Preparations for world's end to start Thursday

Amy Krob
Entertainment reporter

"It might be described as the end of the world as we know it, but it will be performed by Saturday Night Live," Lloyd Frerer, professor of communication, said.

Fort Hays State Theater will present "Some Things You Need to Know Before the World Ends (A Final Evening with the Illuminati)" Thursday through Sunday at Felten-Start Theatre, Malloy Hall.

The Thursday, Friday and Saturday performances will begin at 8 p.m. and the Sunday matinee begins at 2 p.m.

Frerer said it is a new play written in 1986 and has played at regional theaters, but never on Broadway.

The setting is the bombed-out, post-holocaust sanctuary of a church, and the production centers around the Reverend Eddie, a preacher who is preparing his final sermon amidst visions of conducting job interviews for sainthood candidates and playing basketball with the Devil.

"I guess you could call it a black comedy. It's a short play, a surreal piece with religious overtones," Tommie Williams, theater costumer in the department of communication, said.

Frerer said the Illuminati were a mystical religious sect started in Spain. They thought they saw the light (the Illuminati), but they were suppressed because the church didn't believe in them.

The production was first produced at the Humana Festival of New American Plays in Louisville.

Then, "A Final Evening with the Illuminati" went on to win the American College Theater Festival at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

Frerer said he saw it performed in St. Louis at an American College Performers Festival.

He said Steve Shapiro, associate professor of communication, chose to do the play "A Piece of My Heart" which has a cast of mostly women. It gave him an excuse to do this play with all men.

The cast includes Mike Doll, Great Bend freshman; Abe Garcia, Houston graduate student; Eric Lueters, Ransom junior; Craig Steinert, Bushton senior; and Ken Ukele, Norton freshman.

"There's everything in this play. It's getting stranger by the minute," Frerer said.

Tickets for the play are $5 for adults and $4 for students and can be purchased in Malloy Hall.

Travis Monse/University Leader

Abe Garcia, Houston graduate, (Reverend Eddie), talks to Craig Steinert, Chase junior, (Brother Lawrence), about 'The One True Church' during rehearsal of the play 'Some Things You Need to Know Before the World Ends' last night in Felten-Start Theatre. The play will run Nov. 18-20 at 8 p.m. and Nov. 21 at 2 p.m. in Felten-Start Theatre.

Referendum on tuition raise for next year to be prepared by SGA

Donetta Robben
Senate reporter

Students will have the opportunity to decide if they want their tuition fees increased next year.

Student Government Association decided at its weekly meeting Thursday, it would put together a referendum allowing students to decide if an updated library, a campus radio station and financial aid improvements warrant raising tuition fees.

Faculty and students alike have been waiting for the library to be updated with more monographs, periodical subscriptions and reference material.

According to statistics compiled by English professor, Richard Leeson, Forsyth library is only 50 percent of what it should be to meet American Library Association standards for four-year universities of its type.

"We are in sorry shape," he said. According to Leeson's statistics, the average number of monographs at peer libraries is 353,508. Forsyth has 196,274 (not including government documents, electronic holdings and extra copies of a monograph).

Likewise, the average number of periodical subscriptions at peer institutions is 3,354. Forsyth has 1,811.

"These statistics don't include reference sections, where FHSU is equally behind," Leeson said. "The library is, and will remain, the heart of any liberal arts university."

The referendum is currently in the proposal stages. It will have to be approved by SGA before it is voted on by the students.

Lance Lippert, associate director of telecommunications and media services, asked senators for support for a student operated radio station.

Lippert said a campus radio station would enhance the campus plus provide a "hands on" program in telecommunications.

Additionally, it will be an outlet to students at Fort Hays State, providing them an outlet for culture.

"It will also benefit recruitment in addition to serving as a media lab and promotional tool," Lippert said.

He estimates the cost to be $60,000 to $100,000 depending on what type of transmitter and antenna is purchased. If more powerful equipment is used, a wider geographic area can be serviced.

