News Briefs

CAMPUS

• Auditions for "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," the music department's summer musical, are at 4:30 p.m. today and 1:30 p.m. tomorrow in Feltner-Stuart Theater.

The cast of "Edwin Drood" includes three female leads, one supporting female, three male leads, three supporting males and an unlimited number of chorus. Persons auditioning must sing a song, preferably from a musical.

• Elton Beougher, professor of mathematics, has been elected to a three-year term on the board of governors of the Mathematics Association of America.

Beougher will represent the Kansas section of the board, the governing body of the MAA. It is composed of approximately 400 members nationwide.

Ellen Veed, professor of mathematics, was elected section president for the 1988-89 year.

• The International Student Union picnic will be at 3:30 p.m., weather permitting, Saturday at the Seven Hills Park, 33rd and Cantel streets.

• The Fort Hays State debate team has placed second in the south central region sweepstakes competition sponsored by the Cross Examination Debate Association. FHSU finished the season with 96 points, following William Jewell College with 100 points.

Three south central region schools -- FHSU, William Jewell and Southwest Missouri State University -- advanced to the final four.

• Stacey Addison, Cimarron sophomore, has been elected as president of Pi Omega Pi, the national business teacher honorary society. Other officers are Austin Campbell, Hays special student, vice president; Peggy Wallace, Agra senior, secretary; Judy Mitchell, Hoxie junior, treasurer; and Sheila Overton, Wakeeney sophomore, historian.

• A Junior recital featuring tenor David Milhon, Larned junior, will be at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday in Malloy 115. Also performing will be trombonist Lynn Bramel, Great Bend junior, and a string trio of Janet Smith, Hays junior; Sarah Marvin, Hays senior; and Martha Kyle, assistant professor of music.

Milhon will be accompanied by Byrnell Figler, associate professor of music, and will perform music by Franz Schubert and Vincent Persichetti.

• A Commencement Day brunch for 1988 graduates will be at 11:30 a.m. May 13. Tickets for guests of graduates are $6.50, and may be purchased at the Alumni Center in Custer Hall. Highlighting the program will be the presentation of the Torch and Pilot awards. For more information, contact Jani Johansen at 628-4430.

SGA gives funds for wrestling trip

By DAVID BURKE
Managing Editor

The Student Government Association voted to give $51.50 to assist in sending two wrestlers to the NAIA Cultural Wrestling Exchange in Australia.

Greg Pfannenstiel, Hays sophomore, and Billy Johnson, Hays junior, will be making the trip from May 25 to June 8. The two were chosen by the NAIA to compete in the tournament.

The $51.50 would cover a round-trip drive to Wichita, to leave from the airport. According to the bill, each wrestler must provide $1,800 for the trip.

"We have to raise the money ourselves," Pfannenstiel said. "It has nothing to do with the athletic department."

SGA President Kevin Amack said he objected to the bill from the appropriations.

"It just seems kind of strange with them saying they're not involved with the athletic program at all," Amack said. "They've got to be somewhat associated."

"I mean if the basketball team wants to go to Hawaii, they send them. If the volleyball team wants to go to South America, we send them," Amack said. "I don't know why we can't send two wrestlers to Australia."

Thea McKinney, Lewis senior and member of the athletic association board, said all teams going on trips must first raise their own money.

"In the athletic board meetings, they stressed that each team must come up with their own money," McKinney said.

"The thing is that they were chosen as individuals, which is what we should consider," she said.

Amack asked what the justification was in asking for $51.50 for the trip to Wichita, and why money wasn't requested for the entire trip.

"You're talking about a trip to Australia," Erik Schmeller, appropriations chairman said. "We have trouble enough getting money for out of state. But out of the country is simply out of the question."

Schmeller said that athletic director Robert Van Poppel told him there was no way for any of the trip to be paid by the athletic department.

After amended to remove "drive round trip to Wichita" from the bill, it was passed, 20-1.

In other business, new SGA president Davi Anne Brewer, Dodge City senior, and new vice president Schmeller were sworn into office, as were senators for the 1988-89 year.

The oath of office was added by a by-law revision earlier in the year.

In its first reading, a request by Kappa Omicron Phi was presented.

The home economics honorary society is asking for $357.44 to attend the 29th Kappa Omicron Phi conclave in Pittsburgh.

State of campus topic

Hammond to speak

Ronald Reagan has his State of the Union address. Mike Hayden has his State of the State address.

And at 3:30 p.m. today in the Memorial Union Black and Gold Room, Fort Hays State President Edward Hammond will present the first State of the Campus address to the faculty.

Hammond said he will present a finalized report on the salary increases for unclassified employees approved by the Kansas legislature.

Wiest road rally part of weekend activities

By BECKY OBORNY
Staff Writer

Fort Hays State students will search for clues to guide them through the streets and around the blocks of Hays.

Wiest Hall council is sponsoring their 13th annual road rally tomorrow starting at noon.

The road rally is a scavenger hunt that involves locating a series of checkpoints.

"It's not really a race," Todd Nedrow, publicity chairman, said.

"Basically, it's to see who's best at interpreting the clues." A time will be recorded for each car as it leaves the Wiest Hall parking lot.

The cars will leave at three-minute intervals.

Their time will be recorded again when they reach and leave each checkpoint.

"There are five to six of these (checkpoints) throughout the city of Hays," Nedrow said. "The whole event is within the city limits."

The object is to return to Wiest Hall in the shortest amount of time, while obeying all the speed limits and traffic laws.

A hall council member has run the course to obtain the time limit, which allows for reading the clues and driving to each checkpoint.

Nedrow said the participants will be told the time after they have completed the course.

"Whoever comes closest to that time without going over wins," Nedrow said.

The winner will receive a $150 prize. Second place is $75, and third place is $50.

