SGA, Hammond appeal to city commission

Janella Mildrexler
the university leader

The Student Government meeting was canceled this week so that approximately 34 senators and other students could attend the Hays City Commissioners meeting at 7:30 p.m. last night. The students were assembled to ask for the reinstatement of the Hays City Silver Scholarship.

Vice president Terry Bruce stepped up to the microphone and read a prepared speech relating his experience at Fort Hays State University. He then read from a letter addressed to the commissioners.

The letter was attached to a petition that was circulated on the FHSU campus. The petition included nine pages of signatures from FHSU students.

SGA President Chad Nelson stated that 60 people were receiving the award. Later at an interview, he admitted to underestimating the number, because in reality 94 students from Ellis county are recipients of the Hays City Silver Scholarship.

The city commission's certified public accountant gave a presentation about the budget. Then Ed Hammond, FHSU president, spoke to the commission.

"The program was designed to not cost the city any more money than it cost 10 years ago. Since the establishment of the scholarship program, FHSU has been growing in freshman and total enrollments," Hammond said.

"You have heard from only a smattering of those whom the scholarship benefits. This is clearly a beneficial return and I would doubt you receive this return anywhere else in your budget," Hammond said.

The city commissioners then responded with their comments and questions.

"You young people are very important to us and the City cuts funds to Silver Scholarship

The Hays City Commission, and Fort Hays State President Edward Hammond engaged in a heated discussion last night over the fate of the Hays City Silver Scholarship.

The scholarship, which is mutually funded by the City of Hays and FHSU, has been partially cut from the city budget pending further discussion, SGA president Chad Nelson said.

"The city is trying to phase out the scholarship over a number of years," he said. "They have been providing approximately $100 thousand a year. President Hammond and the Endowment Association would then do a fund-raising campaign to add to that."

"They (the city) are taking away $17,500, I believe. They are proposing to take more next year." The Commission cited financial difficulties as the reasoning behind the cut, Nelson said. "I think they are just looking at the short range."

A new neighbor has moved to town. Their decor consists of such things as a guitar and fireman's boot hanging on the wall, an indoor carousel horse and an Indian statue right as you walk in the door.

Who is this neighbor? It's no other than Applebee's International, Inc., located at 4101 Vine Street.

Founded in 1980 by William (Bill) F. and T.J. Palmer as T.J. Applebee's Edibles and Elixirs, they "envisioned a restaurant which would provide full-service casual dining and outstanding food at reasonable prices in a friendly neighborhood setting," according to an Applebee's history sheet.

The grand opening on Tuesday placed the Hays store in a system of company and franchise restaurants that number over 800, the history sheet said. "I'm just excited we have one here. I'm going there on my birthday on Sunday," Denise Augustine, Great Bend junior, said.

Although "not really" currently seeking employees, some "qualities of a person like trust, respect, integrity and leadership" were looked for in prospective employees, according to General Manager Kevin Schmidt.

Applebee's employs approximately 60 Fort Hays State students at this time, according to Schmidt.

FHSU's Career Service Center assisted Applebee's with scheduling interviews with possible student employees. A total of 108 interviews with two on a waiting list were scheduled, according to the Center. Students that had not pre-scheduled were sent directly to Applebee's on the interviewing days, while 78 of those pre-scheduled actually interviewed, according to the Career Service Center.

Spencer Rupp, Ness City sophomore, is one student who made the cut and works as a server. Although this is his first job as a server, he's "held every manual-labor job known to man," he said.

"It's (serving) something I've never experienced before. It's fun for me because I love working with people," Rupp said.

How might it be working for "America's Favorite Neighbor?" "Trainers came in from everywhere to help Hays, and good management and trainers have helped tremendously. Everyone's willing to work and help; it's real teamwork. We're always busy and kept on our toes," Rupp said.

Applebee's is open 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 11 a.m. to 12 a.m. Friday and Saturday, and 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Sunday. Since opening, "it's been packed ever since," Rupp said.