Currently, the university does have a radio station, KFHS, 94.9 cable FM. However, in order to tune into it, the listener must purchase an adapter for their cable TV and splice the wire enabling it to be connected to both TV and stereo.

Lippert said most people will not go through this much trouble to tune in. With a transmitter and antenna, KFHS would become a regular radio station—allowing the listener to simply turn the radio dial to 94.9 FM.

Another proposal on the referendum will be to update the computer system in the Financial Aid Office.

Halverson said an updated computer system in financial aid will allow direct lending, cutting out the "middle man" allowing students to receive their checks quicker.

Karl Metzger, director of student financial aid, said direct lending is in the proposal stages. No concrete federal regulation has been issued yet.

Metzger said with direct lending, students would no longer have to wait for loan checks to be processed through a bank.

Metzger said a mainframe computer system is needed in his office. Currently, staff members will go to as many as four separate computer systems to gather the information necessary to process financial aid. With a mainframe system, all the information would be available on one system.

Metzger estimates the cost to adequately update the system to be anywhere from $100,000 to $300,000.

Outbreak of tuberculosis in Garden City area causes concern at Fort Hays State

Donetta Robben
Senate reporter

The outbreak of tuberculosis in the Garden City area has caused Fort Hays State to begin taking precautions.

"We want to educate our state students," Nate Halverson, student government president, said.

Halverson said he met with FHSU President Edward Hammond and Jim Dawson, vice president for student affairs and institutional development, regarding a preventive measure should a TB outbreak occur at FHSU.

"With students living in close quarters, it became a concern of mine to find out about the disease and how it spreads," Halverson said.

According to a family medical guide published by "Better Homes and Gardens," TB can affect membranes of the brain, bones and urinary tract. However, approximately 90 percent of TB is in the lungs.

"Germs are present in droplets of material sprayed into the air from the lungs of a person with active TB during coughing, sneezing, and are also present in the sputum, spit," the medical guide said.

The medical guide states the basic routes TB germs enter the body are through the digestive track (swallowing), through the respiratory system (inhaling). Less frequent entries are the eyes and occasionally the genital organs.

Most people swallow the germs, which are eliminated through the intestines, the medical guide said. If TB affects the kidneys, germs are eliminated in the urine, and if the disease is in the bones and joints, it is discharged through the skin.

The medical guide said direct sunlight usually kills the germs.

However, if germs are protected by materials such as sputum and pus, they may survive for several months," the medical guide said.

One of the first symptoms of tuberculosis is unbearable fatigue. The medical guide said this may be followed by a deep cough—one may seem to have chronic bronchitis.

Coughing up blood is another sign. In addition, a fever may be present in the afternoon, but not in the morning.

Also, a physician may hear abnormal sounds in the lungs.

However, students should not wait until symptoms occur.

"By the time symptoms are noticeable, perhaps many years after primary infection, the disease is well advanced," the medical guide said.

The best way to find out if tuberculosis germs are present is to have a skin test.

The Student Health Center offers free skin tests to FHSU students on a walk-in basis.

Important for students to know, is if they do test positive for the test, this doesn't necessarily mean they will come down with TB, Dawson said.

The medical guide states TB germs may live in a person a lifetime without the person ever developing "incapacitating tuberculosis."

Dawson said education is the best preventive measure. He said flyers have been sent to residence halls, fraternities and sororities explaining basic safeguards.

"Students need to use common sense," Halverson said. They need to keep clean, use good hygiene and be immunized."

Halverson estimated 40 or 50 cases have been reported in the Garden City area.

However, Patty Scott, director of the Student Health Center, said there is "no active TB at FHSU."

Scott said the health office does work with the Center for Disease Control and the Department of Health and Environment. Therefore, if an active TB case is discovered, proper reporting and preventive measures will be taken.

Society sex-dominated

It seems as though our society is dominated by sex-sex abuse. There is a whole string of sexual abuse charges plaguing the media as of late.

