Alums to Receive Appeal For Defense Loan Support

Within the next few days approximately 9,000 FHS alumni will receive an appeal by mail from the FHS Endowment Assn. and asked the questions "DO YOU KNOW . . ."

. . . that 208 students were able to attend FHS last year because alumni and friends contributed to the Endowment Assn. for the National Defense Student Loan program?

. . . that a total of $150,758.18 was loaned to 361 FHS students during the 1961-62 year?

. . . that many students need help — NOW?

Again this year, the college is participating in the NDSL program. To qualify for the maximum amount of $152,675 allotted to FHS by the federal government, the college must raise $15,265.70, or one-tenth.

Part of this sum has been raised, but $8,000 is needed by Feb. 15, or part of the funds approved for this year must be forfeited. To add to the pressure, more students have applied for loans than there is money to assist—even if the maximum amount is received.

Peace Corps Tests Four FHS Students

A total of four FHS students took the Peace Corps written examination Saturday in the Hays City Library.

The examination will be offered again March 9 and April 27. Students interested in taking the tests should file an application questionnaire in the Dean of Men's Office, Picken Hall, Room 208.

Students are not required to join the Peace Corps if they pass the test. The examination is not competitive.

Elections Planned By People-to-People

The FHS People-to-People program will elect officers to a one-year term at a 7 p.m. meeting Friday in the Memorial Union.

Any of its 85 members will be eligible for election, with the newly elected members to meet with Gary Richards, Kansas City, P-t-P state representative in mid-February on the FHS campus. Richards will come to FHS to aid in the formation of P-t-P committees.

Tuesday, P-t-P will present the results of the election to ASC along with the membership drive results, Christmas open house results and a report on the group's financial status.

HS Seniors to Visit FHS

A total of 48 top-ranking high school seniors have accepted invitations to attend Outstanding Student Day activities at Fort Hays State Saturday.

Representatives Meet For Follies Planning

Representatives from all campus organizations planning to participate in the Fort Hays Follies will meet at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday in the Memorial Union Astra Room.

Letters have been sent to all campus organizations who are interested in participating in the Follies requesting they select a delegate to attend the first meeting. At the meeting the production staff will inform the representatives of the Follies theme, general rules and deadline.

Appointment to Military Academy Given to Versatile Freshman

By Gordon New Leader Staff Writer

Howard P. Killough, Jr., Russell freshman, recently received by telegram from Senator Frank Carlson an appointment to the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y.

Mid-February mental and physical entrance examinations are the only barriers remaining before this 17-year-old keeper of many irons in the proverbial fire realizes his life's ambition.

Upon successful completion of the exams, Killough will enter "The Point" July 2. Killough has enrolled at FHS for the spring semester.

Killough is not only a college freshman but a high school senior as well. Since he skipped his senior year of high school to attend FHS, he is now taking correspondence courses making him eligible for a high school diploma.

Scholarships, a Snowcone business and a night dispatcher's job at the Russell County Sheriff's Dept. last summer are paying for Killough's first year of college.

As an avid chess supporter (he entered his first tournament when he was nine) he helped organize the FHS Chess Club.

Besides the Chess Club, Killough is a member of the Young Republicans, IRC and the Little Theater. He is also co-chairman of the program committee for college students of the Hays Baptist Church.

Tuesday evenings Killough can be heard broadcasting over KFHS,

Four Frosh Perform Feb. 12 at High School

The Four Freshmen, survey-ranked as "Best Vocal Group" by United Press, Down Beat and Metronome, will perform at 8 p.m. Feb. 12 in the Hays High Auditorium.

Tickets for the performance went on sale Wednesday night at the Tiger Hop for $2 each. There are only 1,000 tickets available. The Memorial Union is sponsoring the performance in connection with the Artists and Lectures Series.

Performances by the quartet are not limited only to vocalizing; the boys can blow, strum or thump seven instruments.

