Davis Hall to house MAMTC

Crystal Holdren
Managing editor

Davis Hall will soon become more than just a building for Fort Hays State students to take classes in.

President Edward Hammond said FHSU will provide space in Davis Hall for NIST/Mid-America Manufacturing Technology Center (MAMTC).

MAMTC is a non-profit organization designed to help small and medium-sized manufacturers become more successful, Hammond said.

Paul Clay, chief executive officer at MAMTC, said, "We've helped, in the state of Kansas, over 100 companies directly with a substantial amount of technical aid."

Clay said in terms of technical aid, MAMTC will work with companies which were set up a couple of decades ago.

He said the problem with this is the companies are still operating with the same equipment and sometimes the same techniques as 20 years ago.

"We want to help them adopt state of the art technology," Clay said.

MAMTC has access to the federal laboratories, university laboratories and other facilities.

Clay said this makes MAMTC a major advantage to other companies.

"We work very closely with the other manufacturing technology centers," Clay said.

Not only will MAMTC be an asset to other manufacturing companies, but also to FHSU.

Hammond said, "This organization fits well with our university's mission."

"MAMTC uses the latest technologies, such as total quality management and electronic data interchange in their programs."

Hammond said this provides another kind of consulting network which will work to better serve companies in the northwest part of Kansas and FHSU.

"With MAMTC (FHSU has) some real expertise on campus in our academic units that are brought to bear on different challenges," Hammond said.

MAMTC will help in the academic area by giving students and faculty an opportunity to relate to "real-world manufacturing problems," Hammond said.

"We expect that at times some of our students and faculty, particularly those in the technology studies department, will work closely with MAMTC," Hammond said.

Even though MAMTC has an office in Great Bend, they chose to set up an office in Hays because "western Kansas, on a per capita basis, is the most successful region we have," Clay said.

MAMTC is expected to open March 1. The telephone number and room location will be announced after MAMTC opens, Hammond said.

The gift of life

Paul Brungardt, Victoria senior, donates blood in the Fort Hays Ballroom Tuesday during the American Red Cross blood drive sponsored by the Fort Hays State chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi, a professional business fraternity. Judy Wohlford, a phlebotomist from the American Red Cross, asks Brungardt if he is comfortable. Approximately 95 people signed up to donate and approximately 40 walk-ins were expected.

Summer salaries discussed

Kelly Freeman
Copy editor

The university affairs committee of the Faculty Senate, represented by Marty Shapiro, professor of music, announced during the Tuesday, Feb. 9 meeting, the motion for summer salary increases had not made any progress.

Shapiro and Rich Huguen, faculty senate president and assistant professor of philosophy, said there was money available to increase the summer salaries.

"There was $450,000 of enrollment adjustment money that could have been used toward summer salary increases," Shapiro said.

However, the money has now been allocated in other ways.

"Twelve new positions (one administrative and 11 faculty) have been established with salaries of approximately $30,000 each," Shapiro said.

Shapiro said summer sessions will deteriorate because faculty members do not want to teach summer classes for just 75 percent of what they get paid for the same classes during the regular fall/spring semesters.

Huguen recommended the Faculty Senate keep pushing the summer salaries increase because it is detrimental to Fort Hays State having a summer session.

Also discussed during Tuesday's meeting was the current merit system for faculty salaries.

Huguen said the present system is based on individuals competing for merit salary increases.

"There is some dissatisfaction with the present system, so suggestions for a new system are being asked for and will be taken into consideration," Huguen said.

One suggestion had already been made to change the current merit system of using individuals to a departmental merit system.

Several faculty in attendance were opposed to this idea.

"It simply is not fair and I object to the principle it is based upon," Albert Gentz, professor of English, said.

Evelyn Lott, associate professor of foreign languages, said, "One individual is not responsible for someone else. We can't control or motivate others, and we do not need co-dependency behaviors on this campus."

In other business, Huguen announced the items of discussion at the January Board of Regents meeting, including the possibility of developing a leave sharing program for unclassified employees similar to classified employees.

Huguen said such a policy would enable unclassified employees to transfer annual or sick leave to other unclassified employees under certain conditions. More discussion is expected within the next several weeks.

There is also the possibility of a legislative initiative regarding "Qualified Admissions."

Huguen said Kansas is the only state in the Union with no admission standards for its universities; however, Gov. Joan Finney has stated she would veto any bill imposing

Depression rewarding Coyle receives grant

Melissa Chaffin
Senior copy editor

Jean M. Coyle, chair of the sociology department, has received a mini-grant of $1,760 from the Kansas Humanities Council.

The mini-grant is for an oral history project about women who grew up in Kansas during the Depression years of the '30s.

Coyle's project is entitled "Growing Up Female on the Kansas Prairie: the Depression Years."

In a press release, Coyle stated, "These women hold a key to greater understanding of our heritage and have much to teach us about how to adapt and survive."

The project involves the collaboration of the Fort Hays State departments of sociology, history and foreign languages.

Coyle will administer the project and serve as a contact with the community. She said she hopes to do more extensive research in the fall.

"We see this as a pilot project," Coyle said. "We hope to get more substantial funding for a bigger project next fall."

Ann E. Liston, professor of history, is the co-director of the project and will assist in training student interviewers and the editing and analysis of the oral histories.

Also involved in the project are Helmut Schmeller, director of ethnic studies; Leona Pfeifer, assistant professor of German, who has extensive contacts in the ethnic communities of western Kansas; Christopher C. Lovett, assistant professor of history; Rose Arnold, associate professor sociology; and Keith Campbell, professor of sociology.

