This multi-emotional bronze creation is one piece of an exhibit by Mary Bates. Located in Davis Hall, Bates' artworks will be shown until Sept. 19.

Alumni organize Homecoming

Fort Hays State Homecoming 1977 has been scheduled and a Calendar of Events released by the Alumni Office for the weekend of Oct. 7-9. The homecoming celebration will be in conjunction with the Hays area Oktoberfest celebration again this year.

"Seventy-five Years of Education and Service" is the theme for this year's homecoming parade on Oct. 8. Each entry should depict one of the historical events during FHS's 75-year history.

Any individual or group wishing to enter the parade should contact Mary Larson, parade chairman, at 625-6329 for full information and entry forms. The deadline for entries is at 5 p.m., Sept. 23. No late entries will be accepted.

Twenty-five awards will be given including: the Sweepstakes Award, $100; first place in each decade, $30; second place in each decade, $15; and third place in each decade, $5.

An eight-man committee is assisting Larson with the Homecoming Historical Pageant Parade.

Concerning booths for Oktoberfest, organizations planning to sell items at the grounds must have their application turned into the Student Affairs Office by Sept. 15. There is a limited number of booths.

The Oktoberfest celebration will run all day Friday, Oct. 7 in the Hays South Park. Registration for homecoming activities will open at 8 a.m. in the Memorial Union's Sunset Lounge. Friday evening the Alumni-Endowment Association banquet begins at 6 p.m. Contact the Alumni Office for reservations.

Immediately following the banquet a Lewis Field Pioneer Reception will be held at the Smoky Hill Country Club. The homecoming concert is at 8:30 in Gross Memorial Coliseum with information and reservation requests available from the MUAB.

On Saturday the activities begin early with the Lewis Field Pioneers' breakfast at 7:15 a.m. at the Vagabond Inn. Registration opens at 8 a.m. in the Sunset Lounge followed by the Homecoming Historical Pageant Parade at 9:30 a.m. From 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. a buffet luncheon will be served in the Memorial Union. Also beginning at 11 a.m. will be the Tiger Debs reunion in the Black and Gold Room of the union. At 11:15 a.m. the School of Nursing's Silver Anniversary luncheon begins in the First United Methodist Church and the Hall of Fame Club luncheon and the class of 1927 reunion will be held in the union Ballroom.

Pre-game ceremonies begin at 1 p.m. in Lewis Field Stadium and the kick-off of the FHS vs. Emporia State football game is at 1:30.

At 4 p.m. a post-game Tiger rally in the Sunset Lounge features the music of Mary Maude Moore. The Improvisos and Johnny Chambers. The Post Game Huddle K Club social hour and buffet starts at 5:30 in the Black and Gold Room of the union. Reunion classes of 1937, 1947, 1957 and 1967 host the homecoming cocktail buffet at 6 p.m. at the Elks Club. Beginning at 8 p.m. the Theater Department presents "The Fantasticks" in Felten-Star Theater. Saturday's festivities conclude with the alumni-sponsored Diamond Jubilee Dance this year.

Program. The Jimmy Maxwell Band will perform at the Fort Hays State Ballroom and the Johnny Chambers group appears at the Elks Club. Mary Maude Moore and the Improvisos will perform at both locations.

U.S. approves program

Gov. Robert Bennett announced that Kansas' proposal to establish a guaranteed student loan program for Kansas college and university students has been approved by the U.S.

The loan program, which will be financed and administered by the Higher Education Assistance Foundation, enables students who have been unable to obtain loans for post-secondary education from commercial lenders to get loans from the foundation.

The foundation, a non-profit organization which has operated a similar student loan program in Minnesota, will establish a separate corporation in Kansas which will sell revenue bonds at no obligation to the state to finance the loan program. The Kansas non-profit corporation will be known as the Higher Education Loan Program of Kansas.

"Assuring that student loans for post-secondary education are accessible in Kansas is an important objective in our effort to provide adequate opportunities for Kansas citizens to benefit from education beyond high school," said Bennett.

"Although commercial lenders in the state have made significant contributions by committing substantial sums for student loans," Bennett said, "the need for loans to post-secondary students exceeds the amount which experience indicates can be made available by commercial lenders."

John Conard, executive officer of the Kansas Board of Regents, said the foundation intends to begin processing loan applications in September, but that several requirements of the Higher Education Act of 1965, as amended in 1976, first must be met.