Registration is at the Wiest Hall front desk, and entry fees of $15 per car are due before the event begins.

There may be either one or two people in each car.

Nedrow said.

The event is open to anyone interested in participating.

"Anyone can enter, but they must have a valid driver's license."

Nedrow said the event usually has about a dozen entries.

One year there were 20 cars involved in the rally.

McMindes invites students

Beach party and dance set

Volleyball playing, dancing, and eating are planned for April 30, at the McMindes beach party.

Sponsored by McMindes Hall Council, the activities will begin at 5 p.m. with a supper outdoors for those on the meal plan provided by McMindes cafeteria.

"We worked it all out with SAGA so the meal would be served outside," Tammy Knaub, Haviland senior, said.

"After supper a volleyball net will be set up and the game will start around 6 p.m.," Knaub said.

"At 8:30 p.m., the dance on the back patio will start. I don't think there has ever been a dance back there before," Knaub said.

The D.J. will be Rob Bunting. "He is from Wichita," Knaub said.

"So far, all of our dances this year have had excellent turnouts. The street dance we sponsored back in the fall went so well that we decided to do something similar this spring. That is where the idea for the beach party came," Knaub said.

She said the dance will last until midnight.

Knaub said that the weather was the only problem she could foresee.

"It varies from year to year, depending on the interest," Nedrow said.

"Right now, we have about six entries," he said.

"If it rains it will be in the McMindes Hall rec room, on the second floor. Dinner will be in the cafeteria as usual," Knaub said.

"We chose April 30, because of the high school senior pre-enrollment. This gives them an opportunity to participate in a campus event and to become more familiar with the residence halls," Knaub said.

"We are excited about the event and hope everyone will come and have a good time," Knaub said.

The dance is free and open to all Fort Hays State students.

Plus/minus grading scale one step closer to reality

The University of Kansas is embroiled in what could become a hot topic at many institutions of higher learning.

Many faculty want the Jayhawk school to adopt a new grading system that many students were familiar with in high school and junior high.

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences is trying to go back to the plus/minus system of grading. In other words, the A, B, C, D and U system is out the window.

What would replace it simply is an A+, A, A-, etc. This archaic system will not work. Needless to say, not many students seem to be in favor of the new plan.

And rightly so.

One major drawback to the plan is how it would affect the grade point average. Now the system is a straight 4, 3, 2, 1. But, with the plus/minus system in place, the GPA might be affected for the worse.

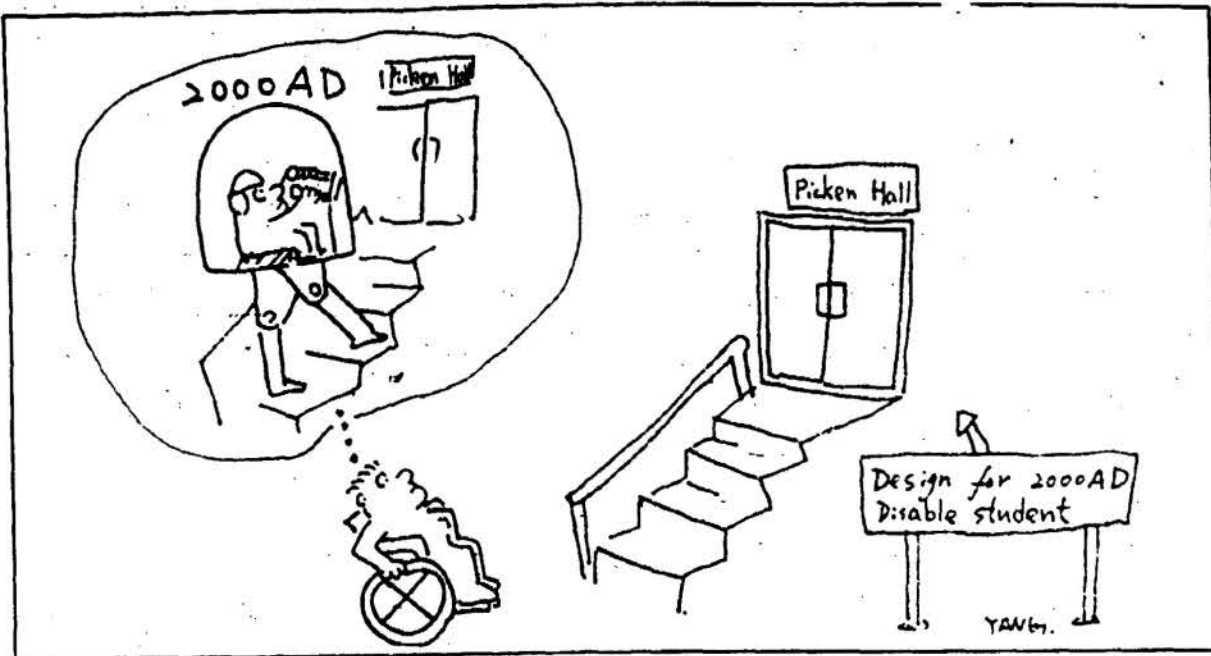

Now a B+ could be a 3.25 and a B- could be 2.75. Just the difference between a 3.0 and 2.75 could mean the difference between acceptance into graduate school and struggling in the outside world.

If the plan does go into affect next fall at KU, one can bet other schools will be closely watching the repercussions and act accordingly. If this works well, then it might be very possible that Fort Hays State and other Regents schools could implement the plan soon thereafter.

The plus/minus scale can only place more pressure on students and faculty. And more pressure is not really in the students' best interests.

"If it ain't broke, then don't fix it," can be aptly applied in this case. This straight grading scale has worked for years. So, there's no reason to think it wouldn't continue to work for future generations.

If a little logic is applied, as we all hope it will be, then this new system will be kept a thing of the past.