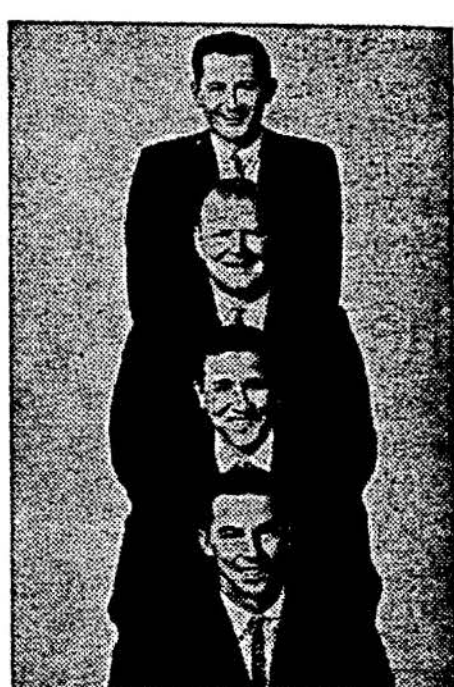

Bob Flanigan sings the top voice, plays trombone and doubles on string bass; Ross Barbour is master of ceremonies, sings third voice and plays drums and trumpet; Ken Albers, the bass voice of the group, plays trumpet and mellophone; Bill Comstock sings second voice and plays guitar. Ken and Bill also arrange and compose many of the numbers used by the group.

Initially the boys called themselves "The Toppers" but changed to the "Four Freshmen" just before their professional debut in Ft. Wayne, Ind., Sept. 28, 1948.

After arriving in Los Angeles and cutting their first records, the group made its West Coast night club debut at Jerry Wald's Studio Club. This engagement resulted in an appearance on the Steve Allen television show and a spot in the motion picture "Rich, Young and Pretty."

Southern California is now home base for the "Four Freshmen," although personal appearances usually keep them on the road nearly 10 months out of the year.

Workshop To Be Held Feb. 9 For Top High School Bands

Four high school bands will be attending a workshop on the campus of FHS Feb. 9, in Sheridan Coliseum.

High school bands from Ness City, Kingman, Hoisington and Belleville will join in the workshop from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m., after which the Fort Hays State Symphonic Band, under the direction of Lyle Dilley, FHS band director, will present a program.

Following the FHS Symphonic Band, Jim Maxwell, guest director, will lead the FHS Stage Band.

The four bands and their directors are:

The Ness City High School Band, under the direction of Bill Bolton, attended the World's Fair and was the official band representing the state of Kansas. The Ness City band was invited to perform at the opening session of the 1962 Kansas State Teachers meeting held on campus of FHS.

The band and Bolton have received a great deal of recognition for the outstanding quality of their marching and playing.

Hoisington High School Band is under the direction of Lee Dicks.

FUTURE GENERAL—Howard Killough, Russell, will enter the West Point Military Academy this summer. He plans on making a career of the army.

A Lot of Money

Doesn't it seem strange that President Kennedy feels he must spend half a billion dollars more next year than President Roosevelt spent in the most expensive year of World War II?

It must be more expensive to run a cold war than a hot one.

Just to throw around a few figures, Kennedy is raising Ike's largest budget by $17.3 billion after just two years. The national debt went up $22.9 billion during Ike's EIGHT years, but will go up $26.6 billion during JFK's first THREE years—if the deficit is no more than Administration predictions.

Kennedy's proposed budget for 1964, even though he feels he has severely limited it, is $98.8 billion.

$98.8 billion. That's 98.8 thousand million. If JFK gets six more years in office at that rate, the budget will be $150.7 billion, providing there is no inflation.

Figures like this make our heads hurt. Think what they do to the Republicans' heads.

The Dangerous Game

Have the leaders of the world's nations ever been compared to children, constantly fighting and engaging in acts of spite over who will control what?

In the world-wide neighborhood there are two gangs, and each thinks the other side is doing things all wrong.

The short, chubby bully leading the east side has a number of bad boys in his gang. He wants to take over the whole neighborhood and either forces various blocks to see things his way or convinces them they will have more fun playing his games. He wants to control all the toys and then distribute them according to each child's worth. He's quite crude and banged his shoe on a table the last time he was on the west side for talks.