Three FHSU students have been selected and trained by the project staff to conduct interviews on six women from Ellis county and the adjacent area. They are Claudia Nicholson, Hays junior, sociology department; Jacqueline Grogan, Ellis senior, history department; and Clara Walters, Catharine senior, foreign languages department.

Three copies of the 10 to 15 page document made from each interview will be sent to FHSU Center for Ethnic Studies, the permanent archives of the Kansas Humanities Council and the subject of the interview.

The project began in January and will conclude in September. Excerpts of the oral history interviews will be presented Sept. 19, 1993, in a public meeting at the Ellis County Historical Society.

Coyle said, "I feel very excited about the potential we have in this project in bringing together the many different perspectives."

Tax forms, information available to students

Squire R. Boone
Staff writer

"We're the only place on campus that carries tax forms and booklets."

Mac Reed, government documents librarian

As the April 15 deadline for tax payment draws closer, students begin desperate quests for tax forms to replace the ones that have been misplaced or never received.

However, some of these quests fail to uncover a valuable resource for tax forms and information.

The government documents section of Forsyth Library, located on the east side of the top floor, contains a complete file of forms and instruction booklets for both federal and state income taxes.

Mac Reed, government documents librarian, said, "We've never really promoted this service before. As far as I know, we're the only place on campus that carries tax forms and booklets."

The booklets and basic tax forms are located on a display rack near the government documents reference desk.

Specialized forms, usually available only from the Internal Revenue Service, are on file in the office and can be photocopied.

"We usually help around 50 to 75 people. We're expecting about 100 people this year," Reed said.

Although the deadline for payment of taxes is April 15, Reed said the display for forms and books will be up for a couple of months afterwards. After that, the documents will be available for photocopying only.

The government documents area also maintains a file of IRS publications containing information on various taxes.

"We're often asked but, no, we don't give tax advice, but our collection of IRS material is fairly extensive," Reed said.

Reed said the library strives to help students by providing them with a variety of services.

Dogs loved 101 times

One of the most beloved children's stories, "The 101 Dalmatians," will be performed at the Arvada Center Children's Theater at 11 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 20. The play is an adventure story of a family of dalmatians "dog-napped" by the evil Cruella DeVil.

The play is an adaptation of the story by Dodie Smith and will be performed at the Arvada Center Children's Theater, Denver, Colo.

J. B. Dent, director of Memorial Union Activities Board, said the production will be a good one as ACCCT is "famous for audience participation."

McCAB and the Hays Art Council are responsible for bringing in the touring theater.

Dent said he is pleased to bring in this particular performance as opposed to the traditional concerts McCAB generally gets on campus.

One reason McCAB is to serve all of the students is that Fort Hays State University, Dent said.

Dent said his target audience is the non-traditional students who comprise 30 to 40 percent of the student population. However, he said he feels the play will be enjoyed by all.

"McCAB hope that not only non-traditional students, but all students will enjoy it, and I feel that the entire audience will really get a lot of fun out of it too," Dent said.

The Hays Jaycees and The Village Shop, 1002 Main St., contributed funds to make this production possible.

Dent said the goal of this performance was not to make money. He said he hopes to break even and give the public "a good show."

Dent said, "I think there'll be a lot of people coming. They'll come to see something different."

This is not the first time ACCCT has performed "The 101 Dalmatians." The Rocky Mountain News wrote, "We barked. We rolled in. Make believe suit. We crawled over a make believe fence to get away from a frighteningly real, mean old woman who wanted to do unspeakable things to us."

For 80 minutes, the audience became make-believe Dalmatian puppies and played an active role in the Center's production of the 101 Dalmatians. Afterward, the actors congregated outside the theater to let the youngsters "pet" them and chat.

The 101 Dalmatians is the adventure of a family of dalmatians "dog-napped" by the evil Cruella DeVil. It is a story about a race against time for the dogs to escape safely and return home, according to a press release.

Dent appointed to magazine board

Kelly Freeman
Copy editor

The director of student activities at Fort Hays State has been appointed to the board of directors of the new magazine "Campus Activities Today."

According to a press release, I.B. Dent will fill one of the three designated positions on the magazine board reserved specifically for student activity directors.

Dent said, "It's really an honor and a great responsibility to be chosen to represent a group of other people."

Dent said his job is to represent the college side of activities in order to make CAT better, more useful and more professional.

Dent also said he will talk with other professionals, get input concerning student activities, filter it and pass the information on to the board.

"The articles in the (CAT) magazine should be for the good of the students. I will be able to provide the board with information, ideas and comments concerning issues from the students' or college's points of view," Dent said.

CAT magazine was started by Robert Kirby in '92 because he "felt there was a need for this kind of magazine."

Dent said Kirby started the magazine primarily for the benefit of students working in the student activities area.

Dent has been in the student activities business for approximately 18 years and feels "he is known not because of quality, but because of quantity."

"I have a reputation whether I want it or not and in part that is why I was nominated," Dent said.

Dent believes the other reason he was nominated was because of the FHSU students.

"There is no question; if we didn't have such a good student community and if our reputation wasn't of such good quality, I would not have received the nomination," Dent said.

Dent said probably the most important aspect of his nomination is how it benefits FHSU.

"Whenever faculty, staff or students are on boards or committees, it puts our name out in front nationwide. The more we are seen the more it adds to our reputation," Dent said.

Dent also said it will help us in the financial category.

"The more agents I get to know through my nomination, the more there could be possibilities of getting or saving more money," he said.

Dent will attend his first board meeting on Feb. 12 at the Opryland Hotel in Nashville, Tenn.