Menu prices range from $.99 and up for adult drinks and $2.99 for a side bowl of chili to $9.79 for an Applebee's house sirloin smothered with sautéed onions, mushrooms and green peppers. "They're reasonable prices and everyone, customers and servers, enjoy themselves," Rupp said.

"I hope Applebee's brings more good restaurants to town like it," Amy Ketzner, Cimarron senior, said.

Approximately 20 Applebee's currently exist in Kansas with most of them operating in Wichita

CardFest '97 set for tomorrow at Coliseum

Rod C. Smith
the university leader

Students, do you like free stuff? Have you been searching for cheap food? Do you need a little extra cash?

If you answered yes to any of these questions, then you should be at Gross Memorial Coliseum tomorrow for University Cardfest '97.

Offered with the men's and women's basketball games, the event runs from 5 to 7 p.m. and is sponsored by Commerce Bank, in conjunction with AT&T, Professional Food Management, and KJLS Mix 103.

PFM will serve a roast beef and spaghetti supper. Cost is $3, and meal plans will be honored.

According to John Ross, University Card Center director, and event organizer, display tables will be set up around the indoor track, giving students the opportunity to browse at their leisure.

Students are encouraged to visit all the tables and complete what he called "merchant bingo." Students will then be allowed to enter a cash prize drawing. Winners will be drawn during half-time and following the men's game.

At press time, eight area merchants and ten university organizations or departments plan to have tables

Some of the merchants with tables will be the Corner Book Center, Fish & Pets, Inc., Strike Zone, Taco Shop and University Book Store.

Among the freebies to be given out are T-shirts, duffel bags and an afghan. According to Ross, one other special activity has been planned—blind basketball.

Several university employees and notable city officials will be blindfolded and made to play ball during half-time of the men's game.

The purpose of the event is to promote the University Card, provide an opportunity for organizational and university recruitment, and give students and merchants, alike, the opportunity to get familiar with each other.

"The whole idea is to forge some real strong links between the university, the stores and the greater Hays community."

Also we want to have a good time, and we want to promote the card because university wise we're doing a pretty good job with that."

In its second year, the event is the brain-child of Ross and Travis Crites, St. Francis senior.

According to Ross, fifty merchants now accept the University Card, and it is becoming more popular among students as well.

Statistics in; campus crime down

Christy J. Briggs
the university leader

Fort Hays State had the lowest crime rate of all four-year universities in the state of Kansas for 1993 and 1994. FHSU also had a lower crime rate than many two-year colleges according to the Kansas Bureau of Investigation findings.

Don Smith, coordinator of public safety and environment, feels that the crime is low due to a combination of things.

"I think it's a part of where Hays is at and the people that come to Hays," he said. "A lot of it is the class of students that come out here."

President Edward Hammond feels much the same way.

"I am very proud of the fact that Fort Hays State continues to have the lowest crime rate of any institution."

"I attribute that low rate to the quality of the student body—who really care for one another and assume responsibility for their actions. The police force does an excellent job," Hammond said.

The KBI's findings say that FHSU had no violent crimes or motor vehicle theft in both 1993 and 1994. The crimes that took place were burglaries and thefts. In 1993, there were 31 burglaries and 28 thefts, totaling 59 total crimes. That number went down to 25 burglaries and 24 thefts, totaling 49 total crimes in 1994.

Smith said that the burglaries and thefts occur most often in the residence halls.

Most of the thefts were of personal items because "somebody left the room open while they went to visit somebody or they loaned their key to somebody. It's a mix of things: CD's, stereo's, TV set's," Smith said.

"I think we can continue to keep the crime rate low, with the way we do things and the way the university police operate with their programs."

Another thing that helped to lower crime on campus, was that the campus police went from driving the smaller squad car to the jeep, which sits higher off the ground.

"This last year we haven't had any car thefts—somebody took something out of a car, nothing of any value. Nobody took the time to take anybody's stereo out—they don't really have the time to do it because we changed the patrol cars—the jeep is high enough now, they (the police) can see more as they drive around."