Once these requirements have been met, the foundation will be able to provide loans to Kansas residents for use in public or private colleges and universities in Kansas or outside the state lenders. Non residents will be eligible for the loans if they are attending colleges or universities within Kansas.

The loan program also will apply to students attending junior colleges and approved proprietary schools.

Bennett said he had supported the program because it would cost Kansas taxpayers nothing and would be administered through a private, non-profit organization rather than a government agency.

"This program, developed after several months of discussion and exploration by the Board of Regents," said Bennett, "promises to be of tremendous benefit to students seeking loans to finance their education."

"The program's success in Minnesota clearly indicated that the Higher Education Assistance Foundation can develop, finance, and administer a comprehensive student loan program without state subsidy."

Public and private colleges and universities in Kansas will work with the foundation to process loan applications, verify enrollment status and counsel students regarding procedures, applications, guidelines and responsibilities of the program. Applications for loans will be received primarily through the financial aid offices of the various Kansas colleges and universities.

Acting as a focal point for the program, the foundation will guarantee loans made to qualified students by commercial lenders, make direct loans to students unable to obtain them from commercial lenders, repay commercial lenders on defaulted loans, and service direct and defaulted loans.

Interest rates and repayment schedules will be set at the most favorable rates permitted under the Higher Education Act

Credential filing in progress for seniors

Seniors and graduate students who have not done so should make appointments immediately for credential filing group sessions at the Placement Office, Picken 100. The group sessions will be held between Sept. 12 and Oct. 4, and appointments are to be made in advance.

Filing of credentials is a prerequisite to all placement services and any senior or graduate student who missed obtaining a packet during enrollment should obtain the required forms at the Placement Office immediately.

Credentials are a packet of set consisting of approximately 15 pages, containing data regarding the candidate's grades, courses, skills, interests and biographical information. Credentials are a permanent record of the student's undergraduate achievements and talents and employer references.

The filing of credentials is essential for on-campus interviews. This can also be mailed to prospective employers at the graduate's request. They can be transferred to another institution or university if the 1977-78 graduate goes on to graduate school at another institution. Credentials are maintained in a permanent file for use

Student Senate ratifies justices

Poor attendance stymied Student Senate action last night, as the organization convened for the first time this semester. Only 13 of the 25 members of the senate were present. Much of the business was tabled until the next meeting.

Stan Teasley, student body president, explained that many senators had not been notified of the meeting. "We couldn't get in touch with many of these people," said Teasley. "Address changes and new telephone numbers are not in the computer printout yet."

The major accomplishment of the evening was the ratification of Teasley's appointments to Student-Faculty Court. Teasley's choices included Leroy Bashor, Hays senior, for chief justice; Susan Janzen, Loraine sophomore, Mark Massaglia, Hays junior and Ken Clark, Hays senior. All appointees were ratified without objection.

In speaking of his choice of Bashor as chief justice, Teasley said, "Leroy has been my friend for a long time, my political ally and my political foe. During all those years, even when I've been fighting him, I've known him to be a very fair and well-informed person and these are essential qualities, I think, in a Chief Justice."

Jeff Seibel, student body vice-president, spoke in favor of Clark. "Ken and I went to high school together. He was a very good student. He is very impartial and I think he will make a good justice."

Kristi Parry, Great Bend graduate student, said Janzen was a "hard worker, very interested. I think she will be responsible and unbiased."

Rick Allton, Hays graduate student, commended Massaglia's fortitude. "Mark is a very conscientious person," Allton added.

Four committee chairmen were also ratified. These included Clark Hay, Newton junior, as appropriations chairman; Parry as campus affairs chairman; Brent Halderman, Long Island sophomore, for senate affairs; and Melissa Brack, Hoisington junior, for academic affairs.

An ad hoc committee to review the student government budget was formed. Three members were elected by the senate and two were appointed by Teasley. Those elected included Hay, Halderman and Keith Motzner, Wilson senior. Teasley appointed Brack and Parry. The committee is to present its recommendations on the budget at the next meeting.

A roll of absentees was read before the meeting was adjourned. Commenting afterward, Teasley said, "I really don't like to do business this way. But you have to try to go and do it anyway."

Sculptures on display

An exhibition of cast bronze sculpture is now being shown on the first floor of Davis Hall from now until Sept. 19.

The sculpture is the work of Mary Bates, a graduate of Colorado State University. Bates was a student of James Berland, a former member of the Fort Hays State faculty. She became involved with bronze casting in college and later gained an opportunity to master advanced techniques at an art foundry in Loveland, Colo. This foundry, Art Casting of Colorado, is unusual in that it specializes in bronze casting for artistic purposes.