He will also attend the National Association for Campus Activities Convention and chair the education session, "How Associates and Presenters Can Work Together on Multi-Cultural Programs."

Dent said Kirby started the magazine primarily for the benefit of students working in the student activities area.

"I have a reputation whether I want it or not and in part that is why I was nominated."

Anne & Andy's Reel Review

This week's feature: 'Sommersby'

Rating: AAAA (worth the ticket price)

Richard Gere and Jodie Foster take a step back in time in the romantic drama, "Sommersby." Gere stars as the show's namesake, Jack Sommersby, a Civil War soldier believed to be dead.

Sommersby returns to his Tennessee hometown after a six-year absence to find his wife, Laurel (Foster) involved in a romance with Brother Oren, one of the town's clergymen.

Although Sommersby is able to remember most of his past, some important details elude him, tipping off the townspeople that maybe this man is not who he claims to be.

Adding to the circle of doubt is Laurel, who notices numerous changes in Sommersby, who was once harsh with her.

However, the townspeople are willing to lay their doubts aside as Sommersby conceives a plan to get the war-torn community back on track. His answer to their reconstruction problems is to plant tobacco on his plantation, giving the sharecroppers an option to buy the land they work.

Unfortunately, Sommersby commits the cardinal sin by allowing African-Americans to work the fields, thus inviting in the Ku Klux Klan and sealing his fate.

Ann's View: Be ready to be impressed.

Richard Gere and Jodie Foster climb to new heights with their performances in their latest screen appearance.

"Sommersby" is so much more than meets the eye. At first glance, it is just another post-war love story about a soldier returning home to rebuild his family and his land.

However, this enticing story just will not let the film drop into this stereotypical melodrama.

The plot's interesting and unexpected twists and turns keep the view fresh.

Foster has an almost exotic quality in this one as we are allowed to see a more feminine side of her. Her tough-as-nails portrayal as Clarice, the Federal Bureau of Investigation cadet in the award-winning "Silence of the Lambs," is a side that is present in this flick in spirit only. Foster's kinder, gentler role is a welcome change and suits this actress of many talents.

In addition, the on-screen chemistry between Foster and Gere is phenomenal. Not since his appearance with Julia Roberts in "Pretty Woman" has Gere been able to connect and make such an impressive impact with his co-star.

The only real drawback in this one is the ending folks. Although somewhat expected, it is not any easier. Take a few tissues and enjoy.

RATING: AAAA

Andy's View: It has been taught that ambiguity is a good quality for some businesses and in life. Don't tell them any more than they need to know.

I have always hated ambiguity. I hate it when I don't know what is going on or what the whole story is.

Until now.

As the opening credits roll for "Sommersby," we see our main character (Gere) burying a man on a hillside. This twist in the storyline keeps the audience guessing through the entire film. Throughout the two hours of film play, we see the story unfold and subconsciously are reminded of the shallow grave at the beginning of the film.

As I saw what was happening in the plot, I kept wanting the main character to "spill his guts" and tell what he was hiding. His ambiguity kept taunting me.

Foster does an excellent job portraying the wife who was forced to be separated from her husband for six years and then shocked when he returns from a war prison.

As the film progresses, we see the aggression and hate between the two characters melt away into love and compassion for each other.

This is an excellent film and I suggest anyone who is down on love or compassion to take a break and find room in their lives for this love story.

RATING: AAAA (AN EXCELLENT LOVE STORY)

"A Few Good Men" is rated R and is showing at the Mall Cinema, 2925 Vine St., along with "National Lampoon's Loaded Weapon Part 1," rated PG-13.

"Sommersby," rated PG-13, and "The Vanishing," rated R, are at the Fox Theatre, 1202 Main St.

Family back together again Four sisters attend Fort Hays State

Kelly Freeman
Copy editor

When individuals leave home to attend college, they usually think they will be leaving the rest of their family behind.

Not so for four Fort Hays State students who originally hail from Lyons.

Sisters, Kathy Robinson, freshman; Kelli (Robinson) Edwards, sophomore; Karla Robinson, senior; and Karen (Robinson) Gunther, senior, all attend FHSU full time.

Not only are they sisters and attending FHSU, but they also have related majors.

Kathy is a chemistry major, Kelly is in the nursing program, Karla is a general science major and Karen is a medical technician major.

Even though there are several similarities about the sisters, they all lead very different lives and surprisingly do not see each other every day.

Kathy, the youngest, lives in McMindes Hall and works at her father's drugstore on the weekends. She said she enjoys attending school at FHSU.

"I like not living at home and having to answer to people all the time," Kathy said.

"The best thing is the professors know you by name; you aren't a statistic," Kathy said.

Kathy said she always thought she would come to FHSU and did not want to go to a big school like Kansas State University or the University of Kansas.

She also said she likes knowing she has family around.

Kathy said, "It's nice to know there's family around, even though I don't get to see them a whole lot."

"I pass Karla every once in a while and I do talk to them. It really doesn't bother me that we are all here."

Kelli, the next youngest, and husband Brad, a contractor, have an apartment here and a house in Lyons where

In committee reports, Martha Holmes, assistant professor of art, said the academic affairs committee did not have a motion to approve the Leadership Studies Program yet.

"We wanted to get more information and answer several questions, so we invited Dr. (Larry) Gould (dean of the college of arts and sciences) to speak before making a motion," Holmes said.

Jean Gleichner, assistant professor of agriculture, announced to repeat the fall orientation brunch and they do laundry on the weekends.

"It's easier to be here during the week for class; it's just more convenient," Kelli said.