The bicycle patrol also lets the police see more. It was started about two and a half years ago.

The bike patrol can "usually" get across campus quicker on the bike than in a car. He can see more when he's moving around, hear better than when he's in a car."

According to Smith, the university police will escort people to their cars or dorms if they feel uncomfortable, and

Life returning to normal after twin explosions

Patricia J. Mays
associated press

ATLANTA — Escorted by federal agents, Christine Stadler was allowed back into her law office Saturday for the first time since two explosions rocked the three-story building.

Mrs. Stadler's office is two floors above the Northside Family Planning Services clinic believed to have been the target of Jan. 16 bombings in suburban Sandy Springs.

Her husband, Robert Stadler, and their twin infant daughters were in a nursery in her office when the first bomb exploded outside at the rear of the structure. About an hour later, after the Stadlers had left the building, a second bomb exploded near a trash bin in the parking lot.

"When I was in there and I looked at that office where my girls stay, that just shook me up knowing they were just 5 seconds from being in that debris," she said.

Federal Bureau of Alcohol,

Tobacco and Firearms agents escorted her into the building so she could retrieve a computer and a child's car seat.

At least seven people were injured in the second explosion, including federal agents, rescue workers and a television cameraman.

No one claimed responsibility, no arrests were made and no suspects had been named, and authorities remained tight-lipped about details of the investigation. A toll-free number set up by investigators had fielded more than 200 calls as of last Friday.

Police made extra security sweeps at abortion clinics in the Atlanta area and said they will continue through this week's anniversary of the Supreme Court's Roe vs. Wade decision that legalized abortion, U.S. Attorney Kent Alexander said.

Residents and merchants said the bombing had made them more observant. "When I see a strange face I wonder who he is and why he's there," said resident Jerry Lamb, 71.

city of Hays, whether or not we continue the scholarship, and I want you to know that.

"[But] we are in trouble here and we've got to look after all of Hays, not just Fort Hays State University," Sharon Leiker, city commissioner, said.

Errol Wuertz, city commissioner, said the University should look into educating the taxpayers, because he believed most taxpayers in Hays would not be sympathetic with the students.

"I'd like to look at some type of alternative funding development. I think it would be a good idea for a more stable type of settlement and not have these kinds of confrontations," Wuertz said.

The commission decided to take no action on this issue.

Both Nelson and Bruce expressed their concern at the commissioners decision. "We're disappointed that the City Commission took no action on this matter. This shows a lack of commitment on their part towards education and the agreement between Hays and the University," Nelson said.

SGA, in conjunction with the Docking Institute, hopes to set up a forum with the 11 candidates running for city commission.

If this week is your birthday...

Maintain optimism regarding a raise or a promotion, you are almost sure to receive it. Changes do not come easily to you, but an unexpected one, in your personal life will be more accepted than most. Tend to your spiritual life.

AQUARIUS
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

It would be good to talk about your need for quite a bit of independence in your relationships, so that there is no surprises later on. Listen closely for words of love, for they might be hidden between the lines. Possessive energy may send you in the opposite direction.

PISCES
Feb. 20 - March 20

Your careful attention to loved ones may not evoke an immediate response, but realize that you are greatly appreciated. Remove your walls if you truly want to get through to someone — you have to show your own vulnerability. Take into account everyone is unique.

ARIES
March 21 - April 20

Patience on the homefront will eventually turn any sticky situation in your favor. A little self-sacrifice for family members will do more good for you than them. Try not to insist on perfection — you will be in for considerable frustration.

TAURUS
April 21 - May 21

Avoid playing the victim. If you are feeling left out in the cold, it is probably because you have not made your needs known to others. Speak up, and you will see an immediate difference. Some of your suggestions, especially at home, may be met with resistance.