In speaking of her art, Bates says, "I work continually at shedding and sloughing off the outer shells of current art: its clichés and sentimentality on one hand, and the shallow aspect of fads and now fashionable avant garde styles on the other."

"In a sense, I reject a part of the art world. There are many temptations and pitfalls. Instead, I try more and more to look inside, to an inner world not exclusively artistic, but full of dreams, wonders and realities of the self within," said Bates.

Bates' work is of "outstanding quality," according to James Hinkhouse, associate professor of art. Hinkhouse said that artists who specialize in bronze casting are rare. This, he explained, is because of the complex process involved in creating sculpture of this type.

"It is an indirect process," said Hinkhouse. "Simply carving the material would be a direct process. But this involves 16 different steps. These steps include making a wax model, then a plaster mold and casting the bronze in the mold. Hinkhouse said the time required to make a casting depends on how long it takes the artist to develop a pattern in wax, but after that hurdle is passed, the process takes about a week.

Hinkhouse noted that the FHS Art Department offers experience in bronze casting. "I don't like to brag," he said, "but we're sort of special in that not many schools have the facilities for this type of work. Our foundry has the capacity to handle as much as 300 lbs. of bronze if anyone can afford that much. If someone wanted to construct, say a fountain here on campus, we could handle it."

Manager sets policies

by STEVE QUAKENBUSH
Staff Reporter

"The best thing to do is attend class first, before buying your books," advises Gary Mattison, new manager of Follett's Trading Post Bookstore, "so the student is almost positive of getting the right books." Though he has no set philosophy about managing the store, Mattison says, "We want to try our hardest to do the best job possible."

His formula includes, "carrying as many used books as we can."

New bookstore aims also include "carrying a better paperback section," with "more best sellers and up to 20 new titles a week."

Additionally, Mattison wants to improve the store's soft goods line. Specifically, he plans to stock a different brand of "T" shirt than the one currently for sale. He claims the type supplied through the Follett college bookstore chain will sell for about the same price as the current one, but be of better quality.

Some items may even be dropped from the shelves in order to maintain a two-party policy of keeping costs down and stocking items suited mainly to Fort Hays State.

For the time being, Mattison intends to market magazines like Playboy and Penthouse on the same racks as other magazines.

The manager admits that textbooks are sometimes over or understocked. He places the blame for this on the store, on instructors and on the textbook publishers themselves. In the future, Mattison intends to try to order a generally accurate number of books.

At Follett's the store are purchased through Follett's college bookstore leasing chain, which Mattison works for. Follett Publishing Co. of Chicago, Ill. is the parent company.

The manager intends to use Follett's used book wholesale service to supply FHS with more second-hand texts, which generally cost the student 75 per cent of Less than three titles, for sale here are actually published by Follett, he estimates.

Mattison has been in charge of the bookstore since Aug. 15. The previous manager, Arnold Drake, ran the store since Follett took over operation April 1.

Mattison graduated from Western Michigan University with a B.S. in education. He operated the Valley Community College bookstore for the last four years in Kalamazoo, Mich. before coming to FHS.

His other policy decisions include a 10-day limitation on refunds for textbooks, as well as a $5 limit on check cashing.

Alumni panels displayed in union

by JEAN TELLER
Staff Reporter

Four walnut panels hang in the Memorial Union, symbolic of the four annual awards given by the Fort Hays State Alumni Association.

Over a year ago the work began on the four panels to represent the Alumni Achievement Award, the Distinguished Service Award, the Pilot Award and the Torch Award. The four awards were established by the Alumni Association to recognize the outstanding persons connected with the university.

Established in 1959, the Alumni Achievement Award honors graduates of FHS who have made an indelible mark in their chosen fields or communities after leaving the University. Since 1959, 52 graduates have been honored by this award.

Friends and benefactors do not go unnoticed since the Distinguished Service Award was established in 1974. Two persons have been honored since the award was established.

Also established in 1974 was the Pilot Award. This award honors two members of the teaching faculty and allows graduating seniors to vote for the outstanding faculty members.

The teaching faculty also vote for the outstanding seniors each year. The Torch Award, established in 1974, recognized a senior man and woman based on leadership, standards and scholastic records.

All recipients of the four awards are listed on the panels.

