Public Safety Advisory: Surviving an Active Shooter Event

In light of recent mass active shooter tragedies in El Paso, Texas and Dayton, Ohio, I'm sending out a reminder of Fort Hays State University "Active Shooter Safety Guidelines". Since most incidents are over within minutes, students, faculty, and staff must be prepared to react to the situation until first responders arrive. In an active shooter situation, you should quickly determine the most reasonable way to protect your own life. You should:

1. Run: If there is an accessible escape path, attempt to evacuate the premises and go to a place of safety and call 911.
2. Hide: If evacuation is not possible, find a place to hide where the active shooter is less likely to find you.
3. Fight: As a last resort, and only when your life is in imminent danger, attempt to disrupt and/or incapacitate the active shooter.
4. Resources: Refer below for more detailed information on surviving an active shooter event.

Literature of Crime (General Education Course)

ENG 327 Literature Matters: Literature of Crime (General Education Course)

If you have advisees who need a general education course in the Arts and Humanities category or an upper-level elective, please let them know about ENG 327 Literature of Crime, a course that might have broad appeal to students from a wide range of majors. The textbook cost is also relatively low (under $40), since several of the works are in the public domain or available at low cost used. The main texts for the course are The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes, The Maltese Falcon, Murder on the Orient Express, In Cold Blood, and The Hate U Give, supplemented by other short works in a variety of genres. The class meets at 9:30 MWF in Rarick 369.

Course Description:

The subject of crime poses many critical social, psychological, and ethical questions: What motivates people to commit crimes, and how can we address those causes? If people do commit crimes, what should be done to or with them? Can we prevent crime, and if so, how? Can laws be wrong—that is, unjust—and what can or should be done about that? What is justice? Can justice be achieved, and how? We will explore these questions through a variety of texts from different genres—detective and other fiction, true crime/memoir, plays, film, music, and more.

If you or your students have any questions about the class, please email Dr. Lexey Bartlett, Associate Professor of English at labartlett@fhsu.edu.