GEMINI
May 22 - June 21

Be sure to take care of your own needs — which may mean taking a little time out for yourself. Usual routines have to be altered, so nip your ego in the bud and behave with courtesy towards others. The combo of acting from the heart while using your head is unbeatable.

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

You seem to be on top of the world this week. This positive energy could be coming from a number of areas; perhaps your love life is improving, or some unexpected success in business, so enjoy it! A large part of your joy comes from the sense of striving to be best.

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Your ideas are good ones, but you must be willing to accept input from others — bend, so you don't break. There are some bitter feelings resulting from betrayal of some sort. Work on building back the trust you've lost. Remember that change is a constant.

SCORPIO
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Respect promotes peace

Dina Ross
guest columnist

I am glad the Ku Klux Klan did not get to rally in our "Bleeding Kansas" last week due to weather conditions.

They wanted to protest the national celebration of Martin Luther King Jr. Day.

The reason why they chose Salina in which to demonstrate—which will happen at a later time—is unknown to me. Many of their motives are unclear also, other than hate for the people that do not conform to their standards of "purity."

I remember when someone from their group sent me a hate letter. The note was addressed to my former place of dwelling, an apartment on 6th street.

It was their rebuttal to some columns I had written for The University Leader about Multiculturalism, a theme very popular during my first year as a transfer student here.

The letter began with a despicable poem about new immigrants, people who are despised for many reasons in this era of political struggles. I happen to be one of them, but I do not appreciate being labeled in general terms. Does the fact that I was born in another country make me less human than anybody else?

As I was reading the letter, I had to stop and take a deep breath for the missive was full of hate and condemnation. The writer accused me of embracing views that conflict with the "American Dream."

The letter had many things I would not repeat. The more I read, the more incensed I became.

They say that "the pen is mightier than the sword" and they are right. Those ugly words were like stabs to my dignity and pride.

I could hardly stand when I finished reading, for my whole being felt like I had been wounded lethally. In those awful moments I sympathized with those women who have been raped and lose consciousness due to pain and shame.

I had been hurt emotionally like I had never been injured before. A masked stranger had come into my home, where I am most vulnerable, and plundered me mercilessly.

But the humiliation I felt soon gave me an insight. It was like an epiphany to me. It gave the affirmation that no matter what others think of me, I will not change my attitude. I will try to be an advocate for those who suffer from discrimination. Moreover, I will not let someone else's ideas influence my own character.

As I was trying to figure out who had written the letter and why, I came to the conclusion that the unknown writer was a KKK member because he/she hid in anonymity. The missive was written on a generic typewriter and had plenty of technical mistakes.

In a way, I felt sorry for the person, for I assumed he or she was an uneducated individual, even though it seems he/she is a "wannabe poet."

The dispatch could have gone to the place where it belonged, the circular file. Nevertheless, I saved it as a reminder of one of my most powerful moments since I have been in Ellis county.

During January and February we will be celebrating Martin Luther King's accomplishments. Although Dr. King was not elected to congress, senate, state, county, nor city commission, he was one of the greatest leaders during the civil rights era.

He was an excellent speaker who influenced many people during his short life. Dr. King organized many peaceful marches across the country and spoke with people about his beliefs: "...that all men were created equal."

In 1964, Time Magazine chose him to be its "Man of the Year," an honor only a few people can claim. He also was awarded the Nobel Peace prize the same year. This award is given each year to the person who has done the most to further peace on earth. The prize money Dr. King received was given in its entirety to charities.

On April 4, 1968, an escaped convict shot him to death. He was only thirty-nine years old. Around the world, people mourned the loss of this special man.

Kathie Billingslea Smith, the writer of the book Martin Luther King, Jr. in the "Great Americans Series," describes Dr. King's funeral as "...the largest march for freedom..."

Almost 100,000 people from all over the world walked behind the old farm wagon pulled by two mules where his coffin was placed.

Ministers, movie stars, senators, teachers and garbage workers mingled in King's last march. His crypt in Atlanta read these words: "Free at last, free at last, thank God Almighty, I'm free at last!"