Kelli said she is used to having to drive for her job with the Medical Staff Nursing Personnel where they do business in Dodge City, Hays, Great Bend and Hutchinson.

"I'm used to it because of my job, so a drive home on the weekends is OK," Kelli said.

asked for participation and response from each department.

"The suggestion is that each department have a meeting before the annual back-to-school picnic in order to better inform new students," Gleichner said.

Ending discussion was centered on the impact senate has at FHSU.

Hughen said, "We share in the governance. Hammond controls how much we share, but we do have a voice."

"We just make recommendations while he makes the decisions, but we have to get his attention and make sure he listens."

Care Share provides licensed service

Squire R. Boone
Staff writer

Parents in need of childcare will now have access to all licensed child care providers within Ellis county through a locally-based resource and referral service.

Care Share is a computerized resource and referral program that provides parents with a listing of licensed care givers within Ellis county who meet the special needs of the family.

The program is a service of The Children's Center, the merger of the Early Childhood Development Center and Community Childcare.

This service is offered free of charge to both parents and care providers.

Kathy Lohrenz, director of The Children's Center food program and Care Share program coordinator, said, "The service benefits both parents needing childcare and providers trying to build up the businesses."

Care Share strives to provide an important link to quality childcare by matching parents with providers based on age of the child, hours of care needed, location desired and special needs.

Other free services offered by Care Share include workshops on childcare, a resource center for child development questions and professional consultations on a variety of childcare topics, Lohrenz said.

Susan Bittel, community/school relations coordinator, said, "Two and a half years ago, when the merger was first contemplated, there was a gap between information sources."

"We can't be everything to everybody, but the goal was to become a place where a parent could come with all their parenting questions."

Care Share is funded by a grant from the Kansas Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services and is licensed with the Kansas Department of Health and Environment.

The program has been in effect since Jan. 1. Since that time, the names of over 50 care providers have been given out to parents needing childcare.

The service currently has the names of 189 licensed Ellis county care providers in its data base.

Bittel said it is important to realize that Care Share does not provide the parent seeking childcare with a specific provider. It provides a list of several providers the parent can contact.

"Finding quality childcare is one of the most important decisions a parent can make. Parents have a lot of options, but a service like this helps them select the best option for their children," Bittel said.

Parents needing childcare in Ellis county can access the service by calling Care Share at ECDC/CC, The Children's Center, at 625-3257.

Black History Month noticed

Singleton was "Moses"

Crystal Holdren
Managing editor

Editor's note: This is the second part of a four part series about important black individuals who contributed a great service to black history in honor of Black History Month.

Benjamin "Pap" Singleton was known as one of the principal leaders of what has proved to be the greatest mass migration of Negroes in the United States.

He called himself the "Moses of the Exodus."

Singleton was noted in the "Journal of Negro History XXXIII" as having the most influence in bringing freed slaves to Kansas which was known as the "promised land."

Of the 60,000 to 80,000 Negro men and women who traveled to Kansas, 11 colonies were formed between 1873-1880.

Singleton was born a slave in Nashville, Tenn. in 1809 where he learned to be a carpenter and cabinet-maker as he grew up.

While being enslaved, Singleton escaped to Canada and lived until the emancipation.

After the emancipation, he returned to Tennessee and organized the Tennessee Real Estate and Homestead Association.

The purpose of this association was to encourage Tennessee Negroes to settle in governmental lands in Kansas.

He not only encouraged those freed slaves from Tennessee, but also from Texas, South Carolina, Mississippi and Louisiana.

When Singleton made his journey to Kansas in 1873, only 300 Negroes accompanied him and formed the first colony in Cherokee County which was named "Singleton's Colony."

Singleton, however, never lived in any of the colonies he founded.

The great exodus halted in 1881 and he settled in Topeka where he lived in obscurity and poverty and died at the age of 83.

Philanthropy assists Special Olympics

Stephanie Baccus
Staff writer

The men of Tau Kappa Epsilon at Fort Hays State will be traveling to Copper Mountain, Colo., to assist in the 1993 Winter Special Olympics.

According to a press release sent by the fraternity philanthropy chairman Jack Wagnon, 12 TKE men will be assisting as "ski buddies" for the athletes or in registration and operation of the events.

The Winter Special Olympics, to be held Feb. 28 through March 2, offer all the major fields of competition the International Olympics do.

As ski buddies, Wagnon said the TKE's will escort Olympians and their coaches "to the right ski lifts, and to make sure they get where they need to be."

"Our job is to make sure their stay is as pleasurable as possible," he said.

Nate Halverson, TKE president, said, "It's a great opportunity to go to Colorado and help with the Special Olympics and have fun on top of it all."

"These kids are out there having the time of their lives, and you're out with them helping to make it happen; it's a great feeling," he said.

The Special Olympics are the TKE's international philanthropy.

According to Halverson, a philanthropy is a non-profit organization a fraternity or sorority donates its time and efforts to.

Although this is the first year for the Hays TKE's to be a part of the national Special Olympics, the local TKE's help out every year with the annual Special Olympics basketball in Hays.

"We want to make it an annual event to go to the national Olympics, as long as it's in Colorado or somewhere we can get to," Halverson said.

To help send the TKE's on their way, local businesses have made donations from food to condos to an entire club for one night.

There will also be a benefit on tonight, at The Wall, 611 E. Seventh St. The benefit will feature the band "Zion," well drinks are two for the price of one, and there will be a $3 cover charge, Wagnon said.

All proceeds will go to the Special Olympics and to help the TKE's get to Copper Mountain.

