The United States Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs selected Nancy Ann Ward to be the 1967 Reveille Queen. Prior to that time, the Reveille Queen had been chosen by a well-known personality. The 1966 Reveille Queen, Reva Deeds, had been selected by Deborah Bryant, the first Kansan to become Miss America.

Glenda Rudolph reigned as the first Fort Hays State College Rodeo Queen in 1966, while Sondra Hutchins reigned as Rodeo Queen during the second annual Intercollegiate Rodeo in 1967. 1967 rodeo events included calf roping, steer wrestling, and in saddle bronc, bareback, and bullriding for the men and goat tying and barrel and ribbon racing for the women.

As far as fashion was concerned, men wore bright-colored suits that had a double-breasted look. Wing tips, brogues, and oxfords were popular footwear for men. On the other hand, women wore mini-skirts, tent dresses, pantsuits, or hipsters. Hipsters were skirts and slacks cut low to ride on the hips. Car coats and matched coordinates were also popular.

The newspaper staff selected Lasses of the Month for feature spots in the State College Leader. Male students voted Betty Haas as the Leader Lass of the Year in 1966 and Linda Depperschmidt as the Leader Lass of the Year in 1967.

Cade Suran, athletic director and former head basketball coach, was inducted into the NAIA Basketball Coaches Hall of Fame.

A study sponsored by Alpha Kappa Psi, a professional business fraternity, showed that FHS students poured more than 8 ½ million dollars into the local economy during the 1965-1966 academic year.

Record-breaking crowds totaling nearly 5,000 people attended the eighth annual Western Kansas Industrial Arts Fair. Students from 41 different high schools and junior high schools entered a total of 1,532 projects for the fair.

Edwin Davis, Professor Emeritus of Industrial Arts, died in 1967. He joined the FHS faculty in the fall of 1916 and retired in 1957. Davis Hall was named in his honor and was first occupied in 1951.