King's national celebration is very legitimate and I hope we, as students celebrate together, not only with peaceful demonstrations, but also in our daily actions.

With all the diversity programs we have, this campus is moving into the 21st century in the right direction. Let us all keep Dr. King's dream alive.

Benito Juárez, one of the Mexican presidents I admire the most, said it in different words, Entre los individuos así como entre las naciones, el derecho al respeto ajeno es la paz, or "Among the individuals, as well as among the nations, respect for the other person's rights means PEACE."

Battle stress with creative methods

DEBBIE

Now that the semester is in full swing, you may find that your old friend STRESS has come back to haunt you.

Do you feel that in some classes you can't even figure out what the syllabus means?

Are you sure some professors are speaking a foreign language that everyone understands but you?

Do you have recurring dreams about running off to join the circus?

If so, you are probably experiencing stress. Here are some suggestions to combat stress, which I have found to be helpful:

- Force your pet to give you a bath.
- Lie on your back eating celery - using your navel as a salt dipper.
- Pay your phone bill in pennies.
- Brush your teeth vigorously with canned cheese.
- Drive to school in reverse.
- Jam 39 tiny marshmallows up your nose and try to sneeze them out.
- Pop some popcorn without putting the lid on.
- When someone says to have a nice day, tell them you have other plans.
- Leaf through a National Geographic magazine and draw underwear on the natives.

Today's Question ...

Who is your pick for The Super Bowl?

Since its release a few weeks ago, the movie Michael has gathered some mixed reviews. Some critics seem to hate it, or love it, with nothing in between.

In its first three weeks of release this film has raked in $63.7 million. It looks like movie goers are giving this one their own type of "thumbs up" or wallets open as the case may be.

Nora Ephron, who also directed such films as Sleepless in Seattle, tries to give Michael a good solid base as a romance movie in disguise.

LEONARD

Michael

Director - Nora Ephron
Starring - John Travolta

The plot is sprinkled with comedy, provided mostly by John Travolta in the lead role as the Archangel Michael. He's a bit tubby, hairy, rude, sarcastic, rowdy, loves sugar, and chain smokes. Not exactly the picture one gets when thinking about angels but it works.

Under the guise of allowing himself to be interviewed by tabloid reporters, played by William Hurt, Andie MacDowell, and Bob Hoskins, Michael insists on being taken to the paper's main office in Chicago. He insists on driving and not flying, which gives him the opportunity to fulfill his real purpose, which is to get these three people's lives on track.

Hurt is the writer in a career he hates and alone in the world.

McDowell is afraid to follow her dreams or fall in love. Hoskins is afraid for his job security.

Along the way Michael proves to be very shrewd yet a bit distracted at times. A part of the plot is that this is his last trip to Earth, so he wants to experience all of the things which will soon be denied him.

I'm going to go with the movie-going public on this one. Michael is very well done and extremely entertaining. There is something for most everyone whether it be comedy, heart touching moments, or just an interesting twist on an angel story.

I would easily give this film an A- with high recommendations to see it more than once.

The Green Bay Packers (15-3) and the New England Patriots (13-5) take center stage in Super Bowl XXXI this Sunday, Jan. 26 at the Superdome in New Orleans. This is the first time in 29 years that the Green Bay Packers have gone to the Super Bowl after winning Super Bowls I and II. This will be an opportunity for Bill Parcells, New England coach, to capture another Super Bowl victory under two franchises.

Many people don't just watch the Super Bowl for the game. Some may watch the game for the commercials that will be aired. "I am looking forward to see the Bud Bowl commercial and the Bob Dole Visa card commercial," Gerrett Morris, Assaria

Some of the local bars in town will be holding Super Bowl parties. The Golden Q, 809 Ash St., is throwing a Super Bowl bash, beginning at game time. The first 100 people will be allowed through the doors at a cost of twenty-five dollars per person. The twenty-five dollars will go to an all you can eat hog roast and an all you can drink. Ten dollars of the entrance fee will go to prizes that will be given away during the game. Two hundred dollars will be given away during the first three quarters. During the fourth quarter, four hundred dollars will be given away.