Poetry corner takes over column spot

Good evening ladies and gentlemen and welcome to Picken 105 and Leader column writing 101.

As you can plainly see, today's lesson is about how not to write good columns. We have expert teachers today in this phase of the game.

Since professional wrestling was in Gross Memorial Coliseum a few weeks ago, we decided to call this issue for the tag-team column-writing world championship.

We decided that two can do it better, in most cases. But because this column is appearing down the right-hand side, there was only room for one person's thoughts.

So, in this column space, I'm doing something totally different. This has never been tried before, but because the year is drawing to a close, we're renaming this page.

The name will be "reader-appreciation" day. All this is just for you.

So, buckle yourself in and get ready to go, because we ain't going to be here no more, no more.

For all concerned we're not being serious, so don't all of you become enraged and furious.

We're trying to have some fun with this tonight, so after this don't come in with the idea of starting a fight.

The time has come for all to see what is wrong with this university.

What, you say there is nothing wrong? If you believe that, then you need to go play some ping-pong. Or better yet, sing me a song.

Let's start with the University Leader. It always has columns about the need for parking meters.

Some say our staff needs work, all we say is we need to get rid of some bozos and jerks. SGA is next on our list. I'm sure they'd like to hit us all with at least one fist.

But our score will be settled in the next week or so, when we play softball like the Royals' Bo.

If any of you think you can do this better, then please sign up and be a trend-setter.

Communication is the name of our game, we try to do it better than many who call us vulgar names.

The next group we tackle is called administration, they lead by example and probably feel a lot of exasperation.

Especially after reading this editorial page.

The grass is kept green by the sprinklers from hell, this should keep everybody feeling pretty swell.

My time is about up from the poetry corner, so don't all of you run away and become foreigners.

We want to thank everyone who has read this far, now you all need to go out and hit a bar.

Whichever one really doesn't matter, because all of this was really senseless chatter.

Let's just tuck this one away for safe keeping, and never pull it out unless you need to be sleeping.

Again, enough for now as we are about to close, we'll give everyone who read this some No-Doze.

We promise we won't do a thing like this again, at least for several days.

Any questions or comments are gladly received, and they will be published. No one will be deceived.

And, now, the end is near, and we can sense a feeling of fear.

But, enough of this poetry mess. Thanks for reading and see you again. Sometime.

Hammond, Manson, Pope top list of satire and jokes

Good morning Haayay! Oh my God, it looks like the opening credits to "The Brady Bunch" around here today.

Oh, by the way, did you see President Edward Hammond standing in Picken Pond this morning, wearing only a smile and his flaming, pink boxer shorts with "Viv" printed backwards on the behind, whistling the theme to the "Andy Griffith Show" while leafing through May's edition of Popular Mechanics?

Neither did we. But wouldn't it be neat?

And while we're at it, let's talk about drugs, sex and the Pope. What's the connection, you ask?

Who cares? Do we look Catholic? For crying out loud, don't be stupid!

Free Manson! Oh boy, have they got it at Conklin Cars!

Well don't give it to us. We don't want it.

And what's this business about the deer and the antelope playing with each other in the song, "Home on the Range"? Sounds weird to us.

And speaking of spherical geometry, isn't that a fascinating topic?

Free Manson! Oh, say, that reminds us. How many 300-pound men can you squeeze into a Volkswagen Rabbit?

Well, we don't really know, but we're sure that it doesn't smell too good.

And while we're at it, do you know that "dog" is "god" spelled backwards? What's the connection, you ask again?

Hey, get out of our hair! Do we look like we carry dog collars in our briefcases like some people on third floor Picken?

Knock-knock. Who's there? Why, it's the Pope.

The Pope who? What do you mean "The Pope who"? Surely you've seen me. I've played in all the big joints around the world.

Oh, that Pope. Well, aren't you going to ask me in?

No, we gave at the vatican. Hey, stop giving us the business, or we're going to make you sit through 10 straight hours of Dr. Paul Phillips' World Geography lectures.

By the way, while we're on the topic of pain, have you heard the Red Cross' 1989 blood drive slogan? "Give blood 'til you die!"

Free Manson! And just what do you think you're doing reading this column? Don't you have anything better to do with your life? Get a job, for crying out loud!

Unless, of course, you scored lower than a hamster on your ACT, in which case you should join the Army.

However, if the prospect of spending months at a time cooped up in close quarters with bulky, sweaty men...

Yes! ...with shaved heads and beer bellies...

Oh yes! ...and tattoos on their arms spelling out "Mom" backwards really gets you where you live...

Oh, you know that it does! ...then we think you should either join the Navy or see a psychiatrist real soon.

Hey, what time is it? It's time to free Manson. The poor man has suffered enough.

Which reminds us, once again, of the famous quote by Jerry Falwell. It's a special little quote, and we'd like to share it with you. It goes something like this: "If you're not a member of the Moral Majority, then you're probably not a member of the Moral Majority."

Thank you. Thank you. We love you. You're too kind. Really.

This is Dave and Doug, and you're not.

Thank you. Thank you. We love you. You're too kind. Really.

This is Dave and Doug, and you're not.

Brain freeze strikes Leader; new game fun for all to play

Here it is, nearly the end of the year, and we have run out of ideas for columns. Brain freeze. If you will, kind of like when you drink a snowball too fast on a sultry hot summer day.

In order to compensate for our lack of creativity, we have decided to have you, the wonderful and talented reader that you are, assist us in our column-writing endeavors.

The process is a simple one. Just read along, and fill in the blanks with the word you feel appropriate. Kind of like the Mad-Libs game you played at junior high birthday parties.

So, we will help by furnishing the type of word best suited, and you can go from there. Get a friend and play along. It's fun... and educational.

Here goes:

Once upon a time, there was a small noun in western Kansas that was searching for a new leader.