The lithe, clean-cut leader of the west side, although given to a slightly sneaky trick now and then, is generally fair in his methods of taking over areas of the neighborhood. He has a number of wealthy fathers on his side and often tries to buy his way out of scrapes. His main idea is that each child should get all he can, and the ones that are too ignorant or unable to achieve anything are to be given enough to get by on.

Although both sides have enough trouble fighting each other, there are factions on each side that provide additional worries for the leaders.

There is one east-side boy that wants to break away from the main gang and form one of his own with tougher policies. There is also a bearded upstart that bites off more than he can chew and then runs to the leader for aid.

The west side has its problems also, both with a toy-trading agreement on one block that is excluding one of the members for wanting to trade too much with another block, and, with the leader himself, for wanting to give too many goodies to those members that won't or can't do much for themselves.

The kiddies all have their problems and in many ways appear to be much like other neighborhood gangs. There is one major difference, though. When the leaders of these two gangs say they will completely destroy the other's toys and members, he actually has the means to do so, and quickly, too.

Kids are frightening at times, aren't they?

Mumblings

Are all you people that griped about the heat last summer having fun this winter?

It's too cold to go ice skating (my ankles bend anyhow), there aren't any hills around here large enough to scare yourself on a sled, let alone skis, and no one has an ice boat.

The main activity centers around keeping the house warm, something that leaves little time, or heart, for winter sports.

Most of the throw rugs around our house have been stuffed in drafty door and window cracks. In one window, where the sill is too narrow to hold a rug, the curtains stand out about four inches when the wind blows. A formation of ice on the inside front door knob tells us the temperature has dropped below zero and the kitchen stove has been used more for heating than cooking purposes.

In order to have hot water for morning thawing, we have to get up at some ungodly hour of the ayem and turn it on. The water heater must be in Ellis.

The cave men probably spent less time hunting beasts for food than we do keeping warm.

The cold house isn't the only thing that bothers me in winter. My car always waits until the temperature drops out of sight before it breaks. And the parts that don't break refuse to function properly. The doors freeze shut and pull off weather stripping, gears prang off with alarming ease, water forms in the crankcase at the rate of three quarts for every mile driven in town and the salt on streets eats off a couple of pounds of metal every week.

Add to this the icy streets, making it likely to be involved in an expensive shunt from any direction.

There are a few people, obviously with a walrus somewhere in the family tree, who don't seem to mind the cold weather. At the other extreme is a fellow I know who hasn't been out of his house for three days. He doesn't know if his car will start and doesn't care; he won't even look out the window because it scares him. If the weather doesn't warm, he plans on taking the first part of the spring semester by correspondence.

We don't seem to have it so bad when compared to the elderly man living out in the open near Ellinwood. Even though he is hardened to the cold, he has been having a hard time keeping comfortable the past few days. Maybe he drinks Sterno. drw

Speaker Bans Discussed By Law Professor

(ACP) — Speakers bans at American state universities are unconstitutional, according to William Van Alstyne, Ohio State University law professor.

Van Alstyne made the charge in the January issue of the University of Pennsylvania's "Law Review." He maintains the Fourteenth Amendment, which provides that no state can prohibit freedom of speech, applies to state universities because they are a part of the state.

"The prevailing philosophy of universities," he says, "is one of Platonism—that a few gifted decision-makers are sufficiently endowed to distinguish truth from falsehood and propaganda from information that they are obliged by the responsibility of their offices to insulate their impressionable wards from error, by restricting what shall be heard."

The report is discussed by THE DAILY CALIFORNIAN, Berkeley. That student newspaper notes that its university president, Clark Kerr, has stated that the "Platonic philosophy is not the one that the university subscribes to. Kerr has said: "The university is not engaged in making students safe for ideas."

According to Van Alstyne, there are only two ways a speaker can be barred from a university campus constitutionally: If the speech would, at the particular time and place requested, disrupt previously scheduled university programs, or if the speaking area had been reserved.

However, he said the university could refuse a person permission to speak if the speaker's presence or speech would create "substantial probability that (he) will bring about the substantive evils that (the legislature) has a right to prevent."

Van Alstyne said many who have been prevented from speaking would not have created a clear and present danger and would have advocated lawful action only.