The benefit dance is also the debut for the Wall's new "College Night," Thursday nights, beginning tonight, persons must be 18 to enter, 21 to drink, Wagnon said. The Wall regularly has an age limit of 21 to enter.

Additional donations to the Special Olympics or to help the TKE's get to Colorado can be sent to "Tau Kappa Epsilon" at 410 W. Seventh St. in Hays. The TKE's will be leaving Feb. 26 and returning late on March 2.

Quartet to perform

Rebecca Lofton
Staff writer

The John Chambers Quartet performed last Wednesday and will perform tonight at 8 p.m. at the Backdoor, Custer Hall.

Performing as part of the Gallery Series, the John Chambers Quartet is a local jazz group that performs jazz standers, as well as contemporary jazz. The group performs a wide variety of styles which provides something enjoyable for all jazz lovers, according to a press release.

The quartet is comprised of John Chambers, piano; Brad Dawson, trumpet; Ken Windholz, drum; and Cliff Engel, bass.

This is the quartet's second appearance on the Gallery Series.

I.B. Dent, director of Memorial Union Activities Board, said, "They played extremely well and drew a good crowd last year."

Dent does not often book local groups. However, in this case he made an exception.

"They're very talented musicians."

They're the only local group we bring in. We like to be well-represented and we don't have many jazz players on the circuit," Dent said.

Chambers said he first met Dawson and Windholz approximately 10-12 years ago on the FHSU campus. Engel, who is 17 years old, was added almost a year ago by Dawson who had been giving him lessons in jazz.

"He's an excellent player. He's very dedicated and a very fine player," Chambers said.

The band members have developed a deep sense of appreciation for one another that stems from their mutual love of jazz.

Originally, the quartet got together to perform for specific events, Dawson said, but for the past few years, the group has been rehearsing regularly.

Jazz is the only art form to have oriented in the United States, according to Chambers. Along with classical music, Chambers feels jazz is "the highest form of music."

Turnovers tell tale

Lady Tigers fall short of Kearney

Christian D Orr
Sports editor

The Lady Tigers fell one pass short last night as they lost to the Lady Lopers from the University of Nebraska-Kearney 63-62.

With :06 left in the game last night and the Tigers down by one point, Fort Hays State's Petrece Faulkner passed off to Tiffany Bunnell. But, Bunnell had broke to the basket, and the ball sailed into the stands at Gross Memorial Coliseum, giving the Lady Lopers control of the ball and the game.

Even though the last second pass would have possibly set up the winning score, Lady Tiger Head Coach John Klein said it was not just that pass that lost the game for FHSU.

"Petrece's turnover at the end of the game did not cost us the game," Klein said. "But that was a fitting way to end it, because what did cost us the game was the total turnovers we had."

"They had a lot of baskets off of turnovers, and our team is just weak with the basketball."

The game started off as if the Lady Tigers would go on to another blowout as they scored the first 10 points of the game to take a 10-0 lead with 4:28 gone off the game clock.

FHSU built the lead up to as many as 13 points with 6:35 left in the first half, as Kristin Harms hit a layup to give the Lady Tigers a 28-15 lead.

That was as high as the lead would get for the Lady Tigers, as UNK started making their comeback.

The Lady Lopers outscored FHSU 18-5 over the next 5:54 and tied the score at 33 a piece with just :39 left in the opening half.

Faulkner drilled two free throws at the end of the half to make the score 35-33, but the one-time 13-point lead by the Lady Tigers had shrunk to two points at halftime.

The Lady Lopers came out in the second half and hit an early bucket to tie the score at 35-35 just :21 into the half.

The teams battled back and forth with neither team gaining more than a three-point advantage on the other until the 11:04 mark of the second half when Barb Steinlage turned the ball over to the Lady Lopers who took it in for the score starting an 8-0 run by the Lady Lopers.

The turnover by Steinlage was just one of 21 turnovers by the Lady Tigers which resulted in 28 points for the Lady Lopers. The 8-0 run by UNK gave them a 55-48 lead with 8:34 left in the game.

The Lady Lopers built the lead up to eight points with 4:30 left in the game, but it was then time for the FHSU defense to take the stage.

The Lady Tigers switched to a full court pressure defense and held UNK to just one-point over the last 4:30 of the game.

The Lady Tigers scored eight points over the last 4:30 to close within one at 63-62 and then setting up for the possible go-ahead score when Faulkner threw the errant pass.

Klein said they were trying to get the ball to Carol Coykendall at the free throw line and hopefully get the bucket or draw a foul.

"We were going to get the ball up the floor and we were going to try and get Carol the ball at the free throw line and let her go down through the lane and hopefully draw a foul or get the bucket, but we never even got the ball into the offense," Klein said.

The Lady Tigers had one last chance as the Lady Lopers' Jodi Steinman missed the front end of the one-and-one, but Faulkner's last second shot bounced off and the Lady Lopers took home the one-point victory.

Klein said it was the defense, not the offense, which kept the Lady Tigers within one-point of the victory.

"It was another great defensive effort," Klein said. "That's the only thing that is keeping us in games because offensively we just do not have the type of execution where we are getting shots everytime we get the ball."

"It's very discouraging because we do play very good defense, and then we just cough the ball right back up, and that's frustrating. It's too bad for the kids because they work so hard and then they just hand it right back to them."

The loss drops the Lady Tigers to 11-9 on the season.

Their next action will come tomorrow night and Saturday night when they take on Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference foes. The Lady Tigers currently hold a 4-2 record in the RMAC just one game out of the lead.