Famous person was the chosen one, and he brought with him several ideas for ing-verb and ing-verb. He wanted to install a object in every residence hall room on campus, and past-tense verb the college.

This idea went over well with most of the college, but some thought it would sink like a lead noun.

He was involved in many activities during his first year, including dressing up as a occu- pation for charity. He attended such plural noun as Oktoberfest and partook in several steins of liquid.

During his first year, several campus groups of people and nouns went through many nouns and nouns.

These groups included the Student Government Association, who voted to give number dollars to Non-adjective Students to give plural noun to Boy Scouts.

The college also had a fine basketball team who, with the help of famous person, went to the national noun in city. The same couldn't be said for the college's sport team, who finished poorly on the year.

New ing-verb laws kept the students of the noun away from many of the plural noun, thus keeping them adjective.

But that didn't keep them from being adjective at basketball games, including throwing noun on the court and getting a technical noun.

This resulted in video cameras watching the students like a animal for the rest of the season, although nothing happened at the rest of the games.

The music group state returned for a concert, even though groups like Color and mal, Type of gun and major city were on the survey list.

And even the University Leader was not without its problems. There were complaints about columns written about emotion, and over a column about the movie "movie it le."

But now the year is almost over, and students will be putting on plural noun and plural noun and ing-verb down the aisles of Gross Memorial Coliseum, ready for their bright new plural noun.

And others will be here for yet another year, while relatives ask "When are you graduating from noun?"

But college is not merely for gaining knowledge for number years. There's a certain amount of getting past-tense verb, having noun and finding a life-long noun.

So it's with that noun that we are proud of the plural noun of what we have done at our fine university.

So the people in the noun lived happily ever after, safe in the skill of their leader and the noun they had received.

Once you have completed this extended Mad-Lib, just let either of us know. You must be worse off than we are.

Thank you. Thank you. We love you. You're too kind. Really.

This is Dave and Doug, and you're not.

Thank you. Thank you. We love you. You're too kind. Really.

Will we love or will we smoke?

To the Editor,

In the April 26 edition of the University Leader in an editorial on smoker's rights, this question was posed, "Would you like to be told what you can and cannot do?" (I found it interesting that this would run next to an article on Charles Manson.)

But the point is this: We Americans have the right, and by-gum we ought to exercise those rights. Those rights are ours, and I think we ought to act upon them every chance we get.

Tell me this then. Do we have a right to help our brothers in need? Do we not have an obligation to "watch out" for our fellow men? Or will we play the part of Cain who when confronted by the Lord about his brother's death asked, "Am I my brother's keeper?" Let us not forget the Lord's answer, "What have you done? Listen! Your brother's blood cries out to me from the ground." (Gen. 4: 9-10)

Yes, we have a right to care for and "look after" our neighbors. Why do we not exercise this right? Granted, it will get us nothing except maybe a healthy sense of love, but how will we compare love to the right to smoke on a plane?

Would you like to be told you can or cannot care about your friend or neighbor? Just think about it.

Hush sets goal for national finals

Rodeo queen to be crowned Saturday

Assistant Managing Editor

Fort Hays State team roper, Brandon Hush has a good shot at qualifying for the College National Finals Rodeo in June.

He will be one of 275 entries competing for more than $11,000 in prize money at this weekend's rodeo.

The FHSU rodeo is the last NIRA rodeo of the season and the last time for contestants to qualify for a trip to the CNFR.

"He's got a real good chance of qualifying if he has a good rodeo this weekend," rodeo club adviser Garry Brower said.

In the standings, Brower said Hush is only 80 points away from being in the top two in the team roping event.

"He's got a good shot," Brower said. "He sure deserves it. The team roping is just wide open right now and he can really put the pressure on them this weekend."

Brower said that Hush has two chances to qualify.

"He's got two shots at it. One with his partner Jason Tren from Garden City and with Brian Shirley of North Western Oklahoma State," Brower said.

Stock for the rodeo will be provided by Floyd Rumford, a professional rodeo stock contractor.

As part of the weekend activities, four FHSU students will be competing for the FHSU rodeo queen contest.

The winner will be crowned Saturday night at the rodeo grounds.

Zenor is a health physical education and recreation major and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Zenor of Hutchinson. She is a member of the rodeo team and competes in the barrel racing event.

Hessman is a business education major and is the daughter of Jerry and Linda Hessman of Cimmaron. She is a member of the FHSU rodeo club.

Lawrence is a graphic design major and is the daughter of Bill and Marlene Mathison and Marvin and Ikie Lawrence. She competes in rodeos during the summer as a barrel racer.

Ketter is a general studies major and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Dean Ketter of St. Francis.

The rodeo will get underway at 7 p.m. Friday at the rodeo arena and will continue at 7 p.m. Saturday and 1 p.m. Sunday.

Slack competition will run from 9 a.m. until noon on Saturday.

Arts fair displays high school talent

It's not over until the sawdust settles.

More than 1,500 junior high and high school students will be competing at the 29th annual Industrial Arts Fair this Friday and Saturday in Gross Memorial Coliseum.

The fair was started in 1960. The response was so great that it became an annual event.

The size of the fair grew until it peaked in 1965 with 3,318 projects entered from 60 schools. Now participation has leveled off with 1,500 to 2,000 projects from 45 to 50 schools.

The industrial arts fair allows students the opportunity to display their accomplishments of the past year.

It also provides the opportunity for students to learn what activities were possible in industrial arts classes.

The fair gives instructors the chance to determine what educational activities are being taught in other areas and visit with other instructors about content, curriculum, methods and special techniques used in industrial arts laboratories.

Thousands of junior high and high school students also get the chance to visit Fort Hays State and tour the campus while allowing the public a first hand look at what is being taught in industrial arts classes.