Coach's Bar and Grill, 13th and Canterbury, will be holding a Super Bowl party of their own. They will be serving a bratwurst and chili supper. There will be no cover charge.

To see if any other bars are having a Super Bowl party, just call them up ahead of time.

There are Super Bowl parties on campus too. Wiest Hall will be sponsoring a Super Bowl party for its residents. It begins at 5 p.m. in the evening in the Wiest Hall East Living Room.

"We will be serving hamburgers, bratwursts, pop, chips, etc.," said Dennis Henry, Wiest Hall Council president. This meal is free to all Wiest Hall residents.

On Friday, January 31, "Buffalo" Bill Cody will bring his traveling band of showmen and horsemen back to the town that once made him famous. This will be an anniversary celebration of sorts.

On the night of 8 p.m., the Fort Hays State Special Events Committee will present the 50th Anniversary Production of Irving Berlin's Broadway musical "Annie Get Your Gun," starring Glenn Yarbrough and Rita McKenzie, directed by Jeffrey B. Moore.

General admission tickets are $29 for the general public, $21 for Fort Hays State faculty and staff, senior citizens, and those under 18, and $18 for FHSU students. There are special unserved tickets available for FHSU students for $13. Tickets can be purchased at the Student Service Center in the Memorial Union or charged by calling 628-5306.

At press time, there were still plenty of good seats available, according to a Student Service Center representative.

A one-time folk singer, Yarbrough, who plays the lead of Frank Butler, is perhaps most widely renowned for his mid-1960s top 40 hit "Baby, the Rain Must Fall."

McKenzie, who portrays Annie Oakley, has received worldwide acclaim for her recreation of Ethel Merman in "Ethel Merman's Broadway." She has also starred as Aldonza in "Man of La Mancha," Dolores in "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," and Ruth in the "Pirates of Penzance." Television audiences will remember McKenzie from her roles on NBC's "Frasier," the Family Channel's "Big Brother Jake," and Fox's "Daddy Dearest."

The musical contains such memorable melodies as "You Can't Get a Man With a Gun," "Anything You Can Do I Can Do Better," "Doin' What Comes Naturally," and "There's No Business Like Show Business."

According to publicity materials, this show is a "perfect blend of feminine ingenuity, male ego and old-fashioned romance."

"This is a truckin' road show coming in from New York, and the cast is from everywhere," L.B. Dent, special events coordinator, said.

"You could get the movie 'Annie Get Your Gun,' but you'll never see it done like it is here," Dent said.

Rita McKenzie portrays Annie Oakley in the 50th Anniversary Production of Irving Berlin's "Annie Get Your Gun."

"He was very sympathetic and involved with Native American Indians and the wild west sort of mystique—his shows promoted both of these. Buffalo Bill is what the whole thing is about," Dent said.

"And of course, Buffalo Bill lived here in Hays. It's a wonderful connection. Buffalo Bill made his name here, killing buffaloes, in Hays. That's how he became Buffalo Bill, killing buffalo for the railroad and the fort."

"There's no town that I know of that has the connection with him that we have."

Weaker air bags save more children, endanger adults

WASHINGTON (AP) — Less-powerful air bags might save dozens of children a year but could cost the lives of hundreds of adults — especially those not wearing seat belts — government figures suggest.

Two proposals for air bags that deploy with less force are being considered by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. Bags inflating at up to 200 mph have been blamed for the deaths of 34 children and 20 adults — mostly smaller women. Those 54 occupants were killed in low-speed accidents they otherwise would have survived, authorities say.

When almost all vehicles on the road have air bags sometime in the next century, the devices could kill 128 children a year, according to NHTSA documents.

The statistical analysis says less-powerful air bags could prevent 83 of those 128 projected deaths if the regulatory agency adopted a proposal by automakers to make air bags less powerful.