Dale Ficken, associate professor of art, was commissioned by the Alumni Association to sculpt the four panels in the spring of 1976. Ficken joined the FHS faculty in September 1965 after teaching in the Alaskan and Kansas public school systems. He received a B.S. and M.S. in industrial arts and a M.A. in art from FHS. Ficken has exhibited his work extensively and has received numerous awards.

In addition to Ficken, several other persons and organizations contributed the panels to the University. These name plates will be placed on the panels in the near future. The contributors were as follows: Dr. and Mrs. Dee B. Mathews, the Alumni Achievement Award panel; Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Seibel, the Distinguished Service Award; Mr. and Mrs. Duane Eads, the Pilot Award; and the Tiger Parents Club contributed the Torch Award panel.

The panels will be on permanent display in the second floor hallway of the Memorial Union near the Fort Hays Ballroom.

Don't bring beer

Tomorrow is the big day for Fort Hays State football fans. A Kick-off picnic is planned along the banks of Big Creek behind President Gerald Tomanek's home at 5 p.m., and the game against Adams State College begins at 7:30 p.m.

But if you plan on taking your coolers loaded with beer to the game with you, you might as well forget it.

Following the first home game last fall, a number of students, parents and other football spectators complained to Tomanek and Bill Tellison, vice president of student affairs, about the consumption of alcohol at football games. This led to the policy of no coolers or alcoholic beverages allowed on the stadium at subsequent home games.

This fall will be no different. No one will be allowed to carry anything larger than a quart container into the stadium, said Bill Butler, administrative assistant to the Athletics Director, Phil Wilson.

Persons attempting to carry in coolers will be asked to turn them to their cars or place of residence.

D. Brown, security chief, said security guards will check like they did last year.

We will keep our coolers and obscure containers, he said. But my department is not going to hassle anyone.

Changes improve Reveille

Changes in the Reveille, Fort Hays State's yearbook, will make the publication more "practical to meet the needs of the students," according to co-editor Susan Janzen, Ellsworth sophomore.

Portraits will no longer be placed in class sections. Rather, all student's photographs will be grouped with their living quarters. All Greek organizations will be grouped together, all residence halls will be grouped together and all off-campus students will be grouped in one section.

"This will be much better because when people think of a person they don't always think of them as a junior or a sophomore. People are usually more associated with where they live than their classification," said Janzen.

The change is aimed to better fill the needs of the college. According to Janzen, the size of FHS's student body applies itself well to the new process of grouping. Trends in yearbook styling are also changing. The Reveille staff found these trends to be very workable in their situation.

The staff encourages everyone to have their pictures taken for the yearbook. Living groups will be better represented if everyone gets their portraits done.

"We want as many people as we can to get their pictures taken. It will be much more impressive to other students if the living groups are well represented," said Dave Adams, assistant professor of journalism and yearbook advisor.

"We hope people will keep their picture appointments. If changes need to be made, people can contact the photographer's secretary in the union," said Adams.

Appointments can be made in the south lounge of the union from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. The photographers will be in the union to take pictures Sept. 6-30. This should make it easier for students to fit an appointment into their schedule.

Production changes for the 1977-78 yearbook are already being planned. One of the biggest changes is that the staff will now be able to set their type and headlines. This will make the process more efficient.

The Reveille is also planning many changes in format.

"Our yearbook is meant to capture the mood and spirit of the entire year and all things that deal with students," said Janzen.

The 1976-77 yearbooks will be available mid-September and will be distributed in the union. Advance notice will be given as to when the yearbooks will actually be available.

Thinclads want to continue Seven year track domination

For the past eight seasons, the Tiger track team has walked away with league titles. Last season the Tigers coasted to the crown.

The Tigers rolled up 246 on their way to the 1977 Central States Conference (CSC) title, maintaining their domination in track.

In six years the Great Plains Athletic Conference (GPAC) has just one champion—Alex Francis and the Tiger Thinclads. The Tigers would like to duplicate that in the CSC. "I would say our prospects for winning the conference are very average," Francis said. "But our prospects aren't as good as they have been for the last seven years."

Among the returnees who helped guide the Tigers last season by finishing first in the conference championships are: David Byers, Hoisington sophomore, javelin; Joe Deggs, Wichita senior, triple jump; and Terry Lank, Holyrood senior, 400-meter intermediate hurdles. Deggs also placed fourth in the long jump while Lank was second in the 110-meter hurdles.