There is John Babbit living with a repaired penis after his wife became angry and sliced it off. She accused him of rape. He denied it. Last week he was acquitted. Her trial is next.

There is Emil Tonkovich, a former law professor at Kansas State University, fired because of allegations of sexual harassment by a female student. He denied it, saying he became the target of a "witch hunt."

There is a homosexual charge of sexual abuse against a prominent Catholic Cardinal from Chicago, Joseph Bernadin. He denies it, saying he does not even remember meeting the man.

There is Sen. Robert Packwood (R-Oregon) who, among many other accusations, is accused of sexual harassment.

And there is sensitive Michael Jackson, accused of sexual abuse by the family of a young boy who made frequent visits to Jackson's carnival zoo estate.

With all these allegations taking up space on the front page of newspapers, we as a society have to contemplate what is happening to us. Are we obsessed with sex? Or are we obsessed with an easy way to make money?

How do we know if these allegations are true? It comes down to one person's word against another. Many times, it comes down to who can hire the best lawyer.

If the allegations are true, and the person is convicted, justice is done. However, justice is not done if the allegations are false, and the reputation and career of the accused is forever ruined.

For the victims of false allegations, a counter suit should be filed, accusing the original accuser of malicious rumors and corruptly trying to make an easy buck.

Verbal slander can be most detrimental. It takes a person and strips him of everything he has worked for. It turns him upside down, shakes away all his pride and faith, turns him inside out and throws him penniless, jobless and usually friendless back in to society.

Sexual abuse does take place in our imperfect society, no doubt. However, when so many cases dominate the media, it is hard to believe they are all true stories.

'Labeling' people causes misunderstanding

Well, in case you haven't read the small print of the Leader, (and I'm sure you spend every Tuesday and Friday scrutinizing every line at the bottom of page two) we have two copy editors. I'm one, Rebecca Lofton is the other.

Rebecca, in her serious state of mind, has announced her opinion that I can not write a serious column, one that didn't even try to poke fun at anyone or anything.

I, who find it difficult to turn down a challenge, (and am really stupid) said I would do just that.

As further incentive, I found out my parents are getting copies of the Leader, so we have to clean up my image, ok? No parties, no men, not even an attitude. Just saintly studying. (Sadly, it's not too far from the truth this week.)

So here goes, gang. Stick with me on this one, and I just might say something intelligent and important for once, because it is about a serious issue, with a serious point.

Somebody at a party I was at the other night was slamming gays pretty hard. (Did I say party? No, Dad, I meant Democratic party. Yeah, that

Stephanie Baccus
Copy editor

After a few of his slams that weren't jokes, I interrupted him. He said he wanted gays to "stay away from" him. I guess he thought he'd be mistaken for someone cute. (whatever)

Maybe I was kind of mad, because I kicked him out. (Oops! Mom, Dad, you didn't read that. I did not have a party at my house. Not me, No.)

Gays are people, and gay jokes are even less intelligent than black jokes, because gay prejudices aren't based on a physical difference, just a difference of opinion, like when my friends and I disagree on "nice" butts on men.

If you think about it, the word "queer" is pretty stupid. After all, "queer" is a three-dollar bill, a short-necked giraffe, or a rich college student...rare things.

But statistics say approximately 10% of Americans are gay. Hello? 10% is not rare. I'd bet less than 10% of the bills in your wallet are three-dollar bills, or even ten-dollar bills.

So calling a gay person "queer" is kind of like calling me tall-it's just the wrong word, Jack.

Along the same lines, (man, this next one's gonna get my butt hurt if I don't say it right) the word "nigger" is so out-of-date and so misused, I think it needs to be defined. A "nigger," although still derogatory, is not necessarily a black person.

Do I need to repeat that? Go ahead, reread it.