Tomorrow night FHSU will take on Western State in Gunnison, Colo., at 6 p.m. The Lady Mountaineers have a 4-12 overall record and are 2-4 in the RMAC.

Saturday night the Lady Tigers will take on Mesa State at 6 p.m. in Grand Junction, Colo., who is currently tied with Chadron State for the RMAC lead with a record of 5-1. They have an 11-9 overall record.

Faulkner sets scoring mark against Adams St.

Christian D Orr
Sports editor

The Lady Tigers' Petrece Faulkner broke a two-year-old basketball record Saturday night by scoring 46 points against Adams State.

Faulkner hit 12 of 12 from the free throw line, and the last free throw she shot put her at 46 points, giving her one more point than Annette Wiles, who is currently an assistant coach for the Lady Tigers.

Wiles scored the points on March 6, '91 against UW-Stout in the NAIA national championship tournament.

Faulkner started the season in fifth place on the FHSU all-time scoring leaders, needing just 183 points to take over third place which is currently held by Chris Breer who played from 1986-90.

The scoring record is the eighth record Faulkner has put into the books.

Faulkner first entered the books back on Dec. 12, '91 when she hit seven three-point field goals in one game.

Faulkner next hit the record books on Jan. 25, '92 when she claimed two records.

Faulkner went to the free throw line 15 times in one contest, which was the first record, and she sank 13 free throws in the contest which was the second record.

The next two records Faulkner laid claim to came from her season totals during the 1991-92 season.

Faulkner hit 42 free throws during the 1991-92 season and had an 83.2 percentage from the free throw line to give her two more records.

The last of Faulkner's records she is continuing to build on. At the beginning of this season Faulkner had attempted 218 three-point field goals which is good enough for record number six, and she had hit 80 of the 218 three-point field goals which is good for her seventh record.

Schwindt meets provisional standard at Jayhawk Invite

Christian D Orr
Sports editor

The Fort Hays State track team competed in the Jayhawk Indoor Invitational Saturday where they had seven competitors place in the top 10.

Thirty-nine colleges brought over 400 athletes to compete in the invitational which saw two Lady Tigers and five Tiger men bring home medals.

Head Coach Jim Krob said the meet was a very good learning experience for the Tigers.

"This was a very good learning experience for the few Tigers we took to this meet. There were better than 900 athletes entered," Krob said.

"We had some excellent efforts and some very average. The coaches take the blame for the average efforts as we competed our athletes on Wednesday and they just did not have enough time to recover."

Leading the way for the Lady Tigers was Krista Adams who captured a second place finish in the 5000-meter run with a time of 18:36.8.

placing for FHSU in the 35-pound weight throw was Tim Bevan. Bevan took fifth in the competition with a heave of 42' 10 1/2".

In the triple jump, the Tigers had

"Lance Schwindt's triple was a very good effort as were Krista Adams and Mark Pohlman's 5000-meter runs. Krista and Mark proved that they can run with the big dogs."

-Jim Krob
Head Track Coach

The only other Lady Tiger to capture a medal was Tonva Jopp who turned in a seventh place finish in the 300 yard dash with a time of 37.4.

The Tigers were led by Chad Hammerichmidt who captured a third place finish in the 35-pound weight throw with a heave of 44' 6". After their fourth competitor meet the National Collegiate Athletics Association Division II provisional mark as Lance Schwindt jumped 46' 10 1/2". Schwindt's performance was good enough for a sixth place finish.

In the high jump competition, the Tigers' Rick Carlson placed eighth with a jump of 6' 7 1/2", and in the 5000-meter run, Mark Pohlman captured fifth place with a time of 15:02.8.

"Lance Schwindt's triple was a very good effort as were Krista Adams' and Mark Pohlman's 5000-meter runs," Krob said. "Krista and Mark proved that they can run with the big dogs."

Next up for the Tigers will be the University of Nebraska-Kearney Invitational this Saturday.

FHSU was originally supposed to compete in Oklahoma City, but Krob said the UNK meet will better fit what his team needs right now.

"This week we altered our schedule somewhat. We were scheduled to take some athletes to Oklahoma City, but we have decided to take the whole team to the Kearney Invitational. We feel we can work harder, get into more events and accomplish more getting ready for the RMAC (Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference) meet," Krob said.

Tigers drop seventh dual, lose to UNK Lopers 25-3

Christian D Orr
Sports editor

The Fort Hays State Tiger wrestling team suffered their seventh dual loss last night as they got beat by the University of Nebraska-Kearney 25-3.

Although the Tigers lost by a 22-point margin, the match was closer than the score reveals.

The Lopers won eight of the nine matches, but were only able to win one of them by more than a decision.

The only match UNK won by more than a decision was a major decision scored by Andy McNeff over the Tigers' David Schneider in the 190-pound match.

Head Coach Bob Smith said he was happy with the way his team stuck with it and never gave up.

"We never gave up, but we are not as intense as we need to be," Smith said.

Both squads were open in the 118-pound weight division.

In the 126-pound division, Kearney scored a 7-2 victory as Sean Donovan decisively FHSU's Jonathan Paddock to give the Lopers a 3-0 lead. Paddock's record dropped to 7-15.

UNK built the lead up to six points at the end of the 134-pound match as Ben Loggains dropped to 26-5 by losing to Martin Segovia 8-7.

Scott Stults was next up for the Tigers. Stults took the Lopers' Jason Christiansen into sudden-death overtime in the 142-pound weight division, but Christiansen got the first takedown and the 11-9 victory to give UNK a 9-0 lead. Stults' record dropped to 16-15.