However, only 39 of the children could be saved if an agency-designed proposal to "depower" air bags between 20 percent and 35 percent were adopted.

The tradeoff in saving children and smaller adults is that making air bags less powerful could result in the deaths of between 122 and 969 adults who would have survived in higher-speed accidents if air bags were left alone, agency documents indicate.

Automakers believe the tradeoff in loss of life would be much lower under their proposal. The American Automobile Manufacturers Association estimated eight large unbelted adults might no longer be saved.

Tigers receive wake-up call from Lopers

FHSU sets fourth longest winning streak in nation

Chad Simon
the university leader

A slogan in the Fort Hays State University men's basketball locker room reads "It's not what happens to you, but how you react."

After Wednesday night's road loss to Nebraska-Kearney, 96-84, FHSU will test that slogan. The game was the largest in Kearney basketball history.

The loss brought FHSU's 49 game winning streak to a screeching halt. The streak was the fourth longest in NCAA history.

The Tigers, 15-1 on the season and 9-1 in conference play, still lead the East Division over Kearney, 8-2.

Heading into the game, Head Coach Gary Garner was concerned with Kearney's team strength and shooting ability. "At times they will put five players on the floor that can shoot the three," said Garner. "We'll have to get the three pointers under control and play extremely well to win."

Garner felt the biggest factor in the loss was his team's inability to get offensive rebounds in the second half. "We gave up 10 offensive rebounds, and they got momentum," said Garner. He also felt his team shot too many three pointers in the loss.

FHSU lead 41-34 heading into half-time after having its biggest lead, 39-24, in the first half.

Alonzo Goldston, center, lead the team with 29 points. Mark Eck, guard/forward, set a season and career high with 21 points.

The Tigers were in deep foul trouble the entire game. Sherick Simpson, forward, had to go to the bench early with three fouls in the first half. Earl Tyson, point guard, was also in foul trouble through out the game.

Leading up to the Kearney game were two wins to start the Eastern Conference divisional play in the Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference.

FHSU started the East division season with a Jan. 17 win over Colorado Mines, 68-57. The following night brought an impressive defensive performance from Garner's group. In the 78-61 win over Metropolitan State, FHSU held Metro State to 32 points below its season average.

Garner was happy with the two game road trip to Colo., but added that that is the time in the season when teams improve or get worse.

Next up for the Tigers is a home date with Denver University at 8 p.m. in Gross Memorial Coliseum tonight. The Tigers then play Chadron State at GMC tomorrow at 8 p.m.

Indoor track season begins on good note

Nick Schwien
the university leader

The Fort Hays State indoor track season began on good stride as the team traveled to Kearney, Neb. to compete in the Nebraska-Kearney Invitational last Saturday.

FHSU had one athlete capture two first place medals and three women capture first place medals.

Jeremy Hawks, Norton junior, captured first place in the shot put with a toss of 54'11". He also captured first place in the 35 pound weight throw with a toss of 54'9 1/4". Hawks' weight throw set a new FHSU record for the event. Both throws were also provisional qualifying marks for the NCAA II Indoor Championships.

Jennifer Zabokrtsky, Barnes senior, placed first in the women's shot put with a toss of 42'3 1/4". Chantay Brush, McPherson senior, won the 55 meter hurdles in a time of 8.62 seconds. Rounding out the first place finishers for the women was Stacy Weatherman, Sylvan Grove junior, who placed first in the 3000 meter run in a time of 11:16.64.

The Tiger men had two athletes place second in events. They were Greg Lang, Hays sophomore, in the long jump and Tad Look, Quinter freshman, in the triple jump.

Three women placed second in events at the UNK meet. They were Michelle Nichol, Claflin sophomore, in the weight throw, Jennifer Nylund, Scandia junior, in the long jump and triple jump, and Becky Keeler, Gypsum sophomore, in the high jump.