Webster's definition is "second-class citizen." No mention of color in there, eh? I'd like to offer an even more updated version. A "nigger" is a stupid jerk, a fool, somebody who really needs a good punch right on the kisser, no matter what color he is.

See, the point is, the human race has outgrown its prejudices against color, and therefore, labels should not be colorbased, if we have to have the word in the language at all.

Granted, the word should never have been created, and certainly should never have been used against the beautiful and proud black race.

I first realized the misunderstanding of the word from a black friend when she called a white jerk at a bar a "nigger."

Good point, I thought. (Oops! No, Mom, I wasn't at a bar. Really.)

Face it, every person has at least one label, like it or not, but let's start labeling jars for what's inside.

And as far as homosexuality goes, you're probably sitting near one or more, so chill out and enjoy their company as the human beings they are.

A person's sexual preference is, first of all, none of your business.

Secondly, although he or she may be "disgusting" to you, so is what I like on a peanut butter sandwich, so deal with it. The rest of the world already has. (Gays, not my PBJ sandwiches. Duh.)

P.S. Unless Rebecca can convince me otherwise, this will be my last column for the Leader. It's been fun, ya'll. Thanks for all the comments, good and bad. I appreciate them.

Column initiates two opposing views

Student disgusted at 'inappropriate' language

Dear editor,

I am writing in response to an editorial by Fred Hunt in the Tuesday, Nov. 2, issue titled "Computing center censors students." I would like to say I agree with Hunt's viewpoints, but I can not.

First of all, using "tgirl" is not a given right, or even a right, of the Constitution. It is a privilege given to the "user" by the university. If a violation of rules, laws or policies occurs, it is the right of the university to pass judgement and penalty.

I personally have seen and read some of Mr. Paradise's NOTES, and I was disgusted. The "inappropriate" language was not just an occasional word or two, but several. Connotation was to a point of disgrace to the person Paradise was writing to, the reader.

Hunt stated, "I thought FHSU was supposed to be a place of knowledge and learning, where one went to receive an education." It is, Paradise has just learned what happens when you step over the line of social norm.

We have freedom of speech. With that freedom comes responsibility and respect. Responsibility to express ourselves without the use of such "inappropriate" language. We are here to educate and increase ourselves. This includes the spoken word. Respect and consider another person's rights. Right of life, liberty and pursuit of happiness. Respect that may be a person does not want to hear or read such language. Once an individual uses such "inappropriate" language, he/she has not only lost his/her responsibility, but respect as well.

We stand behind our constitutional rights without realizing the responsibility comes along with it. Making sure our rights are met, the world will possibly become more violent and disoriented than what it is today. All because of the abuse of "communication."

Let's meet our responsibility and keep our respect. We do not need a computer section just for people to curse on. We need students smart enough to increase, form, and use language properly and appropriately. Dusty Fulk, Hays junior

Computer user's language should not be censored

Dear editor,

Where, oh where is the university going?

There was a time when I looked upon the Fort Hays State administration with the same sort of amusement I get from Clinton's domestic policy advisors.

Sure, they make a lot of bad moves, but they can not help it.

They simply do not know any better.

But here I am, another year older (maybe wiser), reading Fred Hunt's article, "Computing center censors students," in the Tuesday, Nov. 2, issue of the University Leader.

I may not be the most verbally elegant of people, but I do know people should be allowed to use whatever verbs (or in this case, interjections) they deem necessary.

If Keith Faulkner, director of computing, (or anyone else) disagrees about the "appropriateness" of a particular passage, all he has to do is skip it and go on to the next.

Recently I have revised my opinion of the FHSU administration. I think they know exactly what they are doing.

They are extremely hostile to anyone whose views differ from their own.

The higher education community does not need this attitude.

After all, it is not the purpose of education to open minds? Daniel Odum, Hays

Student Health Center explains fee increase for medicine

Dear editor,

This letter is in response to the article in the Leader dated Oct. 22, regarding economic stress for FHSU students.

I remember what it was like to be in college and am sensitive to the financial stressors of students.