Other returning lettermen who placed in the top three at the conference meet are: Scott Emme, Hays sophomore, third in the shot put; Stan Wagler, Abbiyville senior, second in the high jump and third in the long jump; Kirk Larson, Gothenberg, Neb., junior, second in the pole vault; Mike Bowles, third in the 100 meter; Daryl Rous, Osborne senior, second in the 300 meter; Bob McAnany, Kansas City senior, third in the 800 and second in the 1,500 meter; and Curtis Foote, Dodge City senior, third in the 400-meter hurdles.

Besides having an outstanding season in 1977, the Tiger indoor contingent tied for fourth place at the NAIA national meet.

Back from that squad is an All-American, McAnany, who helped anchor the Tigers' distance medley relay team which placed second.

McAnany was also a member, along with Pierce and Rous, of the two-mile relay team which came in fourth. Deggs contributed to the Tigers' effort by placing seventh in the long jump.

Can the Tigers finish high again this season?

"It's hard to tell at this point," Francis said. "We lost some top performers in Dwight Stoppel, Shane Cordell, Bill Lowry, Rick Bauer, Sherman Herold and Brad Palmer. They'll be very hard to replace."

Tennis season bright For Tiger netwomen

Head Coach Cindy Bross feels her Tigerette tennis team will be the team to beat this season in the Central States Conference (CSC).

The Tigerettes finished third in the CSC last season with a 11-6-1 record. "Last season we were weak in the number one singles, but this season we should be strong all the way through the lineup with a lot of backup support."

Park of that support will come from new prospects. Among those are basketball standouts, Janna Coitz, Buhler senior and Sheri Piersall, Anthony senior, who also played on the softball team.

She says the women can handle the pressure. "They'll all be out to get us," Bross said about the other conference teams. "but our girls are very confident in themselves and seem to intimidate the girls on other conference teams."

Also, the Tigers will have newcomers. Chris Connors from Liberal, Dianne Beougher, Ellsworth freshman and Donna Keener, Hays freshman.

Beougher teamed up to place third in the doubles competition at the state 2A tennis meet last year while attending Ellsworth High School.

Joining the newcomers are several of last year's players. Included are: Joan Bahr, Claflin senior, who was third in the number one singles at the conference championships; Michelle Hoffman, Garden City senior; Cathy Jameson, also a senior from Garden City and a member of the top doubles team last season; Patty Mastin, St. John sophomore; Cheryl Thielen, Salina junior, and Tam Zeigler, Codell senior.

Schultz replaces Zimmerman

Larry Schultz has been named to replace Rick Zimmerman as head coach of the Tiger baseball team.

Zimmerman was a graduate student who was named as a one-year appointment as the baseball coach. He led the team to a successful season and gained popularity. Zimmerman knew that his position was a one-year appointment and that he would be replaced by someone qualified to teach a recreation class as well. Schultz is qualified.

Schultz, a former minor league player with the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Denver Bears has coached several teams to championships. Before coming here, Schultz had coached at Wayne State for the past four years where his team finished runner-up in the National Association of Inter-collegiate Athletics (NAIA) District 11 for the fourth consecutive season.

Schultz has also been a scout for the St. Louis Cardinals in the Rocky Mountain area, Assistant Coach at Northern Colorado, Pitching Coach at the University of Colorado, Head Coach at Boulder High School and Head Coach of the Boulder Baseline Collegians, a semi-pro team.

Schultz signed a contract to play baseball shortly after high school, taking college classes whenever he could.

"For six years I would go to school for a semester and then play baseball; until I realized my potential was a good shortstop but not a great one—which is what it takes to play in the majors," Schultz said.

Schultz feared he would become a "baseball bum," a term he uses to describe a player who remains in the minor leagues until he is forced to retire and then realizes he knows no other trade to support a family and children.

"I've really appreciated the life baseball has given me. It has given me a special insight that I try to use when I coach," Schultz said.

Although Schultz is "very optimistic" about the upcoming season, he is concerned that the Tigers lost a year of concentration that will hurt the Tiger baseball program.

"We lost a lot of key people through graduation and transfers and Rick did not recruit. I was too late to recruit but I'm optimistic about the program to what it was last year," said Schultz.

DR. LARRY SCHULTZ

Some of the key people Schultz mentioned included: Kevin Jilka and Ken Ubelaker, pitchers; Mark Rohr, catcher; Mike Schippers, centerfield; and Bob Schmidt, firstbaseman.

Schultz hopes to find some replacements for those people during the team tryouts to be held at 3:30 p.m. Monday at Larks Park. He welcomes anyone interested in baseball to try out for the team.