The lead grew to 12 points after the 150-pound match when Ali Amir-Eliasi beat Don Riedinger 9-6. Riedinger's record dropped to 17-13.

The Tigers finally got on the scoreboard after the 158-pound match where the Tigers' Joe Dreher scored an 8-6 decision to give the Tigers three points on the scoreboard and give him an 8-3 overall record.

The Lopers got back on the scoreboard after the 167-pound match where Clint Newell suffered a 12-8 loss to the hands of Shannon Peters to give UNK a 15-3 lead. Newell's record dropped to 4-9.

The Tigers fell further behind after the 177-pound match where Jeff Chamblin suffered an 8-4 loss to Ryan Panowicz to give the Lopers an 18-3 lead. Chamblin's record dropped to 19-15.

The Lopers scored the only major decision of the night in the 190-pound match where UNK's Andy McNeff beat Schneider 13-5, giving the Lopers a 22-3 lead.

In the last match of the night, the Tigers Shad Jacobs lost by a 7-2 score to John Welsh to give the Lopers a 25-3 victory.

The next action for the Tigers will come this weekend when they compete in the Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference Championships at Gross Memorial Coliseum. The Tigers placed fourth in the tournament last season.

Six teams will compete for the conference title beginning at 11:30 a.m. They include Adams State College, who won the title last season, Chadron State College, Colorado School of Mines, FHSU, Fort Lewis College and Western State College.

Sports Briefs

Final Four may be in February

The National Collegiate Athletics Association may change the date of the Women's Final Four to February, so that it will no longer be in competition with the Men's Final Four.

Along with changing the date of the Women's Final Four, the NCAA Executive Council is also expected to change the number of teams in the Women's tournament from 48 to 64.

Spokesmen say that the biggest reason for the changes is so they can receive greater national coverage of the event.

Bowe, Lewis disagree

Days after Boxing's Heavyweight Champion Riddick Bowe defeated Michael Dokes with a first round knockout, he is already talking with Lennox Lewis about a possible June fight.

The two have been talking about a match ever since Bowe earned the title by defeating Evander Holyfield, but they have never been able to come to terms on a contract.

Bowe currently holds the World Boxing Association and Intercontinental Boxing Federation title belts, while Lewis is the owner of the World Boxing Commission's belt, which Bowe literally threw into a trash can.

Tribe building new stadium

The Cleveland Indians are currently in the process of building a new stadium for the '94 baseball season.

The Indians have played the past 61 years in Memorial Stadium, making it the fourth oldest park in the American League.

The new stadium is being called the Gateway Center and will cost a projected $161 million dollars to build.

It is being built in downtown Cleveland and will have a natural-grass field.

It will have 11 diamond suites, 120 loge suites, 2,000 club seats, a 17,000-square foot clubhouse and a 19-foot wall in left field with built-in out-of-town scores.

The new stadium will seat approximately 42,000 and will have a three-story, glass enclosed restaurant down the left-field line.

The Indians, who are currently trying to rebuild a contending ball club, has already sold 600,000 tickets for the upcoming year, which is more than three times the amount sold a year ago.

"YOU'VE NEVER HAD IT SO GOOD" 333 W. 8TH, HAYS, KS

Bird, Johnson will be missed

Basketball said goodbye to Larry Bird last week and goodbye to an incredible era of the sport.

The era had two key members, and as the Boston Celtics raised aloft the No. 33 into the rafters at the Boston Garden, we sadly said our second early goodbye.

In basketball, the decade of '80s belonged to Bird and Earvin "Magic" Johnson. They took basketball to a new level. And with Johnson having to retire due to having the virus that causes AIDS, and Bird retiring early because of a bad back, it is a level the sport may never see again.

Oh, there are stars in the National Basketball Association right now such as Michael Jordan, Shaquille O'Neil and Patrick Ewing, but there is no one that quite brings the excitement Johnson and Bird gave together.

The two started their rivalry in college and carried it right into the NBA and eventually ended it in the most proper way by playing on the same team and bringing home the Gold medal in the 1992 Olympics.

How many times in the past 14 years have two teams, with two star players, been on a crash course for the National Collegiate Athletics Association tournament finals in the way Bird and Johnson were in '79?

The only thing I can think of that is even close would be in the mid '80s when Georgetown had Patrick Ewing and the Houston Cougars had Akeem Olajuwon.

Houston and Georgetown met up in the finals of the NCAA tournament, but the match-up was no where close to what Bird and Johnson provided in '79.

Who can forget the tournament in '79 when Bird's Indiana State team met up with Johnson and the Spartans from Michigan State? It would prove to be just the first of many match-ups for titles between the two basketball stars.

Yes, Johnson won the game for the college championship, but Bird would get his revenge in the NBA winning against Johnson's Los Angeles Lakers twice, while Johnson captured just one title from Bird and the Celtics in the NBA Finals.

Both Bird and Johnson won other NBA titles, but the true joy came out of watching the two athletes go head-to-head.

Although there are stars in basketball today, there aren't two players with the intense rivalry Bird and Johnson shared.

They were never on the same team until the end, whether it was college, professional, or all-star teams, they continually went head-to-head.

Then with both players playing in what would prove to be their last games at a competitive level, they finally got to play together on the same team.

Bird, with his bad back, and Johnson, with his deadly virus, spearheaded the "Dream Team" and brought back pride to the United States' basketball team by capturing the gold medal in the Seoul Olympics.

The saddest part of Bird's and Johnson's retirements is neither one was able to go out of the game on their own terms.

Both Bird and Johnson have a lot of basketball left in their blood whether they choose to admit it or not, and the basketball world could definitely watch them meet up for four or five more years.