However, as director, I feel the need to clarify a couple points.

On Nov. 19, 1992, I made a presentation to Student Government regarding our budget.

I explained costs of pharmaceuticals was soaring out of control, and we must find some way to cover a portion of the costs.

In 90-91, $15,500 was budgeted for pharmaceuticals, and $22,430 was actually spent. In 91-92, $30,000 was budgeted, and $35,433 was spent.

In 92-93, $34,000 was budgeted, and $56,846 was actually spent.

It was proposed the fee for service be increased to $5 for a physician visit, or a visit where standard medications are given.

The whole purpose of the increase is not to profit from the students, but rather regain some of our losses.

Over-the-counter medications are still free. That is not true of any other Regents institution.

We have an "IOT" policy, where students can buy now, pay later.

In one month, we had over $1,000 owed to us in IOT's.

Some students still try to leave without paying.

The Student Health Center tries very hard to meet the needs of our students.

The reality is health care costs are increasing at a phenomenal rate.

We work very hard to be both fiscally responsible and sound, while providing quality care at the most cost effective rate for our students.

Since we welcome student comments or input, a Student Advisory Group has been developed to augment the decision making process.

To be part of that group, one only needs to have a desire to work toward a common goal of providing quality services to all students in a cost effective manner.

We will be meeting monthly.

If you would like to be part of this group, please call the Student Health Center at 628-4293.

Patti Scott, director of Student Health Center

Tigers defeat Raiders 44-6

Playoff bound

Brad Murray
Staff writer

California, the land of sandy beaches, sunny days and warm temperatures, is considered a far more desirable place to be than the freezing flatlands of Kansas.

And California is exactly where the Fort Hays State football team will be this weekend for the first round of the National Collegiate Athletic Association Division II playoffs.

The Tigers (6-1 RMAC, 8-3 overall), will fly to Davis, Calif., Friday to take on the University of California-Davis Aggies at 3 p.m. Saturday.

FHSU qualified for the playoffs and won the Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference Championships with a convincing 44-6 blowout of Fort Lewis College on the road last Saturday.

Coach Bob Cortese said FHSU qualified for the playoffs because the committee who voted on the championship field tended to reward league champions.

Even with all the distractions of sunny California, Cortese said he and his team aren't planning on becoming beach bums.

"We're just going to get in Friday

(to California), study game plans, practice and play on Saturday. We're not going to go touring around. This is not a vacation," Cortese said.

UC-Davis will be an extremely tough team to beat, as indicated by their 9-1 overall record.

"They are a super team with a great offense and defense. Their only loss was by one point. I can't really say too much about them yet. We'll know more after we watch the films," Cortese said.

This will be the first NCAA Div. II playoff appearance for the Tigers and for Cortese.

The Tigers did reach the NAIA playoffs in 1980, Cortese's first year as FHSU coach. Cortese has coached in eight NAIA playoffs during his career, including one at FHSU.

This relative inexperience in the post-season is countered by 11 NCAA Div. II playoff appearances for UC-Davis, the most of any team in the tournament bracket.

The FHSU players, inexperienced in post-season action, seem to be taking the pressure of the playoffs like old pros.

"All the players sat around and talked about the playoffs. It's a heck of a way to go out. A lot of family and friends will be there to support us. It'll be expensive, but we're going to have some people there.

"We're confident in ourselves, and if we just play up to our abilities, we'll be okay. Hopefully, it won't end here," David Foster, senior defensive captain, said.

"We're very, very excited. We have (wide receiver Lance) Schwindt back again. He's a big plus and plays a big part for our offense. Even though we're playing in California, it's still just a football game, we're not going to Disneyland," Dustin McEwen, junior quarterback, said.

Schwindt will return after two weeks out of action with a broken collar bone.

"It was terrible being out, but it will feel good to get back to playing. I'm glad we got a shot in the playoffs. We're going to give it our all.