The competition will give awards in eight divisions: arts and crafts, drafting, graphic arts, metal working, multi-pupil, open, power and energy, and woodworking.

Last year's fair included events in problem solving. Competing teams of students were given a set of common materials and tools and a problem solving exercise in which they have a set amount of time to finish.

This year the competition has been expanded to include not only manufacturing problem solving but also communication problem solving.

Visitors can see the projects from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. today and from 8 to 11:30 a.m. tomorrow.

Library extends hours

Students needing to spend more time in Forsyth Library preparing for finals will get that opportunity next week.

Karen Cole, Forsyth Library director, said the hours will be extended next week on a "totally experimental basis."

If the experiment proves to be successful, Cole said there is a possibility that next year the new hours would be utilized on a regular basis.

The new hours (for next week only) will be as follows:

Monday through Friday -- 8 a.m.-11:30 p.m.
Saturday -- 9 a.m.-5 p.m.
Forsyth Library will then re-open from 7-11:30 p.m.
Sunday -- 2-11:30 p.m.

Retiring faculty honored at reception

By KRISTIN MONTGOMERY
Staff Writer

A Faculty Association Retirement reception for the retiring faculty members was from 4-6 p.m. Tuesday in the Memorial Union Black and Gold Room.

Retirees honored at the reception included: Martha Clafin, associate professor of education; William Clafin, associate professor of education; Laurence Dryden, associate professor of mathematics; Wallace Harris, professor of agriculture; Jack Heather, professor of communications; David Pierson, associate professor of biology; and Raymond Youmans, professor of education.

The reception was a change from the traditional retirement dinner.

"The attendance had been falling off the last few years, probably because it was in the evening and time for the family."

"So we thought that it might work as well. If not better, to have something before 6 p.m. when people were still here and could catch them as they went out the door," John Knight, professor of English and faculty association president, said.

This year, about 108 tickets were sold as compared to the previous year's 87 tickets.

"We had about 20 more tickets taken, so I guess we have to say that it worked. I think it worked out pretty well," Knight said.

The faculty association bought one gift, a piece of carry-on luggage and a plaque for each retiring faculty member.

"As far as I know, this is the first time that gifts have been bought for the retiring faculty members -- at least by the faculty association," Knight said.

Jan Johansen and the alumni association presented each retiree with a certificate of appreciation.

At the reception, a hors d'oeuvres buffet and wine and punch was offered to everyone who attended.

"I think the retirees enjoyed the reception. They sure looked like they were having fun," Knight said.

President Edward Hammond and the president's office gave some money for the gifts. Also, the Endowment Association donated $100, and the union bookstore chipped in $50 for the reception.

Classified staff listens to salary hike proposal

By DAVID BURKE
Managing Editor

Fort Hays State President Edward Hammond told the classified staff about proposed salary increases during a meeting yesterday.

Hammond said that the unclassified staff salary levels would increase by a pool of 9.25 percent.

That increase does not translate into a straight 9.25 percent increase for faculty, Hammond said.

"Just because they give us that 9.25 percent doesn't mean all salaries are going to increase that much," he said.

Included in the overall increase are a raise to $4,000 for a stipend for graduate teaching assistants, plus promotions, tenure, degree completion and a one percent slippage.

Hammond said that the 9.25 percent increase for FHSU was the highest of any university in the state.

"That's very good for us, considering that the average for the Regents is about 7 percent," he said.

Before the increase can be made official, "a lot of thorny issues have to be settled," Hammond told the classified staff.

Hammond said Ron Pflughoff, vice president for university development and relations, was still in Topeka finalizing details of the increase.

Hammond commended the staff for the work that they had done over the previous year, and said he was looking forward to working with them in the future.

He said that he strongly believed in the Classified Senate having as much of a say in the university as the Faculty Senate or the Student Government Association.

"What we have is a strong tripartite governing structure," Hammond said. "I believe in that. I believe in the importance of staff members in the institution."

Hammond said the "TCP principle" was a good one to keep in mind for the staff. The acronym represented patience, caring and pride.

Hammond said the changes and challenges, as well as the everyday work, challenges the patience of workers.

"We have to realize the importance of caring in what we do,"

Hammond said.

The caring for the students is especially important, he said.

"You have to care about the kids, whether they be 35 or 45 or 17," Hammond said. "On one hand, they try our patience, but on the other hand, they give us our jobs."

The third principle is pride, Hammond said.

"You have to have pride in what you do, whether you're the president, the people who keep the grounds so wonderful, a maintenance person in West (Hall) or running a computer in Martin Allen Hall."

Hammond encouraged the faculty to keep the patience, caring and pride continuing into the future.

"I would be remiss if I didn't say that things have gone wrong. This year hasn't been perfect," Hammond said. "But I'm proud to be connected to an institution that is blessed with people like you."

HAMMOND.

"We'll talk about the budget," Hammond said. "I'll have an 8:30 meeting where we'll go over the salary increases, beside the 9.25 percent pool increase. By then, I'll be able to say what."

Hammond said he would not delve extensively into plans for the future of the university.

"Besides the budget process, I may talk about the institutional planning sequences that are coming up," he said.

"I'll wait until the fall for the formal orientation, then talk about plans for the future," Hammond said. "At the end of the year, I want to look at what we've accomplished and look at the budget and the planning process."

Hammond also said that the search committees for a vice president for student affairs and vice president for institutional advancement will announce a list of approximately five finalists for each position after they meet on May 14.

Hammond said the entire search committees would not be making the trips to the campuses of the candidates, as previously reported.

As the chairman of the search committee, Hammond said he may visit one to two finalists on their own campus, but the entire committee would not go.

