Regents of Kansas, Glee Smith congratulates the 1976 graduating class. 7. At commencement, Rachel Kraus, representative of the graduating class, speaks to graduates and friends. 8. Seniors chose the recipients of the Pilot Awards for outstanding faculty man and woman. Maxine Hoffman and Dr. Robert Dressler were the selected award winners.

Sculptor

"So this is modern sculpture!" An unusually interesting project was in progress fall semester, as Kent Ficken, Hays junior, created a ceramic form on top of a wooden structure padded with multi-stained canvas and foam. He is a sculpture major and a ceramics minor.

"I like to combine sculpture, ceramics, painting media and technique to create unique concoctions and offer good art to the public at a reasonable cost," Ficken stated as he continued work on this project which was sold at the Art Cellar.

“Electronic news gathering is as important to television broadcasting as the development of color broadcasting,” noted Don Schwartz, Salina senior, whose fall semester project involved writing, producing, and directing a video film on electronic news gathering.

Electronic news gathering is a time-saving development. Using a portable hand-held camera, video tape machine and micro-wave transmission unit, television can tele­vise live any news event at any place any time. Schwartz has assumed a broadcasting job at KSAL in Salina.

Equality

“We’re both farm girls so the work isn’t too hard. We’re used to bucking bales,” commented Janis Jilg, Great Bend junior, (right) who was one of the first two girls hired in the faculty mailroom three years ago.

She is a nursing major and plans to work in ghetto areas to serve the underprivileged as a public health nurse. Ruth Bellerive, Morland junior, also works in the mailroom. She will teach speech pathology in a public school after graduation. Equal Opportunity has given both of them chances to prove themselves to be qualified.

"The Contrast," a campus theater production, involved the use of musical themes written and performed by Brett Musser, Phillipsburg junior. Musser is a music education major whose talents were used for scene changes, dance routines and plot explanations in the November comedy. A member of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia men's honorary music fraternity, Musser was also named Outstanding Freshman in the Music Department in 1974.

Musser's compositions were patriotic and lively with variations of "Yankee Doodle" used throughout the play.

Leather craft is an enjoyable way of earning money and credit for Ann Studley, Salina sophomore. An Art Therapy major, she will be certified to teach elementary and secondary education.

Making belts, purses, and wallets has kept Studley busy since she enrolled in a beginning crafts class spring semester 1975. "Leather is expensive, but relaxing to work with. The labor is cheap considering how much time is put into each item," commented Studley as she continued working on one of several orders needing final touches.
Confusion, frustration and excitement go into planning the first class schedule with a little help from a student familiar with the college routine.
Parent's Day gets off to a good start as Rita Powers, Garden City sophomore, greets her parents at the Memorial Union.

One more trip from car to dorm room and this Weist Hall resident will be ready for retirement.
"It's an exciting sport," commented Kurt Ross, Ellinwood freshman, who spends his free time practicing for and racing in amateur motorcycle contests sponsored by the Kansas Motorcycle Sportsman Association (KMSA).

Ross, along with about twenty other FHS students, practice and travel together with Team Outdoor actions as their sponsor. Point season begins April 1 and continues through Oct. 30 when the ten highest scorers are paid for their points and awarded trophies.

Ross owns a Kawasaki KX125 and has been racing for two years in the KMSA contests. "It's much more dangerous to ride a motorcycle on the streets, than to ride on a well laid out track," stated Ross who restricts his sport to the track.

"I enjoy playing guitar and singing for people in a relaxed atmosphere. Music comes naturally to me, not out of a book," remarked Angela Reuber, Atwood senior.

A physical education major, she will work with the physically and mentally handicapped after graduation. Writing her own music and lyrics, Reuber has played for Agnew Hall dinners and candlelightings and is a member of the guitar choir at the Ecumenical Center. She also receives many requests to play and sing at weddings. Reuber has played classical guitar for four years.

In Memoriam

Dean Jean Stouffer
1920-1976

Jean Stouffer, Associate Dean of students at Fort Hays State, died June 2, 1976. She was a native of Lawrence and a graduate from the University of Kansas with degrees in business and history. She received a master's degree in the social sciences from Syracuse University, Syracuse, N.Y.

An associate professor of business, she joined the FHS faculty in 1955 as Dean of Women. During her tenure at the college she was the major advisor for foreign students on campus. Her most recent award was the M. C. Cunningham award for outstanding service to education by Phi Delta Kappa. She was the first woman to receive the honor since its inception.

Fort Hays State will miss Dean Jean Stouffer.
Meeting the challenge

"The Challenge of Change" — a fitting theme for the 1976 Reveille, not only because 1976 was our country's Bicentennial year, but because change was abundant at Fort Hays State. We have constantly been reminded of America's heritage this year. Special opening features on the environment, equality, communication, adventurous spirits, remnants of the past, and religion, were all attempts to indirectly cover both America's heritage and the constancy of change we recognized during the nation's 200th year.

America is not the same today as it was yesterday, and will not be the same tomorrow as it was today. Change brings with it challenges which have been met, and which will be dealt with in the future.
Accepting the change

Fort Hays State has had its own share of significant changes this year. Heading the list of changes was the installation of a new president — Dr. Gerald Tomanek — as the seventh president in FHS's history of nearly 75 years. Dr. Tomanek recognized the "challenges" awaiting his administration. Foremost among these challenges was the building of a new image of Fort Hays State as a strong institution of learning, rather than as "the little college on the prairie." It is at this time that the Board of Regents and the Legislature must be convinced that Fort Hays State has grown to "university" status and should be so named.

The Board of Regents approved a change in the college's organizational structure from three academic "faculties" to three "schools" of learning. Another Board decision popular with students was the ruling which allowed the legal sale of beer on campus. The problems created by the enforcement of Title IX, and the changing campus face were other changes the Reveille staff highlighted.

We have attempted to show the impact of these changes and the spirit of change which was particularly strong at FHS during 1975-76. Certainly not all change can be called good, but change does become a necessity and an important force for human improvement. This year, change has been a motivational factor for the 1976 Reveille staff, and with the help of adviser David Adams; Lorraine "Jack" Jackson and the student photography staff; Taylor Publishing Company representative Paul McClellan; and Stevens Portrait Studios, we were able to meet the challenge.