"Hopefully, our offense will take the pressure off our defense. Our defense has taken the load all year, Schwindt, sophomore wide receiver, said.

"California's not going to be any big distraction, we're just going to take it like any other week, the only difference is we'll be flying instead of riding in a bus," Schwindt said.

FHSU fans to 'Pack the House' Friday

Ryan Buchanan
Staff writer

"We've got a good basketball team this year, an exciting basketball team, and if people come to 'Pack the House Night,' they'll come back," Head Coach Gary Garner said before Fort Hays State's first basketball game to take place Friday night.

Everyone who attends "Pack the House Night," FHSU vs. 10th-ranked Missouri Western, will have a chance to win up to $7,000.

The FHSU women will play Emporia State at 6 p.m. and the men's tip-off will be at 8 p.m.

"We've got 11 new players this year, and we think we've got a lot better athletes. They're going to be exciting. We've got guys that can dunk and do all kinds of things," Jack Kuestermeyer, sports information director, said.

The amount given away will equal $1 for every person in attendance, with a minimum prize of $2,000.

According to Kuestermeyer, "anyone who comes to the game is eligible to win, but must be 18 and present."

"Pack the House" is sponsored by KJLS Radio, 107 W. 13th St.; Country Kitchen, 3203 Vine; and the FHSU Athletic Department.

As the fans come through the gate, they will be given a ticket with a number on it. An identical ticket will then be placed in the drawing.

The drawing will take place at mid-court after the men's game, and the winner will be presented with a $5 by $2 check. The actual check will be awarded at a later date.

Kuestermeyer said, "We're trying to get energy back into the basketball program, and get people to come watch FHSU basketball."

Last year, average attendance for FHSU home games was only 1,166, and only 1,510 people attended the first game of the season.

These statistics indicate very poor attendance, considering Gross Memorial Coliseum has a capacity of 7,000.

Kuestermeyer said, "In the past, our student following has been pretty good. The student section is usually full. It's the fans from the community that aren't there anymore."

"There's no question, winning or losing is the bottom line. If you're not winning, you lose fans, and last year we didn't have a very good year."

Kuestermeyer said, "We figure if we can get a big crowd there, and give them an exciting game, they'll come back."

Garner is very enthusiastic about "Pack the House Night" as he prepares his team to tackle Missouri Western.

"I think a big crowd has a tremendous effect on the players if there's a full house," he said.

"How much they're into the game certainly helps also. Having a full house will really help motivate our players. They are going to play hard and try to do everything they can to win regardless if there's one person there or 100."

"The coaches and the players have very high expectations this year," he said. "We think we have a really good basketball team. We've got 15 players on our team, 11 of who are new."

Nine wrestlers place at meet

Ryan Buchanan
Staff writer

"I was really shocked at how well the team did. I was real proud of everyone. I think we did a good job," senior Ben Loggains said, as the Fort Hays State wrestling team returned from Sunday's Central Missouri Open.

Nine wrestlers placed in the meet, and the grapplers won 29 of 53 matches.

Coach Bob Smith said the meet went "Great. We had a good weekend."

Smith said he is seeing much improvement, "but we still have a ways to go. Every week, it seems like someone else is coming through for us."

The open had a separate competition for freshmen and sophomores, as well as an open competition.

Smith said the freshman-sophomore competition helped his young wrestlers, because they were given the opportunity "to wrestle against guys of their own caliber."

Placing for the Tigers were: 118 - Jason Dutton, third; 118-Cody Bickley, fourth; 134-Ben Loggains, second; 142-Eddie Woody, second; 150-Cully Jackson, fifth; 158-J.J. Thaw, third; 167-B.J. Kerschen, second; 190-David Schneider, second; and heavyweight-Jay Sweet, fourth.

"It was just a running tournament. We're looking stronger every week," Smith said.

Loggains said, "The open competition was really tough. There were a lot of good guys there. I'm surprised we did as well as we did."