New lottery game has $1,000 drawing, better winning odds

By KARIN HARTMAN
Staff Writer

Dennis Killiany, director of marketing for the Kansas Lottery, visited the Hays airport Wednesday to promote the fourth Kansas lottery game.

Hays was among the fourteen cities in the state to have a $1,000 lottery drawing to kick off the new lottery game.

Some of the other cities chosen because of historical monuments or tourist attractions were Abilene, Emporia, Great Bend, Lawrence, Wichita and Salina.

Killiany said that using these cities for the drawing is a great way to promote awareness of Kansas' history.

All the drawings took place at 7 last night.

All losing lottery tickets from the former games of Match 3, Kansas Cash and Kansas

Treasure were dropped into the hopper.

Hays' drawing was held at the Old Fort Hays Guardhouse.

The lucky winner was Barbara Bleker of Hays. She was unavailable for comment.

Bleker, along with the 13 other $1,000 winners, entered in a second drawing for $10,000 at lottery headquarters, May 3, in Topeka.

While thousands of losing tickets filled the hopper last night, the odds of the new tickets have improved.

Killiany said, "There were two things the public wanted to improve in this lottery, more prizes and better odds."

Overall, odds of winning in the Kansas Treasures are 1-4.8. The prizes are: $2, $5, $20, $50 and $1,000. There is also a $100,000 Grand Prize drawing.

'Story Theatre' brings tales to life

By LISA STORER
Staff Writer

The stage is set with bigger-than-life children's alphabet blocks and crayons.

"Story Theatre" is coming to Fort Hays State.

According to Charles Evans, director of the "Story Theatre," the production is a collection from Grimm Brothers fairy tales, and Aesop's Fables adapted to stage by Paul Sills.

"It's just a bunch of fun stories," Evans said. "We're putting this on strictly for entertainment."

Evans gave a few examples of some of the more familiar fairy tales and fables to be presented. Two examples are "The Bremen Town Musicians" and "Henny Penny."

"The Bremen Town Musicians" is, of course, about the four animals that run away, and "Henny Penny" is the story of the chick that gets hit on the head by a nut and then thinks the sky is falling. She's a daffy little duck-chick. It's something like a version of "Little Red Riding Hood."

Also included in the performance is the story of two crows. One finds a mussel shell, but cannot figure out how to open it. The other lends a helping hand, and in the process, the second crow ends up eating the mussel.

"The Story of the Little Peasant" will also be presented.

According to Evans, it tells the story of a poor peasant who, by using intrigue and "business flinching," works on the greed of the people and ends up owning the whole town.

"The Fisherman and his Wife" tells the story of a poor fisherman who lands a big flounder, which turns out to be an enchanted prince that grants wishes to the couple. They become very greedy, and in the end, lose everything.

Evans said the story is "a good example about the greed of people."

"The Robber Bridegroom," another piece in the production, was made into an opera, Evans said.

"In a way, it tells us not to take a ride from Mr. Danger. It's that sort of story," Evans said.

"Venus and the Cat" follows the plight of Venus, the goddess of love, who turns a man's beloved cat into a beautiful woman. After the woman spies a mouse and proceeds to eat it, the man decides he no longer wants her, and, consequently, she is changed back into a cat.

Cast members are Squire Boone, Sharon Springs senior; Esther Corzatt, New Almel graduate student; Karen Currier, Atwood sophomore; Debbie Driscoll, Beloit senior; Sean Gunther, Andale freshman; Scott Jeché, United States Air Force Academy, Colo.; Mary Leidig, Hays senior; Richard Parrott, Healy freshman; Scott Parrott, Healy freshman; Randy Slaughter, Hays senior; Heather Thomas, Fort Collins, Colo., freshman; Jeanne Weber, Beloit senior; Rebecca Westblade, Mankato freshman, and Raymond Brent and Jonathon Price, Hays residents.

The first performance was last night. Performances are scheduled for 8 p.m. today and Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday.

Admission is $4 for general public, $3 for FHSSU students and senior citizens, and $2 for children under 12.

Sports Briefs

• The intramural co-ed softball tournament entries are due today at 4:30 p.m. in the intramural office. The tournament will get underway on Monday.

STATE

• The top-ranked Oklahoma State Cowboys improved their record to 43-2 as they defeated 13th-ranked Wichita State 9-4 Wednesday in baseball action.

NATIONAL

• The Baltimore Orioles set an American League record for the most consecutive losses, as they dropped their 21st straight game yesterday to Minnesota, 4-2.

Baltimore has already set the major league record for losses to start a season, and they are now only two shy of the consecutive loss mark in the major leagues.

• Steve Carlton's 23-year major league career might have come to an end Wednesday. The veteran pitcher was released by Minnesota. Carlton, the winner of four Cy Young Awards, has a career record of 329-244 with an earned run average of 3.12.

• The National Basketball Association and the Players Union reached an agreement on a new contract between the two sides, Tuesday.

The two sides settled the issues, which they had been bargaining on since the beginning of the season.

Some major changes were reached between the two sides on the issues of free agency and the college draft. The new agreement says that any player in the league for more than seven years has total free agency, and next year it will drop to five years experience.

In the college draft issue, they decided to cut it to three rounds instead of seven this season, and next year two rounds.

• The NBA playoffs get underway this weekend with four first round best-of-five series beginning last night, with the remaining four scheduled for tonight.

Boston and Los Angeles again were the top seeds in the Eastern and Western Conference.