He explained that lawful action is action that, even if it resulted directly from the speech, clearly could not be punished. As examples of this lawful action he listed speeches urging the repeal of the McCarran act and elimination of the House Committee on Un-American activities, the repeal of the Sixteenth Amendment, recognition of Red China and impeachment of the Chief Justice of the United States.

Universities do not have to allow any guest speakers, Van Alstyne said. "However, it is doubtful that the primary educational purposes of a university are totally circumscribed by its curricula alone."

Sig Taus Will Dribble to Ellis

Sigma Tau Gamma pledges plan to dribble a basketball from Hays to Ellis Saturday and have challenged any other fraternity to equal their time under the same conditions with less than 16 men.

The 14-man operation has received clearance from local police and highway patrol authorities and will begin at 1 p.m. at the Sig Tau house, 518 W. 21 St.

Timing for the contest will begin when the men reach 40 Highway and will stop at the stop light in Ellis.

The men said they will each dribble the ball for about one-quarter of a mile in relays for the 14-mile distance. They also said nothing short of a blizzard would stop them.

The contest begins at the intersection of Main and 40 Highway.

The idea for the endurance run popped up during a bull session and the men plan to try for the national record held by Colorado State University from Fort Collins to Denver.

Debaters Enter Stiff Harvard Meet

FHS debaters Dan McGovern, Upland, Calif., and Rex Gaskill, Hutchinson, both juniors, move to Harvard University this week for a debate tournament.

Debate coach Jim Costigan will accompany the team.

Two other debate teams will see action this weekend in the McPherson tournament. Jonie Burris, Hays sophomore, and Janey Weinhold, Ellsworth senior, comprise the women's team. Tom Teschner and Richard Scott, both Atchison freshmen, will make up the men's team.

Al Dunavan, associate professor of speech, will accompany the McPherson debaters.

In their first competition since early December, the FHS debaters met with a busy tournament last week in the Pittsburg State tourney.

Emerging with one second-place rating in TV announcing and a 50-50 record in debate, coach Jim Costigan's debaters held one distinction. FHS was the only college entered with three entries in the final rounds of individual events.

Miss Weinhold brought home the only award, a second place in TV announcing. Gaskill qualified as one of five finalists in extemporaneous speaking and McGovern had equal rank in oratory.

The women's team, Miss Weinhold and Miss Burris, and the men's team, McGovern and Gaskill, each won three rounds but dropped in the preliminary section of the two-day meet.

CALPURNIA, HERE I COME

Now, as the college year approaches its mid-point, one fact emerges clearly: you are all going to flunk everything.

There are two things you can do about it. First, you can marry money. (I don't mean you marry the money itself; I mean you marry a person who has money. Weddings between people and currency have not been legal anywhere in the United States since the Smoot-Hawley Act. Marlboro Cigarettes, on the other hand, are legal everywhere and are, indeed, smoked with great pleasure and enthusiasm in all fifty states of the Union. I bring up Marlboro Cigarettes because this column is sponsored by the makers of Marlboro, and they are inclined to brood if I omit to mention their product.)

But I digress. I was saying you can marry money but, of course, you will not because you are a high-minded, clean-living, pure-hearted, freckle-faced American kid. Therefore, to keep from flunking, you must try the second method: you must learn how to take lecture notes.

According to a recent survey, 123.6% of American undergraduates do not know the proper way to take lecture notes. To illustrate this shocking statistic, let us suppose you are taking a course in history. Let us further suppose the lecturer is lecturing on the ruling houses of England. You listen intently. You write diligently in your notebook, making a topic outline as you have been taught. Like this:

- I. House of Plantagenet.
- II. House of Lancaster.
- III. House of York.

Then you stop. You put aside your pen. You blink back a tear, for you cannot go on. Oh, yes, you know very well that the next ruling house is the House of Tudor. The trouble is you don't know the Roman numeral that comes after III.

They Got to arguing...

(It may, incidentally, be of some historical interest to point out that Americans are not the only people who don't know Roman numerals. The Romans didn't know them themselves. I suppose they could tell you how much V or X were or like that, but when it came to real cuties like LXI or MMC, they just flung away their styluses and went downtown to have a bath and take in a circus and maybe stab Caesar a few times.