FHSU had three men capture third places at the meet. Nathan Reed, Lakin freshman, placed third in the long jump, Steve Kolarik, Hays freshman, placed third in the 55 meter hurdles and Jason McCullough, Effingham junior, placed third in the 5000 meter run.

Nylund placed third for the Tigers in the 55 meter hurdles and Chandra Russell, McPherson junior, placed third in the 1500 meter run.

"We look at the indoor season as a time to prepare for the outdoor season, which is where we put our stress," Jim Kroh, head coach, said.

"The meets indoors we look at as a reward for the kids for working hard. If they work hard, they get to go to the meets," Kroh said.

Kroh was pleased with Hawks' performance for the first meet of the year. "Jeremy broke two school records already. We expected him to be really good after a red-shirt season last year. He will continue to do well."

Kroh feels that Keeler and Zabokrtsky will help lead the women's team this year. "Becky Keeler qualified for nationals in the high jump last year and Jennifer Zabokrtsky qualified for nationals in the shot put last year."

"As far as newcomers, Greg Lang is a good jumper and we expect him to do well. We have a young man named Travis Ford who is a pole vaulter who we also expect to do well," Kroh said.

"Also our cross country runner will do well this year for us too."

The Tigers will have to contend with Western State in the men's division and Adams State in the women's division for a chance at the Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference title. FHSU will also have to compete against Nebraska-Kearney for a shot at the title, too.

"Our conference indoor meet should be really good this year," Kroh said.

When Kroh looks for weaknesses on the men's team, he has trouble finding any. "We're pretty well distributed. We probably have one Allender placed first in the 142 pound class, Woody placed first in the 150 pound class, Ellegood placed first in the 158 pound class, and Josh Gooch captured the gold in the heavyweight division. Trevell Smittick, Sapulpa, Okla. freshman, placed fourth in the 190 pound class and Kevin McCullough, Effingham freshman, placed fifth in the 118 pound class.

Two FHSU wrestlers placed sixth at the meet. Price and Mills each placed sixth in the 134 and 177 pound weight classes, respectively.

The Tigers' next action will be today at Edmond, Okla. as they compete in the NCAA II Showdown Duals. The Tigers are scheduled to take on Northern Colorado at 11 a.m.

Lady Tigers fall to UNK, 52-66

Chad Simon
the university leader

Tom Mahon, Fort Hays State women's basketball coach, knew his team had its work cut out before it traveled to No. 11 ranked Nebraska-Kearney Wednesday night.

Mindy Lyne, guard/forward, lead the team with 18 points in a 52-66 loss. Mardy Robinson chipped in 13 points.

The loss dropped FHSU to 10-4 overall and 7-3 in East divisional play. The Lady Tigers are fourth in the eastern division that includes teams such as Nebraska-Kearney and Regis, who are undefeated in conference play.

Mahon felt his team would have to play a good half court offense to beat Nebraska-Kearney on its home court.

In a rarity this season, the FHSU women were matched in team height, which made it harder for them to run their offense.

Heading into the Kearney game the Lady Tigers played two games in Colorado against Colorado Mines and Metropolitan State. FHSU came away with a split.

The Lady Tigers defeated Mines 66-53, but lost 50-60 to Metro State. "Colorado Mines was an important road win for us," said Mahon. He felt the key in the loss to Metro State was too many turnovers.

The Lady Tigers host Denver University and Chadron State tonight and tomorrow night in Gross Memorial Coliseum in Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference play. Game time for both games is set for 6 p.m.

looking forward toward the outdoor season.

"Overall, we will have a pretty strong squad this year," Kroh said.

The Tigers will next be in action tomorrow when they travel back to Kearney, Neb. to take part in the Nebraska-Kearney Invitational.

of the most balanced teams that we have ever had. I don't see a glaring weakness."

"On the women's side, we're missing some sprinters. We need some help in the sprints. Our strong points will probably be our hurdles, jumps and throws," Kroh said.

Kroh is happy with the team so far and is