Seedings and pairings are:

EASTERN CONFERENCE

No. 1 Boston vs.
No. 8 New York

No. 2 Detroit vs.
No. 7 Washington

No. 3 Chicago vs.
No. 6 Cleveland

No. 8 San Antonio

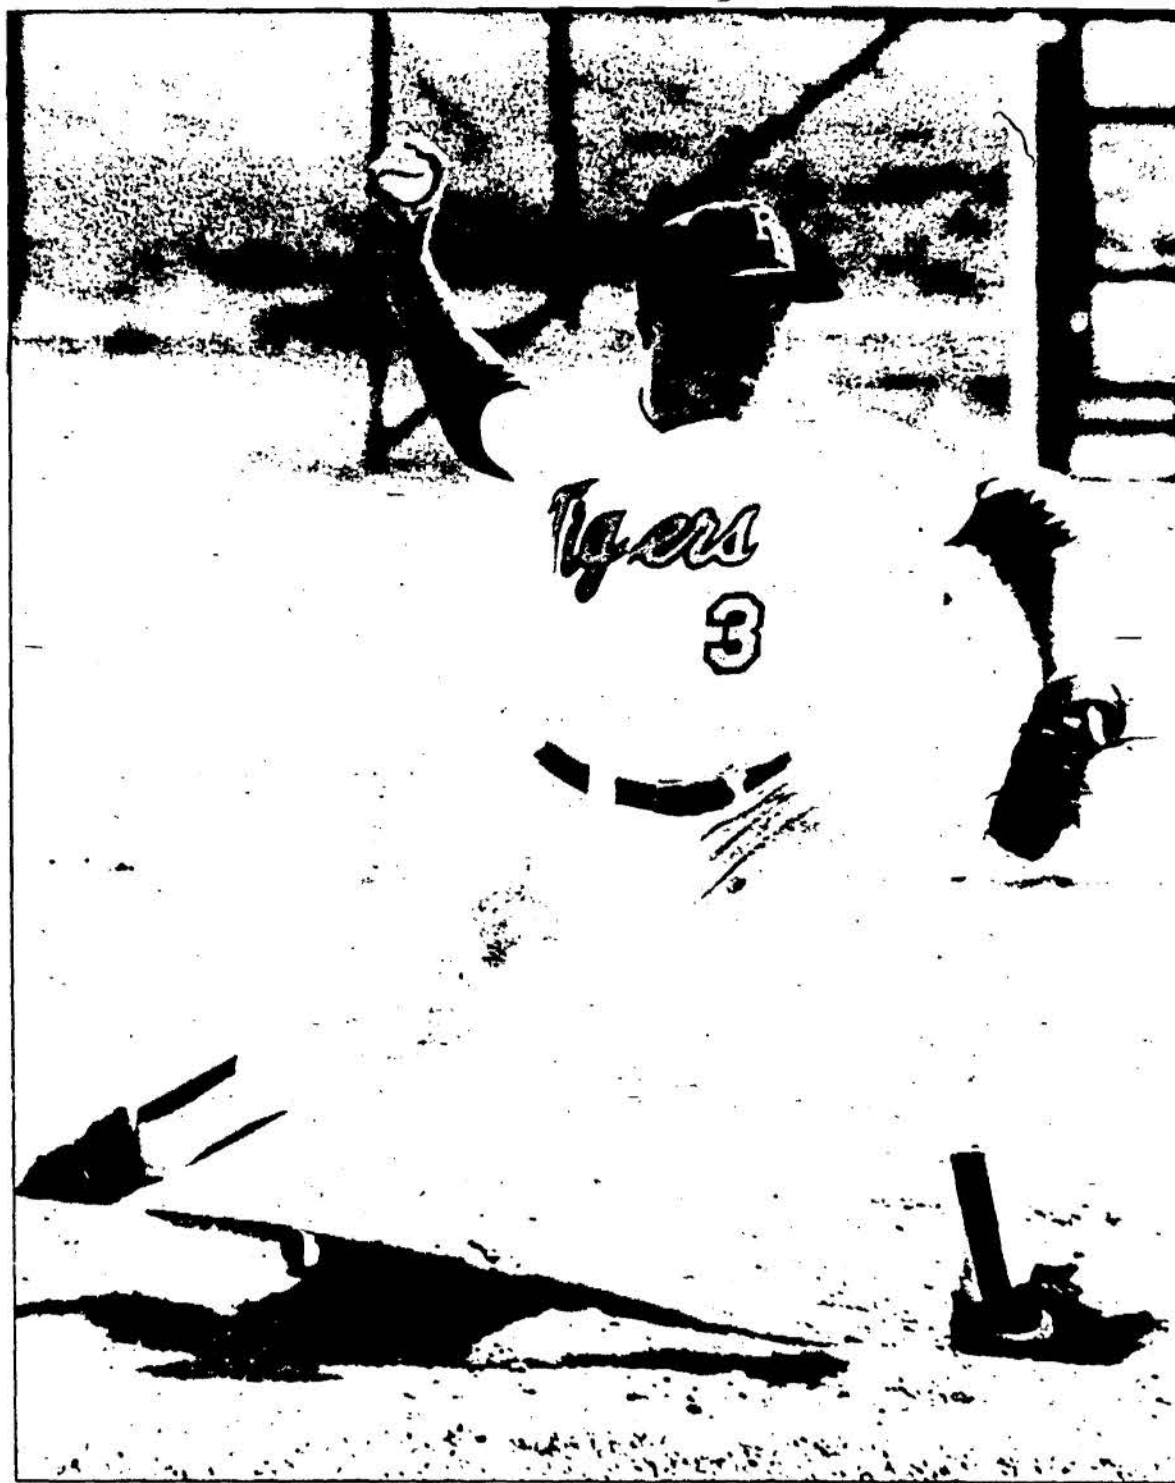

No. 2 Denver vs.
No. 7 Seattle

No. 3 Dallas vs.
No. 6 Houston

No. 4 Portland vs.
No. 5 Utah

• The Indianapolis Colts acquired two veteran free agents Wednesday. They received another veteran through a trade.

The Colts received quarterback Mark Herrmann from San Diego for future considerations and also signed former Houston Oilers and Atlanta Falcons wide receiver-kick returner Billy "White Shoes" Johnson, in addition to Ezra Johnson.