Tigers move to 5-1 in RMAC

Claudette Humphrey
Sports writer

Following the Tigers' huge upset at the hands of Rockhurst College last Tuesday evening, the Fort Hays State men's basketball squad needed a win to boost their confidence.

However, that big win would have to come away from Gross Memorial Coliseum and their fans, as the Tigers had to take to the road.

First up for the Tigers was a long trip to Las Vegas, N.M., to take on New Mexico Highlands Thursday night.

FHSU seemed to be a team on a mission especially going into the final minutes of the contest when NMH looked to have the momentum on their side, but the Tigers dug down and really held their ground to come away with a much needed victory 73-63.

Assistant Coach Chad Wintz, who was recruiting and unable to make the trip with the team, said although there were moments when the score got close he was very pleased to see the Tigers work harder and fight for the win.

"I wasn't on that trip because I was out recruiting. But from what I understand there were times in that game when it got close and our kids did dig down, and they found that little extra that it takes to win on the road."

"That's really not easy to do in a foreign environment and where it's basically you against everybody else in the gym. Sometimes that's a hard situation for kids, especially new kids like we have, but they're getting acquainted with what it's like on the road in the Rocky Mountain conference fairly quickly," Wintz said.

Saturday the Tigers headed into Colorado to visit Adams State University.

With the confidence FHSU gained from their win just two nights earlier at New Mexico, the Tigers were able to take another big game on the road as they defeated ASU by four points with the score 72-68.

A major reason for both victories was junior Justin Johnson who played very well offensively and defensively for the Tigers in both contests.

Johnson scored a team-high 18 points and hauled down seven rebounds in the Tigers win over New Mexico Highlands.

Against Adams State Johnson shared scoring honors with teammate Eric Johnson as each scored 12 points for FHSU while junior Radford Rainey led the team with five boards.

Wintz said the coaching staff was impressed with the play of both Eric and Justin Johnson.

"The coaching staff filled me in on the performances of Justin Johnson and Eric Johnson. I think they both contributed offensively for us, as well as defensively in those two games. They just do a good job executing. They know their roles, they both do exactly what is expected of them and that's why they're scoring points."

"I think the points are just kind of an end product of their execution and that's a nice reward for them. I'm just really happy for both of those young men because they play hard every day," Wintz said.

The Tigers will take to the road again this weekend as they travel to Colorado to take on Western State tomorrow and Mesa State Saturday.

Western State, which is the current leader in the RMAC with an undefeated record, defeated FHSU in a heartbreaking 71-69 loss when the Tigers hosted WSC January 28.

Wintz said, this contest is a bit of revenge for the Tigers after their last meeting.

"We have the chance to get them on their home floor just like they edged us out here. I think there is probably a little revenge in mind, but at the same time if we could win that game it would really put us in a tie for the top spot."

"The good thing about this game is that we have the chance to do that ourselves and we don't have to count on anyone else beating Western. This is fun for the guys and we're just looking forward to the challenge."

Mesa State is currently in third place in the RMAC right behind FHSU so the Tigers realize they will have their hands full over the weekend.

The University Leader's 1993 Valentine's Day Sweetheart Page

Peter Pan,
I thank you for all of the good times that we have had.
I'm glad that we have become such good friends and more.
My only question now is will you be my Valentine?
Love The Easter Bunny

Tammy Brooks—Just a note to let you know how proud Hillary and I are of all your accomplishments at Fort Hays State University.
Keep up the good work! Bill

Kayla Sue—"The Best Roomie Ever!"
I hope this Valentine's Day is very special because you deserve it!
Hang in there, school will be over soon! Tell Magnum "Hi" for me!
Love, Your Roomie

This is for you, my little papishka. I think of the short time we've spent together and all the things we've shared. I just wanted you to know how much you mean to me.
Without you in my life
I'd be nothing.
I love you, Snooks

Sweetheart you're the greatest thing that has ever happened to me. I couldn't ask for anything else. I will always be happy so long as I am with you. So will you please be my Valentine?
Love Loren

Hey Sweet-ums!
The last four months have been the greatest! I praise
God for you and I can't
WAIT until you meet my Dad!
Until then, I'll just tell you that I LOVE YOU! Forever yours, the luckiest woman on the planet!
Hebrews 13:56

Sugar, just wanted to say I love you with all my heart and soul. You have made all my dreams come true and I hope together we can make all "our" dreams come true. Together we can conquer the world.
Loving you more than yesterday; less than tomorrow,
Alexander's Mom

Dear Bob Ridgeway,
Happy 1st Valentine's Day! Will you be my Valentine...forever?
I LOVE YOU!—Your Goof

Tim & Rachel—I didn't have enough money to buy you a new car so I thought I'd send this message instead! Just kidding! Hope you have a great Valentine's Day!
Your Sis (In-Law)

Dear T.S.H.,
I am very sorry for all the trouble I have been. One of these days I hope you can find it in your heart to forgive me. I love you with all my heart and soul and don't want you out of my life.
Love, J.W.B.

Loren—Thank God
for Biology and gut feelings. If not for those, we wouldn't be here today. I knew that first day you were special, but I didn't know I'd fall so fast and be so happy! Ours is the true love story!
Love today, tomorrow and always,
Your Darlin'

Beth,
On this Valentine's Day it is both the day for love and the day of our anniversary. Both are very strong to me now and forever.
R.D.B.

Travis
I have seen you taking pictures from afar and I have wanted to go up and talk to you, but I haven't because you have so think of you as my Valentine.
