Richard K. Jones, Bird City

This building is dedicated to the unfulfilled dreams of our young men who gave their lives in defense of freedom.

We can only speculate what contribution they might have made to the world's culture if war had not intervened—what honor they might have brought, as creative adults, to their families, their home communities, their college.

Instead, they fought bravely in wars not of their own making. They died in strange and distant lands where the rippling sheen of a Kansas wheat field was but a golden memory.

The Memorial Union is dedicated today as a practical but permanent monument to the sacrifice these men have made.