Preparing to let loose his fastball, Jarrod Sanford concentrates on his target during yesterday's baseball game with Marymount College as Marymount swept the double header 3-0 and 14-4. Sanford pitched the first game of the double header.

Tigers drop two; playoffs in doubt

By MIKE MARZOLF
Sports Editor

As the regular season heads toward the wire for the Fort Hays State baseball team, they are faced with two problems.

First and foremost, following a doubleheader setback to Marymount College Wednesday in Larks Park, FHSU's playoff future is uncertain.

Second, the offense has been all but non-existent for FHSU.

The Spartans swept the Tigers, 3-0 and 14-4, and in the process, they dropped the Tigers to 14-22 overall and 7-11 in District 10 play.

"Hopefully, we will make the playoffs," Head Coach Steve Gillispie said. "The two losses put us on the bubble as far as the playoffs are concerned."

Against Marymount, the Tigers were plagued by what has bothered them for the past week, lack of offense.

Within the past week, FHSU has played six games and been shut out three times.

In the process of posting a 1-5 mark, the Tigers have only managed to score seven runs.

"We are having a lot of trouble scoring," Gillispie said. "We have not been getting key hits."

"Against Marymount, we left 13 runners on base in the first game, 10 of those were stranded in first four innings."

The Spartans wasted little time in getting on the scoreboard in the first contest, getting two runs in the first inning, and one more in the second.

After that, FHSU pitcher Jarrod Sanford didn't allow the Spartans another run.

while going the distance and allowing just six hits, while striking out eight.

"Sanford gave us a great game," Gillispie said. "He gave up just six hits, but unfortunately we made three errors."

In the second contest, FHSU broke out of the drought by scoring two runs in the bottom of the first to take a 2-1 lead.

Then, the bottom fell out.

Marymount unloaded with eight runs in the top of the second and then four more in the third to take a 13-2 lead.

"They put themselves in a lot of hit-and-run situations," Gillispie said. "They also were successful on a couple of suicide squeezes."

"We couldn't get an out on it because we did not have anyone on first base on the suicides."

In the final two innings of the game, Gillispie received a bright performance from Tracy Chance.

In his two innings of work, Chance stuck out three batters, while allowing only one hit.

"Chance threw outstanding," Gillispie said. "In the top of the fifth, he struck out the side."

The Tigers now will head into the last week of the season with only Kearney State College on the regular schedule next Tuesday.

But, Gillispie said he hopes to sneak in another game to try to improve their playoff status.

"We are going to try to schedule a district game this weekend," Gillispie said. "Hopefully, we can get another game in before we play Kearney."

Men and women both finish second

Haselhorst leads list of six FHSU champions

By TIM PARKS
Staff Writer

The Fort Hays State track team set a team goal to defeat the Kearney State College Antelopes, but both the men's and women's teams came up a little short in the Kearney State Invitational.

No team scores were kept for the Wednesday meet, but the Tiger men were defeated by the Lopers, 146-143.

Assistant Coach Wayne Sager said the team goal of many of the Tigers set seasonal bests.

"We had some very good individual performances. Our team goal of whipping the Lopers was not reached. Next time we will get them."

The women were outscored 140-98 by Kearney State.

Hastings College finished third with 95 points.

Doane College, a partial team of the University of Nebraska, and Concordia College were the other teams involved in the meet.

Injuries to three Tigers were a factor in the women's division.

Chrissy Sitts and Kristi Reid were hurt and didn't run, and Karen Borgstedt got hurt during the meet. They would have been a factor," Sager said.

Borgstedt finished sixth in both the 100-meter hurdles and high jump before the injury.

The Pueblo, Colo., sophomore is third in the high jump and fourth in the triple jump in the CSIC.

Maggie Smelser was the only first-place finisher for the women. Smelser won the 1,500-meter run in a time of 5:03.6.

Jon Haselhorst led the men with first place finishes in the 110-meter hurdles and the 400-meter high hurdles.

Haselhorst currently leads the CSIC in the 110-meter hurdles with a time of 14.3. He is also third in the 400-meter hurdles and fourth in the 200-meter dash.

Don Brunzell, Rick Walker and Larry Wood also brought home top honors in their respective events.

Brunzell won the 800-meter run. Walker finished first in the 5,000-meter run and Wood finished first in the 1,500-meter run.

Wood is leading the CSIC in the 3,000-meter steeplechase with a time of 9:37.

The mile-relay squad also had a first place finish.

Ruben Esparza, Mike Filley, Ramon Lopez and Brunzell make up the team.

Steve Broxterman, Esparza and Tom Welker all had second-place finishes for the Tiger men.

Broxterman finished second in the high jump. Esparza in the 800-meter run and Welker in the 5,000-meter run.

Esparza is leading the CSIC in the 800-meter run, while Broxterman is among the conference leaders in the high jump.

Kathy Holling, Kelly Jackson, Marlys Gwaltney and Kathy Briceky had second-place finishes for the women.

Holling finished second in the discus and shot put, Jackson in the 100-meter dash, Gwaltney in the 400-meter dash and Briceky in the triple jump.

Holling is second in the CSIC in the discus.

The women's mile-relay team also had a second place finish.

Gwaltney, Kristin Amerine, Sally Black and Linda Ragland finished with a time of 4:03.

Sager said all the second place finishes was another reason the Tigers finished second.

"Kearney had a lot of first-place finishes, but we had a bunch of seconds. We will need to do better in the CSIC meet to beat them. That will be a real fight," Sager said.

Ten members of the men's team will compete in the Drake University Relays today and tomorrow.

Earlier in the week Head Coach Jim Krob said he was unsure what schools will be represented in the meet, but said it should be very competitive.