(You may wonder why Rome stuck with these ridiculous numerals when the Arabs had such a nice, simple system. Well sir, the fact is that the Emperor Vespasian tried like crazy to buy the Arabic numerals from Suleiman the Magnificent, but Suleiman wouldn't do business—not even when Vespasian raised his bid to 100,000 gold piastres, plus he offered to throw in the Colosseum, the Appian Way, and Charlton Heston.

(So Rome stuck with Roman numerals—to its sorrow, as it turned out. One day in the Forum, Cicero and Pliny got to arguing about how much is CDL times MVIX. Well sir, pretty soon everyone in town came around to join the hassle. In all the excitement, nobody remembered to lock the north gate and—wham!—before you could say pecca fortiter, in rushed the Goths, the Visigoths, and the Green Bay Packers!)

Well sir, that's the way the empire crumbles, and I digress. Let's get back to lecture notes. Let's also say a word about Marlboro Cigarettes. The makers would be so pleased! And is it not fitting that we should please these honest tobaccoists—these fine men, fond of square dancing, water sports, protein, and tattoos—these tireless perfectionists who spend all of their days trying to please us—searching everywhere for the best of all possible tobaccos, aging them with patience, blending them with tender, loving care? Marlboros are available in soft pack and flip top box. You will find XX cigarettes in each package.

Pan American, St. Benedict's On Tap; Tigers Down SW College, Fall To Pitt

After splitting two games on a road trip over the weekend, Fort Hays State's basketball squad hosts Pan American College Saturday night and then travels to St. Benedict's Monday.

Saturday night a rugged Pittsburg State squad defeated the Bengals, 96-83, but Monday they bounced back to hand Southwestern College of Winfield their biggest loss of the season, 90-75.

Pan American, which is located at Edinburg, Texas, plays a 20-game schedule, plus at least three tournaments. Spearheading the attack throughout the long season has been Lucious Jackson, a 6-9 junior, who is averaging over 24 points per game and nearly 18 rebounds per contest.

One of three Pan American players named to All-America honorable mention berths by the Associated Press and United Press International last year, Jackson was one of two members of the Texas squad chosen to be on the team which played the touring Russian Men's Olympic squad in November.

Teammate Jim McGurk, 6-4 junior forward, was the other Bronco on the squad. Last year McGurk was the fifth high scorer on the Texas team, averaging 11 points per game through 30 contests.

When the Tigers meet Pan American at 7:30 in Sheridan Coliseum, they will be putting a 19-game home court winning streak on the line. The record is 22 games, set from 1948 to 1950.

A potentially strong Raven squad will be waiting for the Tigers when they arrive for a contest at 8:15 in St. Benedict's Gymnasium.

Basketball mentor Ralph Nolan has been unable to find a consistent scorer and the Ravens' season record now stands at 4-10, while being 0-2 in Central Intercollegiate Conference action.

The Bengals now have a 10-3 overall mark and a 2-2 record in conference play.

By successfully executing their play patterns and improving their shooting percentage, the Tigers downed Southwestern College.

The Bengals connected on 50.7 per cent of their shots from the field to lead the Builders all the way. It was the first time the cagers from Winfield had been beaten by more than six points.

Trailing 44-35 at halftime, Southwestern fought back to within two points, 49-47, behind the fine shooting of senior center Don Turner.

The determined Tigers were not to be denied victory however, as Sam McDowell, Herb Stange, John Channell and Jude Gerstner improved the visitors advantage to 70-55.

Leading the Bengal attack was 6-5 senior John Channell, who was high scorer and rebounder. The Goodland product totaled 27 points, his high for the season, and pulled down 15 rebounds, high for both teams.

Teammate Herb Stange tallied 21 while grabbing 14 caroms and Smith Center junior Sam McDowell added 16 points.

Against Pittsburg State Saturday night, the Gorillas and Tigers met in the traditional rough and tumble style of ball played between the two squads.

Fifty-five fouls were called throughout the contest, which ended with not less than three players stretched out on the floor.
